D. C. Mission Keynote Sounded in Packed Halls

Thousands Hear Spiritual Leaders Urge Revitalized Christian Faith

(Pictures, other Stories and Program, Pages 8 and 12.)

By Robert Tate Allan
The Post's Church Editor

While more than 5,000 people were turned away, 6,000 others heard leaders plead for a revitalized Christianity last night, as the National Christian Mission was begun here.

Many pastors with their entire congregations were among the crowds that packed Constitution and Continental Halls, and in the former place heard Dr. E. Stanley Jones predict that the Kingdom of God would stand after empires founded on blood and hate were in ruins.

While that noted missionary to India was speaking there, Dr. Paul Scherer warned from the platform of the adjoining Continental Hall that the task of redeeming civilization will rest largely upon the shoulders of the Christian fellowship.

Dr. Scherer, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church of New York City, and Dr. Jones are among 30 members of the National Christian Mission team that is speaking in major cities throughout the country.

Speaking Campaign

Today and during the week the leaders will speak and lead discussions on vital economic, political, social, international, religious and other vital issues in their relations to Christianity.

They will appear at seminars, noonday meetings, before high schools and college groups, service clubs, women's organizations and many other organizations.

Dr. Jones assured that, because the kingdom of God is "stark realism," empires that use force and lies face inevitable ruin.

Standing where he addressed thousands at the Preaching Mission in 1936, the native Marylander said that Hitler's propaganda machine might be able to make "Heaven seem like hell and hell like heaven," but asked:

"How far can lies go? They can go a long way today, tomorrow, but the third day, no."

"Love Thy Neighbor"

Later in his address, as he pleaded for the "love thy neighbor" philosophy in international scope, Dr. Jones made a psychological slip of the tongue that brought chuckles from the huge crowd.

"At the close of the war, we had all the strings in hand to make a new war," he said. Catching himself, he said he meant to say a "new world." Laughing it off, he said his first statement wasn't far wrong.

"Today, we're in the same tangle of hate-producing hate, and war-producing war," he declared, and added:

"The realistic way of God overcomes evil with good, and hate with love. But we're not ready for that answer yet. We have to suffer more, and bleed more."

Earlier in the program, the massed 100-voiced choirs of Calvary and First and New York Avenue Presbyterian Churches, in their red and white and maroon and gold robes, lifted their voices in the anthem, "Beautiful Saviour." They also led the audience in two hymns—"All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" and "In the Cross of Christ I Glory."

Shortly before the ushers from several Washington churches took up the offering, Dr. Jesse M. Bader, director of the National Christian Mission, arose to explain the purpose of the mission—a purpose that has been commended by President Roosevelt in a recent letter to the local mission committee.

The Mission, he said, proposes to reach the unchurched in every area

House to Open Lend-Lease Debate Today

Passage Held Sure; Senate to Carry On Hearings Concurrently

The lend-lease bill to aid Britain will move today from committee room to House floor in the historic fight over broadening President Roosevelt's powers to meet the emergency of war abroad.

Three days of debate in the House will open at noon. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee will continue its hearings on the measure simultaneously, in order to hasten final Congressional action.

House approval of the bill by the end of this week is the goal of majority leaders, and doubt that it will pass was not apparent among opponents of the measure.

Senate Battle Expected

Senate isolationist opposition to the legislation, however, is expected to be more vociferous and protracted. Despite four amendments already agreed to by the Administration, with many more proposed, Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, declared a strenuous fight would be waged to defeat the bill entirely.

Norman Thomas, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and former Gov. Philip La Follette, of Wisconsin, all opposed to the proposed power grant, are to be the week's first witnesses before the Senate committee. Wendell Willkie, now in London, is expected home before the end of the week to testify in favor of it.

Meanwhile, support and denunciation of the bill come from outside Capitol circles.

Army Musters 1,100 District Guards Today

Some Troops to Wait Here for Completion Of Ft. Meade Housing

Nearly 1,100 men, representing all remaining units of the District National Guard not yet in active service, will be mobilized at the Guard Armory today preliminary to a year of Army duty.

The troops constituting units of the 121st Engineers, the First Battalion of the 104th Quartermaster Regiment and the Twenty-Ninth Division Special Troops are scheduled eventually to be sent to Fort Meade, Md.

Because some of the facilities at Fort Meade are only about one-half complete, however, more than half the Guardsmen will be assigned to duty at the Armory for an indefinite period.

Since there are no facilities at the Armory for housing a large body of men, most of the troops will live in their homes during more than a week of active duty.

About 200 Guard officers and men are slated to leave Washington for Fort Meade tomorrow or Wednesday, together with similar units of the Twenty-ninth Division, which is composed of organizations from Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania, as well as the District.

Units to Prepare Camp

The District units leaving as soon as their members are examined and inducted are the headquarters and service companies of the 121st Engineers and the 104th Quartermaster Regiment and the Military Police Company of the special troops.

These units will be sent to camp to prepare facilities for the balance of the division which will be moved into Fort Meade as soon as housing and hospitalization are available.

Some combat units of the division are expected to go to Fort Meade next Monday and all have been instructed to be ready to move on 24 hours' notice.

A seven-man examining board, composed of Regular Army and Guard officers, will be set up at 8 a. m. at the Armory, Sixth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, to begin physical tests of the troops. The Guardsmen have been ordered to report at 7:30 a. m.

The headquarters and service company of the 121st Engineers was given its physical examination last week. Units of the First Battalion of the 104th Quartermaster Regiment, commanded by Maj. Fletcher F. Bernsdorff, together with the special troops commanded by Maj.

First Lady Pays Surprise Visit To Child Star in Hospital

All her disappointment at missing the President's Birthday Ball festivities here was erased in one surprising moment yesterday for Carolyn Lee, 5-year-old movie actress.

She was eating lunch yesterday at Children's Hospital where she is recovering from acute bronchitis, when there came a knock at the door—and in walked Mrs. Roosevelt.

Earlier Carolyn had confided to her mother, Mrs. Warren Copp, that she didn't mind missing the parties so much, but the one thing she regretted was not seeing Mrs. Roosevelt.

As if her appearance were not surprise enough, Mrs. Roosevelt hinted at another surprise for Carolyn. She said she was going to bring a present and asked for suggestions. With complete aplomb, Carolyn said she'd rather Mrs. Roosevelt pick it out herself. "A book or flowers?" Mrs. Roosevelt persisted.

But Caroyln, who loves surprises, insisted: "You make it a surprise."

Mrs. Roosevelt, after chatting five or six minutes, left the hospital as unobtrusively as she had entered—leaving behind an excited little girl.

Carolyn who, while stranded at the hospital, is appearing on a local screen in the movie "Virginia," is recovering satisfactorily, but will probably have to remain in Washington the rest of this week. Then she and her mother are going to Miami.

Ford Plant Organized, A.F.L. Claims

Green Hints CIO Has Been Beaten to Draw; Praises Labor Policy Of Auto Builder

The American Federation of Labor, through its president, William Green, said last night that it has already organized a majority of Ford Motor Co. employes at the Lincoln and River Rouge plants.

"Unions have been formed, the details of organization consummated and charters of affiliation have been issued by the A. F. of L., Green said. Further, he said, this development has come about "without interference" by the Ford management.

Green's statement, which came on the heel of repeated denunciations by C. I. O. officials of Ford labor policies, indicated that the A. F. of L. may have stolen a march on its industrial organization rival in a quiet unionization move.

As if defending the Ford company against C. I. O. charges of antiunion discrimination, Green said that "thousands" of members of A. F. L. unions have been regularly employed in Ford company plants "ever since it was established," and that "none of these employes was ever discriminated against" because of union membership.

"For instance," Green said, "building construction originated and carried forward by the Ford Motor Co. was always performed by building trades mechanics affiliated with the A. F. of L."

Ford officials have objected to being required to compel employes to join a union through closed shop contracts, but Green said in his statement:

"The right of production workers to voluntarily become members of a union of their own choosing, as provided for in the National Labor Relations Act, was freely exercised, without interference by the management of the Ford Motor Co."

C. I. O. Claims Contradict Him

Green's statement conflicted with claims of C. I. O. officials that the C. I. O. auto workers union has a majority of workers in the Lincoln plant. A C. I. O. petition to the Labor Relations Board for a collective bargaining election in that plant is now pending. Green indicated that the A. F. L. would seek bargaining rights in both plants, when he said:

"It is hoped that a colletcive bargaining and cooperative relationship, which has always existed between A. F. L. unions established in Ford Motor Co. plants and the management of the Ford Motor Co., will now be established between these newly chartered A. F. L. unions" and the Ford management.

Officials said the Ford workers had been organized into "Federal unions" chartered by the federation, and Green said that A. F. L. would "service . . . advise and counsel" the new organizations.

The Ford company is now working on two large contracts for the Army, one calling for 4,000 Pratt & Whitney airplane engines, and

British Take Key Eritrean Rail City, Hundreds of Italians; Great Raid Blasts Nazi Ports

R. A. F. Swarms Over Channel in Daylight To Blast Invasion Bases in Mass Sortie

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 2.—A fleet of Spitfire and Hurricane fighters and bombers crossed the English Channel today in a new daylight offensive against the coast from which the Nazis are expected to try to invade Britain in the spring.

To one observer on the coast the sky seemed to be "full of planes" as the bombers, protected by clouds of fighting planes, soared over the Channel in brilliant sunshine.

Three German fighting planes encountered by the British were shot down, while one British plane failed to return home, an air ministry communique said.

The air ministry news service said one small force of bombers under heavy escort, attacked the Boulogne waterfront, bombing barges moored at the quayside, while the fighter planes kept the sky clear. Some German fighters saw them and sheered away from the battle, the news service said.

American Bags One

One of the German planes destroyed was shot down by a 28-year-old American-born flight lieutenant, the news service said, without naming him.

England was free of night raiders up to a late hour. Fog shrouded the Strait of Dover after a clear winter day.

The daylight raids were a carry-over from attacks Saturday night and at dawn. In the night sortie, the air ministry said:

"A small force of coastal command aircraft attacked the docks at Brest."

Brest is the old French naval base from which the Germans are now believed to be operating submarines.

At dawn another small force of R. A. F. bombers raided the docks at Boulogne, France, and Ostend, Belgium, according to an authoritative source.

While the R. A. F. maintained a constant patrol along the coast, the attacks on the continental ports continued into midday. Lorient, Dunkerque and Boulogne appeared to be the targets.

Called a Sortie

The bombers flew well over 10,000 feet, disappearing into the haze along the French coast.

Once spectators heard the sharp clatter of machine gun fire as a German Messerschmitt tried to shoot down three British bombers, returning from France. The Nazi flier was beaten off about halfway across the channel. Another Messerschmitt chased a British bomber as far as the English coast.

Sources here declined to say the attack on the French coast was "large scale," preferring to call it

Norse Bishops Indict Violence, Broken Pledges of 'New Order'

Contempt for Law Is 'Openly Encouraged,' Church Leaders Charge in Document

Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, Sweden, Feb. 2.—Led by Eivind Berggrav, the Bishop of Oslo, all the Norwegian bishops—numbering seven—have addressed to the education and church state's councilor, Prof. Ragnor Shanke, a document that the Swedish press calls "sensational."

While it is in the form of a demand for "clarification," it constitutes the most outspoken indictment of the Norwegian "new order," which is accused of open encouragement of violence and contempt for the law.

First the bishops asked whether a state that interferes with clerical life accepts and feels itself responsible for right, justice and the moral duties contained in the Bible and the confession. "The church's whole existence depends on this," say the bishops.

They further emphasize that the authorities had promised to respect the Norwegian and church laws, and that even the German commissioner, Josef Terboven, in one speech declared that the independence of the courts and of justice would be respected. Now, however, the bishops have begun seriously to doubt this intention.

"We are confronted with the question whether the state, through its organs, will maintain order, right and justice in the way that our church prescribes," the bishops say. Then they add that there is a definite impression that not only does the state not prevent acts of violence, but that it actually encourages them and that justice is being deprived of its very foundations.

"The concrete reasons for anxiety," the bishops declare, "are, first, the Quisling Storm Troopers' systematic violence; second, the resignation of all the members of the supreme court, and last, but not least, the interference with preachers' secrecy of oath."

With a great wealth of documentary evidence the bishops dwell on these three points.

Concerning the first they recall the Storm Troopers' recent attack on Oslo's commercial school, when uniformed hooligans beat up many teachers and pupils, "a brutal attack on the president of the stu-

Nazis Reject Darlan's Bid To Negotiate

Germans Believed Demanding Bases, Laval Reinstatement

By International News Service

Berlin, Feb. 2.—The deadlock in German-French relations reached a new and critical turn tonight when Reich authorities in Nazi-occupied Paris turned down a personal effort by a high French government member to resume negotiations.

The attempt was made by the French Naval Minister, Vice Admiral Jean Francois Darlan, who motored from Vichy to Paris today.

(In Vichy, meanwhile, the chief of state, Marshal Petain, suddenly canceled a radio speech he was scheduled to have made. He was reported, without confirmation, to be conferring with former Vice Premier Laval, whom he dismissed from the government last month and whose reinstatement is demanded by the Germans as a prerequisite to renewal of negotiations.

(In London, Gen. Charles De Gaulle's "Free French" news agency asserted Chancellor Hitler's note to Petain, delivered Friday, is "threatening" in tone, demanding governmental changes in Vichy and French concessions in the Mediterranean, believed to include granting of Bizerte, Tunisia, for use as a Nazi war base.

The official German news agency, D. N. B. in a dispatch from Paris said it was learned Admiral Darlan had arrived in the old French capital and 'attempted to take up new negotiations."

The German authorities pointed out to Darlan, according to D. N. D. that the time is "inopportune" for renewal of the negotiations "so long as Vichy fails clearly to realize the new situation."

Army Men, Civilians Riot In South Africa

Johannesburg Strife Follows Meeting of Anti-British Group

By the Associated Press

Johannesburg, Union of South Africa, Feb. 2.—Fierce rioting between soldiers and civilians suspected of anti-British sympathies broke out in this capital of Transvaal Province Friday and peace was not fully restored until this morning.

The wildest scenes occurred last night and today when thousands of police and street fighters were involved. Police resorted to tear gas bombs and baton charges to break up the fighting in the heart of the city and about 140 persons, mostly soldiers, were sent to hospitals.

Johannesburg, an important mining center, is quiet now and the flareup, apparently only an emotional outburst, was said not to have spread beyond this city.

The disorders were traced to differences between soldiers and civilians following a meeting Friday of the Ossewabrandwag, an organization embracing extreme republicanism and generally considered anti-British.

Rioting flared anew last night and continued into today when soldiers on Saturday night leave saw a bearded man in a streetcar and attacked it. The city was crowded with soldiers and the streets rang with the clamor of rioting.

Offices both of the Transvaaler, a Nationalist paper supporting republican policy, and of the Vaderland, the newspaper of former Premier Gen. J. B. M. Hertzog, were damaged during the riots.

Widow of Martin Johnson To Marry Business Manager

OSA JOHNSON

Bridegroom Was With Exploring Author in Africa

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 2.—Mrs. Osa Johnson, widow of Martin Johnson, the explorer and producer of wild animal films, will be married to Clark H. Getts, her business manager, at city hall tomorrow by Mayor F. H. LaGuardia.

As well known as her late husband for her love of exploration and adventure, Mrs. Johnson is the author of "I Married Adventure," which chronicles the story of her life with the explorer.

Johnson died of injuries suffered in the crash of an airliner north of Los Angeles January 12, 1937. Mrs. Johnson was injured in the crash, but as soon as she recovered, she resumed a lecture tour.

Getts accompanied her to Africa as manager of her "Stanley and Livingstone" film expedition in 1937 and assisted in the production of her current motion picture based on her book. The couple will forego an immediate honeymoon to permit her to complete a sequel to the book.

Following the ceremony at 11 a. m. at city hall, a wedding breakfast will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Party to Open Blood Bank Drive; $100 Already Donated

With one benefit party scheduled for tonight and another tomorrow, The Washington Post-WJSV-American Legion blood bank campaign for Children's Hospital is well under way.

Actually, there is already $100 in the treasury before a party has been held. A check for that amount was presented recently by E. F. Dwyer, commander of Bureau of Engraving and Printing Post, No. 23, American Legion, to W. A. Corley, child welfare chairman of the Legion's District Department and member of the veterans organization's cooperating committee.

W. L. Collins is chairman of the committee and Mrs. Edith Landvoight is vice chairman. Other members are Porter Bush, Millard H. Sutton, Heywood Saunders, Mrs. Mildred Bell and E. W. Luther.

The first party will be given tonight by Kenneth H. Nash, Post and Auxiliary Unit No. 8 at the clubrooms, 209 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast. In charge of arrangements are, for the post, E. A. Totten, and, for the auxiliary, Mrs. Helen Ware. Assisting them are Harry Hovermill, Joseph Dodd, Guy Cogswell, Mrs. Anna Seiders, Mrs. Nellie Linville and Mrs. Lillian Urban.

The benefit card party tomorrow, sponsored by George E. Killeen Post and Auxiliary Unit No. 25, will be dedicated, as was last year's program, to the memory of James Morris, who was post commander when he died early in the 1940 blood bank campaign.

It will be held in the 3204 M Street

New Battle Impends

Copyright by New York Times

Cairo, Feb. 2—British Indian troops with Royal Air Force cooperation yesterday morning broke the last of the Italian defenses around Agordat and completed the capture of that important Eritrean mountain railroad center.

The Italians suffered heavy casualties and the British took many hundreds of prisoners, captured many guns and trucks, and destroyed six medium, five light tanks and 15 guns.

By dusk the British advance troops were closely pursuing the Italians, who were withdrawing toward Keren, 40 miles farther east along the railroad and 50 miles northwest of Asmara, Eritrea's capital. The retreating Italian army comprised the bulk of one division.

Forty miles south of Agordat, the Italians still held Barentu but heavy fighting was going on and the garrison was not only in danger of defeat but in constant peril of being cut off and captured. The Barentu forces also comprise about a division.

Fleeing Column Caught

Farther south the British finally caught up with Italian units fleeing from Umm Hagar. The Italians were attacked at Biacundi, and the town was taken with a large number of prisoners. A few miles farther south, inside Abyssinia, the Italians were forced to withdraw from the Walkit district and to abandon the bulk of their mechanical equipment. They now are trying to make their way eastward along the mountain tracks.

Both the Umm Hagar garrison and the Italians from Walkit are being harassed by Abyssinians.

Wallis Has Had Her Face Lifted, N. Y. Paper Says

New York, Feb. 2 (U.P.).—The New York Daily News said in a copyrighted article tonight that the Duchess of Windsor had her face lifted by Dr. I. Doniel Shorell, a New York plastic surgeon, during the week between Christmas and New Year's Day.

The story said the operation was performed in the Governor's mansion at Nassau, Bahama Islands. The duchess' dental operation in Miami, Fla., in mid-December was a preliminary to the facial surgery, the story said.

The operation was highly successful, according to friends quoted by the News, and removed wrinkles from the duchess' chin. The mole on her chin was not touched, it was said, nor was the upper part of her face. She was said to look "years younger."

Counter Blows, Smothered, Greeks Report

Copyright by New York Times

Athens, Feb. 2.—Italian attempts at a large-scale counteroffensive, by which it is believed here Gen. Ugo Cavallero in a desperate move wished to change the war situation in Albania to his advantage, has proved a failure all along the line, according to official utterances.

During the last 25 hours the enemy was stated to have called off further efforts to push his lines forward and chose instead to admit himself to be frankly on the defensive.

Such time as he has had at his disposal—that is, when not harassed by the oncoming Greeks—the enemy used to fortify himself against further attacks, erecting barbed wire entanglements for the purpose.

The Greeks, however, it was said, gave him little respite and even managed to push forward in several places for considerable gains.

The official spokesman tonight spoke on a "particularly heroic action" which took place in the region north of Klisura. Here, it was claimed, Greek forces succeeded in taking a mountain chain described as 15 kilometers in length. The principal peak of this mountain mass, which was said to have come into Greek possession, was 2,000 meters high and it was described as "of the utmost strategic value."

At present it appears that the Greeks are overmodest in their claims. It is fairly safe to forecast that the Greeks will shortly score an important victory which will net for them substantial slices of territory now held by their enemy.

has caved in around Metemma and about 8,000 of them are in full retreat along the Metemma-Gondar Road.

Despite reverses on every East African front, the Italian troops have been fighting desperately and are continuing to put up stiff resistance. The withdrawal from Agordat to Keren, although hasty, was not a rout and a further stand is expected.

The British face a formidable task for their communications lines are now nearly 110 miles long. At many places the mountain passes are scarcely wider than a road, making it possible for a few men with machine guns to delay a large force.

Despite the Italian resistance the way to Asmara seems unlikely to be permanently blocked, and Asmara is the key to Massawa and most of Eritrea.

Abyssinians Harry Retreat

Although of comparative slight importance, the operations in the Biacundi and Walkit areas are interesting because of Abyssinian participation.

When the Italians began to retreat they found every road a hornet's nest of snipers who utilized every tree, every stone for cover from which to pour a withering fire at the columns.

British sources emphasize that the Italians, who possess about 200,000 men in East Africa, could bring in reinforcements for the present battle, yet it is probable that the Abyssinians will seriously hamper all troop movements and make it necessary to keep garrisons at full strength, hence large concentrations seem unlikely.

The South African air force continued to bomb outposts and truck concentrations in southern Abyssinia, and Italian Somaliland. Stores and munitions dumps were hit during a Royal Air Force raid on Assab.

There were further developments from Libya where the British advance has continued unchecked west from Derna.

"an operational sortie," but observers along the coast said they thought the R. A. F. was giving the Germans "merry hell on the other side of the Channel."

London sources, however, acknowledged there was "considerable air activity over the Straits of Dover today."

Nazi planes made minor daylight forays against the coastal region. In late afternoon a raider, hotly pursued by two British machines, was sighted flying low over the northeastern coastal region.

Another plane, so low that the German markings could be plainly seen, machine-gunned a northeast coast town, causing no casualties, and sped to sea from a heavy anti-aircraft barrage. Invading planes were reported over two East Anglian towns.

The Germans were active only in a small way. A German Dornier flew over East Anglia, dropping eight bombs on the outskirts of a town. Most fell in an open field and there were no casualties.

Defense Demands Lift Age Limits, Says Miss Perkins

Secretary Perkins reported yesterday that demands for skilled labor had resulted in many national defense industries lifting bans against older workers.

In a letter to Senator Mead (Democrat), New York, the Labor Secretary commented, however, that "there is no doubt whatever but that many private industries still hold to a relatively low hiring age limit."

Miss Perkins said that a California aircraft company "put on several hundred men in the age group 30 to 65" when she suggested this solution for a lack of skilled help. She said a Baltimore aircraft company obtained 1,300 badly needed machinists by modifying its pre- age hiring policy."

A New York Senator has asked Senate investigation of "discrimination against older workers in employment with the government with defense industries."

British Report Gains in Africa

Rome Claims Nazi Success In North Africa

By the Associated Press

Rome, Feb. 2.—Powerful Nazi air raids on the British-captured coast of North Africa were reported today in an Italian communique which said seven British ships, totaling more than 25,000 tons, had been sunk by German warplanes and an Italian submarine.

German air squadrons, the high command said, bombed the port and defenses of Salum, Egypt, and Bardia, Libya, "with evidently effective results" and "carried out intensive offensive action against enemy merchant ships along coasts of the Egyptian desert."

Besides three ships of "medium tonnage" sunk and three others damaged in the offshore forays, it reported, one 10,000-ton ship was sent to the bottom of Bardia Bay.

One Italian submarine, operating in the Atlantic, was credited with sinking three ships totaling 15,000 tons from an escorted convoy of four vessels.

(Nazi planes are known to be based at Catania, Sicily, and have combined with Italian forces in blows against the British at Malta, in the Sicilian Strait and as far as the Suez Canal zone. This was the first report of concentrated German action in the North Africa war zone.

(A German high command communique said Nazi planes made attacks "with great success" on several North African harbors serving as British supply ports and sank three ships totaling 14,000 tons besides damaging three others.

(This would raise the combined total claimed by the two communiques to 39,000 tons.)

The Fascist war bulletin presented the Nazi operations in North Africa as part of a combined Axis air offensive in which, it said, Italian fliers shot down two British Hurricanes and bombed "nuclei of enemy mechanized forces."

The only important action aground Saturday was in East Africa, the communique said, where "hard fighting developed . . . on the northern front between Agordat and Barentu on the lower western plain of Eritrea."

(A British communique said Agordat, an important rail center on the line running to the Red Sea at Masaua, Eritrea's only good port, had been captured and hundreds of Italian prisoners taken.)

Only patrol action was reported on the Albanian front, but the communique said "we captured prisoners and many arms abandoned by one enemy group defeated in recent days and "it was ascertained that the enemy suffered notable losses, 200 dead including three officers being counted in the Tomoizza Valley sector alone."

'Document' Tells Axis Plan To Invade U.S.

By Jack O'Brine

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

Mexico City, Feb. 2.—Recent warnings by United States officials of Axis plans to use force of arms as well as economic penetration and propaganda in the conquest of this hemisphere were believed today by competent American observers in Mexico City to be substantiated in an amazing Nazi "war calendar" which has just arrived secretly from Spain.

Not only did this seemingly authentic document describe in detail the direct action and steps of the totalitarian powers to achieve invasion of the Americas in the next nine months, but it also reveals Soviet Russia to be preparing to attack the United States by way of Alaska, coincident with Nazi and Japanese attacks on Mexico, Central America and South America.

The "war calendar" was brought to Mexico by agents of the Spanish Falange, a Fascist organization, which is directing the Axis propaganda drive against democratic institutions in Latin America. Although several points mentioned in it already have been achieved with startling time accuracy, its general schedule was so fantastic that this correspondent hesitated writing about it until after long talks with naval and military officials and diplomats, who took it seriously.

According to the alleged plan, the first step toward the Soviet Union's invasion of the North American continent would be a Russian-Nipponese pact to liquidate the "China problem" before summer, Russia and Japan jointly taking over the Chinese republic. Timing the next move so as to cause the greatest possible consternation in the United States, Rusia, now virtually dominating the entire Bering Strait with a stronghold at East Cape, would sweep across 56 miles of open water with warships and plans to strike at Alaska, it was said.

The Russian invasion was said to have two main objectives. Once on American soil, the Russians would stir up revolutionary activity in Canada and the United States, ultimately halting aid to Great Britain. At the same time, the presence of the Russians in Alaska would divert part of the United States Navy while Japan attacked Mexico. Previously, internal disorders in Mexico, Barzil, Argentina and Chile would have been fomented.

At the height of the agitation, according to the plan, the Axis powers would lend direct military aid to the Latin American revolutionaries. For example, it was said, German warplanes, based at Dakar, in French West Africa, would spread destruction in Brazil, just four hours flying distance across the South Atlantic, and German and Italian warships would aid in the attack.

One of the few diplomats in Mexico City who chose to comment publicly on the Nazi war calendar and its fantastic scope, Dr. Shao Wa-tan, the Chinese Minister to Mexico, said tonight that he deemed the plan "as logical as it is dangerous." He doubted, however, that Russia would attempt to invade America and expressed the opinion that the Communists were destined to failure in any attempt to split China.

Nazi Invaders To Use Gliders, Expert Says

By the Associated Press

San Fernando, Calif., Feb. 2.—William Hawley Bowlus, glider manufacturer and pilot, predicts Germany will use thousands of 8-man gliders in an invasion of England.

Bowlus has been a soaring pilot since 1910, when, at the age of 14, he built his first glider. Many years later he set a record by remaining aloft in one for nine hours. He aided in production of Charles Lindbergh's trans-Atlantic plane, Spirit of St. Louis, and afterward taught Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh to glide.

"Some time ago," Bowlus said, "I learned that Germany was producnig eight-place gliders at the rate of 400 to 500 a month. She must have many thousands available today."

Here is the way Bowlus pictures a glider invasion of England:

"Starting from France, or even Germany, a powerful bomber will tow a train of ten of the eight-place gliders to an altitude of 20,000 feet.

"Here they will be cut loose and glide silently in formation across the Channel, hundreds at a time.

"Parachute troops are at a disadvantage in that they make good targets while slowly drifting down and they cannot carry full infantry equipment.

"Glider troops, on the other hand, can carry not only machine guns but ample ammunition and food. A single bomber, towing ten gliders, can start an entire machine-gun company of 80 men on a silent cross-Channel glide."

Bowlus says that since 1939, when he learned Germany had 68,500 registered glider pilots and the United States 365, he has contended America's air defense program has a glaring weakness.

Training high school boys to fly gliders, he declares, would be as safe as teaching them to ride bicycles, and when they became expert in it, they could be made competent airplane pilots with a few weeks' additional instruction.

Payments on Debt Halted by Dutch To Foil Germany

The Netherlands Legation announced yesterday that its government had suspended payment of interest on and redemption of its outstanding debt.

Bonds outstanding total 3,000,000,000 guilders (about $1,600,0000,000 by prewar exchange).

It was understood a major objective of the move was to prevent funds from going into German hands.

Nude Beauty Is Drowned On Yacht Party

DOLORES DEL MAR

By the United Press

Los Angeles, Feb. 2.—Police tonight were investigating the mysterious drowning of Dolores Del Mar, beautiful 29-year-old Hollywood show girl, who plunged nude into Los Angeles Harbor while she was a guest aboard a yacht. They believed her death was accidental.

Miss Del Mar plunged from the dock into the harbor after having been pulled from the water on a previous jump by Alice Dere, a friend and also a guest aboard the yacht Com-Adee, owned by Arthur Hamburger.

Miss Dere told police she and Miss Del Mar had gone aboard the yacht for a cruise with Robert Tracy, film actor, and Hamburger, member of a wealthy Southern California family.

This morning, she told police, Miss Del Mar said she was going for a swim and jumped into the oily waters of the harbor fully clad. Miss Dere said she hauled out Miss Del Mar, and took her to a stateroom aboard the 50-foot yacht to change.

Miss Dere then went to the galley to dry her friend's clothes, but when she returned Miss Del Mar had disappeared. She said she rushed to the dock in time to see Miss Del Mar jump into the water.

Miss Del Mar had worked in Hollywood night clubs for several years, coming to the film colony from Detroit, reportedly the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Rohn.

dents' union in Trondheim on November 29 and on Volunteer Stabel, who, during a blackout, was kidnapped in a car, undressed and flogged by Storm Troopers, and other similar events outside of Oslo."

No Provocation

There cannot be any question of provocation, the bishops contend. What is more disquieting than the actual attacks, they continue, is that not only are the culprits not arrested and punished, but "on December 12 the supreme representative of the government gave an order to the police not to interfere but actively to support the Storm Troopers."

Even more dangerous, they add, is the fact that on the morning of the attack on the Oslo school the official governmental organ wrote:

"We will beat them again so that they lose their sight and hearing. Storm Troopers, those beating us once will get it back tenfold."

"If the community accepts such words," the bishops state, "and does not maintain order and uphold right, then it seems that it has broken with the essential principles of lawful existence. If this continues, the church and its servants will be deprived of the ground for guiding conscience in matters of justice and law."

The bishops then point out the withdrawal of the members of the Supreme Court and state that the governmental decree of November 14, "in open conflict with the acknowledged principles of law, abolished the independence of the courts."

Feeling of Insecurity

This has created a deep feeling of insecurity within the church, the bishops say.

"It is the church's role to show what is legitimate, and on this basis to teach every Christian to be loyal to the state," they continue, "and the state's councilor surely would agree with us that the supreme authority of the church has the right and the duty to denounce and ask for orientation in such important questions as the above mentioned.

"The state's councilor will understand that the seriousness of our situation is not diminished by the fact that violence creates violence and a mentality of hatred in the people, especially among the youth."

The bishops finally dwell on the interference by the state with the preachers' work, especially in the abolition of the vow of secrecy.

"This," they say, "is not only granted by law but is the foundation of the church, the Magna Carta of the conscience. To abolish it is to attack the church's lifeline."

No Reply Expected

It is doubtful if the state's councilor will give a satisfactory answer to the bishops' appeal as it is doubtful that they really expect it. But this appeal is the most coherent indictment of totalitarian methods of violence, broken pledges and abolition of all Christian rights and values that has yet been made by the Protestant Church within the sphere of German influence.

It is felt here that such an appeal is certain to create an immense impression not only in Norway but throughout the whole Protestant world. It was said here that it would encourage those, who, like the Norwegians, are already resisting and that it would remind others what the totalitarian "realities" mean in their incompatibility not only with Protestantism but with any form of religion or civilization.

Canada Pledges To Send England Great Army in '41

Ottowa, Feb. 2 (AP).—Movement overseas of a great army of airmen, infantry and armored units in 1941 was promised tonight by Canadian Prime Minister Mackenzie King in a broadwast. As part of Canada's effort to aid in defense of the British Isles, he outlined as objectives for 1941:

Provision of 25 new air squadrons; present strength of 36,000 men in the air training camp to be doubled; increase of the Royal Canadian navy to 413 ships and 26,920 men by March 31, 1942.

Nazis Bungle Fire Bombing, Says Chemist

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 2.—An American scientist said today that Germany's "inept" bombing methods were helping to save English cities from destruction by fire.

By simultaneously using incendiary and demolition bombs, explained Prof. J. Enrique Zanetti, director of the Columbia University Chemical Laboratories, the German air force helped prevent the widespread conflagrations which are "the chief objective of fire warfare."

Dr. Zanetti, an authority on fire warfare and a colonel in the Chemical Warfare Division of the United States Army, added:

"The reason is not far to seek. Since the days of ancient Romans, for example the great fire of Rome under Nero in 64 A. D., conflagrations have been stopped by razing houses in the path of the flames; this the demolition bomb can do to perfection."

Predicting an increase in the use of incendiary bombs, Dr. Zanetti said they could be used as effectively for defense as for offensive purposes.

Britain, he said, could well employ them as weapons to harass landing parties and destroy concentrations of supplies and munitions in invasion ports. He also forecast their increased use against commercial shipping.

Summarizing his research in a 12,000-word summary published by Columbia University, he called for a survey of American cities to plan their protection against warfare by fire and warned that slum areas were most vulnerable.

Life Insurance Builds Morale...Helps Defense

'HINDSIGHT AND FORESIGHT'
a weekly column by
Holger J. Johnson
President Institute of Life Insurance

I SAW some interesting figures the other day.

They showed that since 1900 the number of life insurance owners has increased six and a half times, to reach, in 1940, sixty-five million, approximately half the population of the country. The rate of increase has been about the same as that of telephone subscribers, not as fast as that of automobile owners and domestic electricity consumers.

JOHNSON

Life insurance, the telephone, the automobile and electricity have all come of age at about the same time, at about the same rate. They are now great forces in our national life.

The defense effort we are making, the greatest in our history, will inaugurate a period of business change. This will mean readjustment in many ways, certainly in the ways we spend our money. As more and more factories are given over to defense work, we may not be spending our money on many of the things we are accustomed to spend it on.

What effect will this have on the buying of life insurance? What effect should it have?

It is at times like this that life insurance can render its greatest service to the individual and to the nation.

And its contribution can be twofold. Increased purchases of life insurance would mean, of course, larger reserve funds to be placed in the conservative, basic investments that underlie production of all kinds. It would promote the industrial activity on which the wheels of defense must roll.

It would mean more than that. It would mean another powerful, solid support for the nation's morale—the morale that is born of a sense of security, of the knowledge that behind us stands personal and family protection that we can depend on, always, in our time of crisis.

Makes Copper Indians Yell "Uncle!"

YES, there are two carburetors in Buick's new Compound Carburetion for a very simple reason.

Hooked up the way they are, these two carburetors stretch every copper farther, make it give up more mileage than it ever bought in a Buick engine before.

In fact, every penny stretches over 10% to 15% more mileage than last year. Your dealer has mileage facts and figures from local Buick owners to prove it—but more than that he has a demonstrator handy in which you can see how a really modern car should behave.

How about giving him a ring today and asking for a free trial ride?

U. S. Urges Big Firms to Share Defense Work

An urgent call to all manufacturers holding big defense contracts to share the multi-billion-dollar orders with hundreds of smaller firms through sub-contracts was issued last night by the National Defense Commission.

The commission's labor division warned that a "serious lag" in production and in total conversion of this country into a vast "arsenal for the democracies" would result unless Nation-wide farming out of defense work is arranged quickly.

Commission records revealed that of 511 firms receiving prime contracts of $100,000 or more during the second half of 1940, 114 companies accounted for 55 per cent of the total of $7,026,000,000 involved.

The sub-contracting policy is supported by four main considerations:

That the small businessman is entitled to a share in defense expenditures; that national morale would benefit from fuller participation in defense; that order distribution would avert disruption of community life by "bringing the work to the worker," and that spreading of production is imperative, in any case, to capacity output.

Only a fractional part of the country's productive capacity and its labor strength is available to the large companies which have been awarded the defense program's major contracts thus far, said Morris L. Cooke, management engineer of the commission's labor division under Sidney Hillman.

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, Feb. 2.—Vast amounts of idle plant space is indicated in early returns of a Nation-wide "preparedness through production" survey of industry.

In a preliminary report, Walter D. Fuller, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, disclosed that 3,000 or about 10 per cent of the Nation's manufacturers had replied to questionnaires.

An analysis of the first 100 returns from a typical state, Virginia, showed that of 100 manufacturers, 21 were engaged in filling National Defense orders, either as primary or sub-contractors; 40 reported they could expand their production, the estimates of possible expansion ranging from 10 to 300 per cent; 12 reported they had company-sponsored training programs under which unskilled and semi-skilled workers were being trained; 37 said they had private railroad sidings.

An owner of a chemical company wrote: "We could, in an emergency, go out of business and let our plant be used for some other purpose."

A fish oil processor said his four fishing steamers were available to the Government as mine sweepers if the need arose.

the other for $2,000,000 worth of trucks and automobiles.

However, a further contract for 11,781 trucks, on which the company submitted the low bid, was given to the Fargo Motor Corporation of Detroit, last week on the grounds that Ford had not met the specifications governing labor provisions.

A Trick, C. I. O. Official Says

Detroit, Feb. 2 (AP).—Michael F. Widman, jr., director of the United Auto Workers (C.I.O.) drive to organize Ford Motor Co. workers, tonight branded as "confused and inaccurate" a statement by President William Green, that the American Federation of Labor had organized a "majority" of employes in Ford's Lincoln and River Rouge plants here.

Declaring "there is not even a sign of an A. F. L. drive at Ford's," Widman said that "what Green has in mind. . . . is an effort to sell the A. F. of L.'s services to the Ford Company as a nuisance value in an effort to hinder the C. I. O. campaign. The A. F. L. hopes to give the Ford campaign an atmosphere of jurisdictional labor warfare, which Ford can use to his own advantage. . . ."

[Harry Bennett Ford personnel director, told the United Press he had no knowledge of the A. F. of L. claim. He reiterated that the company "won't be run by any outside organization," adding:

["We'll obey the law but we won't take away the individuality of any worker."—Editor's note.]

Guard units from Silver Spring, Md., and Alexandria, Va., are to be examined at the District Armory Wednesday.

The balance of the approximately 550 officers and men of the 121st Engineers, in charge of Lieut. Col. Julian S. Oliff, in the absence of Col. John W. Oehmann, who is at Fort Meade, will be examined after the Maryland and Virginia units.

The following officers compose the examining board: Lieut. Col. Douglas A. White, Maj. John B. Klopp, Maj. Frederick B. Suttenfield, Maj. Samuel R. Taggart, Capt. O. D. Todd, Lieut. John H. Peacock and Lieut. Robert S. Anderson.

Induction of the Guard units will clear the District of organized militia with the exception of two Naval Reserve battalions and several smaller organizations.

Already in active service are some 800 men of the 260th Coast Artillery, a battalion of about 300 Naval reservists, the Fifth Marine Battalion composed of about the same number of men, and approximately 200 civilian selectees.

America-First Mass Meeting Cheers for Aid To Britain, but Deplores Lend-Lease Plan

VIEWS CHEERED—Among leaders at the "America First" rally were (from left) former Gov. Philip La Follette of Wisconsin, Mrs. Robert A. Taft, Senator D. Worth Clark, of Idaho; Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, and John T. Flynn

The America First Committee held its first mass meeting in the Nation's Capital yesterday, and 1,500 Washingtonians turned out to cheer its antiinterventionist and antilend-lease bill views.

They also cheered repeated expressions of sympathy with England as three nationally known speakers urged all possible aid to Britain—short of war and "within existing law"—at the meeting in the National Theater.

The afternoon's longest applause greeted former Gov. Philip La Follette of Wisconsin when he declared:

"I am not one of those who feels that the fate of the United States is going to be determined by the rise or fall of Great Britain."

La Follette added:

"The American people favor aid to Britain because they sympathize with the English people, not because they think Britain is fighting our war, or because they think we will be attacked if Britain is defeated. We don't have to hide behind the British fleet. America can stand on her own feet."

Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, wife of the Democratic Senator from Missouri, was chairman of the meeting, which was sponsored by the Washington Chapter of the America First Committee. Speakers included Mrs. Robert Taft, wife of the Republican Senator from Ohio; Senator D. Worth Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, and John T. Flynn, columnist and economist.

The national America First Committee, with headquarters in Chicago, is headed by Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co.

La Follette declared that "our way of life is endangered" not from without, but from within. The collapse of the German economic system brought Hitler to power, he said, adding that France, too, was a victim of inner weakness, rather than outward attack.

The real foes of democracy, he said, are the circumstances that keep "one third of the nation ill-fed, ill-housed and ill-clothed."

"I want America to strike a real blow for freedom." La Follette said, "a blow that will do more than anything else to shake the dictatorships of Hitler and Mussolini and Stalin to their foundations.

"Hitler has told the German people that they must chose between freedom and security, between liberty and jobs. We must prove here in America that this is a lie, that we can provide freedom and jobs, too."

He added that his New Deal friends have hinted that they will solve the Nation's economic problems with the new war powers they are getting. The war powers, La Follett said, are being exercised by "Stettinius, Knudsen, Knox, Stimson . . . people who, by background and temperament, belong on the other side of the fence as far as we liberals are concerned."

Mrs. Taft charged that Administration leaders no longer use the phrase "short of war" in referring to aid to Britain, because they are willing to send American boys to fight in Europe.

Flynn declared that the lend-lease bill was part of "a conspiracy" between the governments of the United States and Great Britain to involve this country in the war. He said that the bill permits the President to have munitions transported to Britain in American ships, and added:

"The first American ship that is torpedoed means war. Nothing will get us into the war quicker than blood spilled on the high seas. And it won't be a partial war, or a naval war.

"The British must invade the continent of Europe to win the war. They'll want men and they'll ask for them. Then, what will the Americans do? If they are in the war, they will send men, millions of them, hurled into the horrors of Europe's war to save Europe's empires."

Youth Runs 34 Miles to Show General U. S. Men Are Tough

TED MORTON

Wins $10 Wager and Refutes General's Charge of Softness

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, Feb. 2.—Ted Morton ran 34.09 miles in 13 hours and 29 minutes with an Army general and ten bucks on his mind.

He didn't know if he was going to make it when he started; hadn't been any place when he finished, but as far as Ted Morton—19, lanky and sandy haired—is concerned, Brig. Gen. E. L. Gruber is all wrong.

The Fort Leavenworth commandant made a speech last week saying:

"Our men have been living too soft a life."

Young Morton snorted.

So did two friends, Thomas Deangelo and Alfred Burns, when Morton claimed he could, without special training, run 34 miles in 7½ hours, with one hour of rest for each hour of running.

They had $10 which said it couldn't be done by anyone except a Hopi Indian.

Morton hopped on the wages.

He started his marathon at 8 a. m. yesterday at the Northeast High School's 400-yard track.

Lending moral support was his sweetheart, Miss Betty Grantello. At the end of the first hour she drove him to her home where Papa Grantello massaged his muscles. Throughout the day the youth ran in the odd hours. In the even hours Grantello applied alcohol.

At the end of 148 laps Deangelo and Burns conceded. Morton ran two more laps for good measure; called for a steak dinner and went to collect his $10.

"I feel fine today," said young Morton. "Got up and went to church, too.

House to Begin Lend-Lease Debate

the league "supports this bill because we see in it a way to assist the British by nonviolent means."

On the other hand, Lewis Merrill, president of the C. I. O's United Office and Professional Workers Union, termed the bill a "pure and simple war measure" which would check the advances of the labor movement. He said its passage would "deliver the American people into the hands of our own domestic fascists who day by day are adding to their influence in the Government."

The Keep America Out of War Congress announced in New York, the Associated Press said, that it would hold a "mobilization" in Washington February 21 "to show to President Roosevelt and the members of Congress that the people of the United States are opposed to the lend-lease bill."

Bloom Is Confident

Chairman Bloom of the House Foreign Affairs Committee predicted last night that the House debate would convince members that the bill retains more Congressional control over the national purse strings than the substitute offered by Republicans led by Representative Fish (Republican), of New York. The Republicans' proposal, for a $2,000,000,000 credit to Britain, is based on their stand that powers granted to the President in the pending bill are too broad.

Representative Martin, of Massachusetts, Republican House leader, said no effort would be made to delay a House vote on the bill beyond Friday or Saturday morning. He said, "We all want to get it out of the way this week."

Senator George, of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, holding that the modifications in the bill agreed to by the House committee majority have gone "a long way toward allaying any fears," indicated that he expected the House bill to be the basis for his committee's action after it completes hearings next week.

Allis-Chalmers Refuses Parley On Closed Shop

By the Associated Press

Milwaukee, Feb. 2.—Max W. Babb, president of the strike-bound Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co., today refused a request by R. J. Thomas, international president of the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers Union, that the company executive committee discuss company policy with union leaders.

Babb wrote Thomas that Ed Hall, International U. A. W. A. representative, had asked for the meeting "to persuade the company to change its policy which is opposed to the closed shop."

The strike, which has tied up delivery and production of $40,000,000 in national defense orders and kept 7,000 men out of work, is well into its second week.

"The all-union shop issue," Babb wrote, "has been almost the sole subject of negotiations in many meetings since January 4. In all of these meetings and in my long talk with you on Friday, nothing new on the subject was brought out. Under all of the circumstances it is clear that no useful purpose could be served by the requested meeting."

In the letter, Babb outlined the company policy as follows:

1. No employe's job shall be made dependent upon his or her membership in any labor organization.

2. All of our employes shall be free from intimidation or coercion on company premises either by the union or the company.

3. The company will continue to recognize Local No. 248, U. A. W. A. (C. I. O.), as the exclusive bargaining agency for employes in the production unit of the West Allis works.

["Little or no progress has been made toward a settlement due to the seriousness of the situation," Dr. John R. Steelman, chief of the Federal conciliation service, said in Washington.

["I have asked Msgr. Francis J. Haas and James P. Holmes, Federal mediators, to come to Washington and give us a detailed report on the dispute. The next step will be determined after we have considered the report."]

Willkie Visits Coventry Ruins; Cheers Mayor

By James MacDonald
Copyright by New York Times

Somewhere in England, Feb. 2.—Winding up his rapid tour of England amidst the joyful cheers of crowds, Wendell L. Willkie visited the ruined city of Coventry and the severely bombed industrial center of Birmingham today. Then, after reaffirming his sympathy for the British cause, he spent the rest of the day with Lord Derby, the minister of war in the World War.

Beginning his tour at the ruined Coventry Cathedral, the graceful spire of which is the only remnant still standing, Willkie drove through street after street, each of which was lined on both sides with damaged or completely demolished office buildings, stores, factories and dwellings. At every hand he saw builders and repair workers on duty, despite the Sabbath.

Willkie learned that the thousand homes which had been damaged during the November 14 raid which lasted more than 11½ hours were being rapidly made habitable.

At the city hall he was greeted by the mayor, Alderman J. A. Moseley, and Willkie who was accompanied by Gen. Scanlon and others in an unofficial capacity, told the small gathering:

"All over the world, and I am sure all over the United States, the news of the devastation in Coventry has aroused deep sympathy for your sacrifice. Your sacrifice was worthwhile because of the confidence it gave our people in you.

"Any totalitarian attack, either in America or Britain, will fail against the brotherhood of this country and the United States."

After the Coventry tour Willkie told reporters that the damage he saw equalled "or exceeded" his anticpations.

He said he had not seen the least sign of depression but had been impressed by the general cheeriness and dogged determination of everyone to see things through. He added that the public enthusiasm was greater than he had anticipated.

Willkie said it was a dramatic sight to see the soaring spire of Coventry Cathedral standing untouched by a bomb, with ruins at its feet. He though this was "symbolical."

Willkie's car was guided through badly bombed districts of Birmingham to the city hall, where another huge crowd shouted noisily.

Willkie told reporters he had not "anticipated" the extent of damage that had been done in Birmingham, which he thought was as extensive as that in Coventry. He added that he was impressed anew by the courageous, determined calm and unostentatious spirit of the people.

Tonight Willkie visited Lord Derby, at the latter's seat in western England.

GOP Parley Overlooks Willkie In Voting Verbal Bouquets

By the Associated Press

Omaha, Nebr., Feb. 2.—Disregarding word from National Chairman Joseph Martin that he would "regret" any discussion of Wendell Willkie or the lease-lend bill, Republican leaders from 16 States plunged directly today into consideration of the defeated Presidential candidate and all "touchy questions."

The delegates participated in a closed, four-hour conference, after which Robert Rennick, of Chicago, heading a publicity committee, said:

"Every question, touchy or not, was discussed. No punches were pulled. Willkie, of course, was also discussed."

Asked what the conclusions were regarding Willkie, Rennick answered "Opinion was reserved."

Ben L. Berve, Illinois State chairman, was credited with enlivening today's meeting. At sessions yesterday no discussions of Willkie took place, after Robinson McIlvaine, personal representative of Martin, told the delegates the national chairman would "regret" such action.

At a party breakfast Berve declared, "I move we stop all further discussion until we consider matters of vital importance to the party. If I had any idea there was going to be any gag rule I would have stayed in Chicago."

Berve received a phone call from Martin in Washington asking him not to bring up the Willkie matter, it was reliably reported.

Thomas Blaine, Oklahoma State chairman, presented a resolution urging appointment of a national chairman from the Middle West "where Republicans won the election." Berve seconded the motion. F. L. Gullickson, Wisconsin State chairman, urged delay on the resolution until a meeting March 21 at Indianapolis, where Arch N. Bobbitt, Indiana State chairman, will preside.

Rennick said the vote was 7 to 4 in favor of delaying action.

Another resolution, passed unanimously, expressed confidence in the Republican delegation in Congress, in Martin as minority leader in the House and as national chairman, and in Senator Charles McNary as minority leader in the Senate. Willkie was not mentioned.

Gullickson said there was no definite assurance Martin will go through with his announced intention to resign on March 24 and that "we don't even know what Willkie is going to do."

Oil Companies Told to Settle With Mexico

By Walter Fitzmaurice
International News Service Staff Writer

Determined to remove petroleum as an irritant of Mexican-American relations, the State Department has told the Standard and British Shell oil interests that unless they negotiate a settlement of the controversy arising from Mexico's expropriation of their properties, this Government will do it for them.

Unofficial but reliable sources, in disclosing this last night, said the department was moved also by concern lest a prolonging of the controversy and the "tanker boycott" which accompanies it might cause Mexico to sell its steadily mounting surplus in Japan.

Since the expropriation was accomplished two years ago, Shell and Standard—which together control nearly 80 per cent of the world's tankers and pipelines—have refused to handle any oil from Mexico, contending it is "hot."

Through barter deals arranged by the independent operator, William R. Davis, Mexico disposed of upwards of 10,000,000 barrels to Germany and Italy before the European war began but the British blockade has since cut off this market.

Japan, meanwhile, became an active bidder for Mexican oil, offering among other inducements to build a pipeline from the oil fields to a Pacific port. These offers the Mexicans have thus far declined, sharing with American officials the view that such commerce would engender serious trouble with the United States should it go to war with Japan.

Reliable sources said the State Department's decision to bring pressure on the companies resulted from conversations held by Vice President-elect Henry A. Wallace with Mexican President Manuel Avila Camacho in December. Wallace was chief American delegate at Avila Camacho's inauguration.

Upon his return here, Wallace reportedly told President Roosevelt he had found that Avila Camacho, although resolved never to return the properties, was disposed to make "prompt, just and adequate compensation," insofar as Mexico's economic position permitted.

Although the warning was direct to Standard alone, the department was represented as considering it applicable to Shell also, inasmuch as the two interests have entered a compact to make no settlement independently of each other.

British Goods On Safari Get Warm Welcome

Elsewhere in America, a stern-faced man clicked his heels and shook an iron cross in the faces of three socially prominent American girls now touring the East on a "British Goods on Safari" trailer, it was told yesterday when the party called at the embassy here and received a "well-done" from Lord Halifax.

The trailer, tied to a Rolls-Royce limousine, is full of British tweeds, shoes, scarfs, sweaters and pipes to demonstrate that British goods still are obtainable. Keith Bromley, English businessman in America, and Mrs. Bromley originated the idea for the tour and, they report, the reception "has been terrific, simply amazing," with but three or four exceptions.

In Northampton, Mass., the "stern-faced" man thrust his head in the door and made disparaging remarks about the goods, Bromley recalled. He also grimaced at the British relief buttons worn by the girls.

"Here is my badge," he said, clicking his heels and shaking an iron cross.

In Ardmore, Pa., a man thrust his head in the trailer door and made a rude remark. That night tissue paper was thrust into the gas tank and clogged the fuel line.

Sometimes a few onlookers have hissed. But otherwise "it has been incredible. Merchants have been glad to see us; have given us mailing lists and we've been invited to all manner of parties," said Bromley.

On the pleasant side a Philadelphia policeman came in and became attached to a certain expensive pair of shoes. Considering them possibly beyond his financial range, the girls showed him something more cheaply priced. But persistently he asked if the shoes weren't made in a certain English town. Told that they were he said "I convalesced there during the last war."

He returned on his pay day and bought the shoes.

While in Tuxedo Park, N. Y., the girls sold 30 pairs of $3 socks to one well known business man. Not knowing him they asked for two of his store references, got a big laugh and an invitation to cocktails. Many poorly-circumstanced Scotch people living in America have bought woolens from their native villages, or the villages their parents lived in, they reported.

The girls are Frances M. Martin, of New York; Marjorie Forbes Ferguson, of New York, and Katherine Lea Marshall, now of Philadelphia, but who was born in Charlottesville, Va., and made her debut in Richmond.

"I'm awfully glad to have seen this. I think you've all done awfully well," Lord Halifax told them yesterday.

This week the trailer will be stationed before the British War Relief headquarters at 1018 Connecticut Avenue Northwest between 9:30 a. m. and 6:00 p. m. At night it will be before the James Moss home and shop at 5840 Conduit Road, where it will be illuminated by a searchlight. Moss is related to the proprietors of a London shop that has been destroyed in the air raids.

Defense of Democracy Plan Is Ready for Nation's Schools

The nine-man committee at work here to aid the Nation's schools in mobilizing their resources for defense, has completed its task, and an initial printing of 30,000 copies of its program will be rushed from the press by February 22.

The educational policies commission which undertook the project at the request of the National Committee on Education and Defense, announced yesterday that six teaching units dealing with achievements and values of democracy and the means by which it may be defended, have been prepared.

The 30,000 copies of the materials, for use in junior and senior high schools, will be distributed at the seventy-first annual convention of the American Association of School Administrators, opening at Atlantic City February 22.

Two Washington men, Dr. Chester W. Holmes, assistant superintendent of District schools, and William G. Carr, secretary of the educational policies commission, served on the committee.

More than 3,000 consultants of the commission have been invited to a special convention section to plan use of the teaching materials in a Nation-wide effort to "prepare American youth for the war of ideas which their generation must face perhaps for years to come," it was announced.

"The dictators say that democracy is not working well in the world. What is more, they are doing their best to prevent democracy from working or even continuing to live. They are educating their people to mistrust and hate it," stated Howard E. Wilson, Harvard University professor and coordinator of the project.

"The schools (of the United States) are earnestly endeavoring to play their part in making tomorrow a promise of hope for a free peole under self-government. The purpose of this committee is to aid schools in this program," he said.

Airlines Offer Plan to Ease Pilot Shortage

By the Associated Press

The placing of Army and Navy fliers on air liners for advanced training was reported under official study yesterday as a means of meeting a prospective critical shortage of commercial pilots.

The plan was suggested to the War and Navy Departments by officials of several lines. It involved the use of military fliers only as co-pilots.

The plan was described as an adaptation of an existing arrangement by which Pan American Airways has undertaken the training of some 850 Army cadets in flight navigation.

The air lines were described by some of their own spokesmen and by Government officials as almost "frantic" over the prospective shortage of pilots.

Of some 2,000 commercial transport pilots, about 75 per cent are Army or Navy Reserve officers and official warning has been served that a large percentage of these would be summoned to active duty within a few months.

Viewed as even more serious is that new transport pilots no longer may be recruited from fliers trained by the Army and Navy, thus drying up the principal source of the air lines' supply.

Clarence Fleming, vice president of the Transcontinental & Western System, said the air lines already were training substitutes, undertaking to qualify second pilots for chief pilot rating and taking other limited measures, but that these would not meet prospective needs.

Civil Aeronautics Bureau officials said no Federal regulations stood in the way of the use of military copilots. Members of the Air Line Pilots Association said they "lacked enthusiasm" for the scheme.

Blaisdell, Thomas Tilt At Town Hall

Norman Thomas, many times Socialist Presidential candidate, clashed in verbal combat last night with a Washington representative of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, Donald C. Blaisdell.

The two crossed battleaxes after Thomas' speech on "Aid to Britain" at the Town Hall of Washington in the new Shoreham ballroom.

Blaisdell, who was brought in unexpectedly as a panel member, was asked by panel member Edward Keating, editor of Labor, whether his committee favored turning over part of the United States fleet to Britain, or eventually sending United States troops to Europe.

"I've met 25 of you William Allen Whiters," Thomas interjected, "and I've never yet had a direct answer from any of you on these questions."

"Our object," Blaisdell answered, "is to defeat totalitarianism. If this is to be accomplished we cannot close any doors to aid to Britain."

"Then under the lend-lease bill," Keating pressed, "you would favor turning over part of the American fleet to England?"

"The bill recommended by the House Foreign Affairs Committee," Blaisdell said, "gives the President the authority to make available such defense articles as he thinks advisable, including units of the Navy, at such time as he thinks it necessary.

"He is in consultation with leaders of the Army and Navy, and he is the only one who can know if it is necessary. Who else could make the decision? Not Congress. And certainly not the people. That leaves only the President."

Thomas exploded. "That is the most appalling advocacy of dictatorship I have ever heard," he shouted.

Blaisdell denounced use of the word "dictatorship." He said it is being used to create fear among the people.

"You haven't answered my question about sending American troops to Europe," Keating interjected.

"Yes," Thomas added. "I've been trying to find out for a long time how far your committee, which says it is a front for the Administration, wants this country to go."

In his prepared address, Thomas said "the major factor in the American attitude at present is an irrational fear of physical invasion." Denying that such an invasion would be possible, he asked:

"Isn't it preposterous to believe that any man, or superman, or superdevil will be able to organize a sullen, hungry Europe for an invasion of the United States, when the British, with control of the seas, could not invade a friendly Norway, held by a handful of German troops?"

He added that Hitler and Stalin would probably clash eventually since both believe "in the First Commandment: Thou Shall Have No Other Gods Before Me."

Forum on Fifth Column Turns Into Debate on Dies

A discussion of "Combatting the Fifth Column" became a lengthy dispute over the virtues of the Dies Committee last night on a radio forum broadcast from the Willard Hotel.

"Dies uses a blunderbuss and cares not where his shots may fall," declared Morris L. Ernst, New York lawyer.

"The Dies Committee has done a wonderful job. The whole country knows that . . . They need no defense," retorted John Thomas Taylor, director of the National Legislative Committee of the American Legion. Representative Dies, who was to have taken part in the forum, was absent because of illness.

Representative Voorhis (Democrat), of California, a member of the Dies Committee, said the most effective weapon against the Fifth Column was to keep the spotlight on its activities. This and other things "we are doing now," he said, "but we can perhaps do them better."

As an example of the power of the spotlight against subversive activity, Representative Starnes (Democrat), of Alabama, subchairman of the committee, pointed to "exposure" of the American Youth Congress as "an un-American and subversive group working solely in the interests of the Communist dictator."

The debate became personal at several points, once when Taylor suggested that Ernst report some of his Civil Liberties Union clients to the Dies Committee as Communists.

Voorhis immediately came to Ernst's defense with the declaration that he "is no friend of the Communists; he has been as bitterly attacked by them as anybody I know."

Starnes substituted for Chairman Dies on the program, the American Forum of the Air, broadcast over a Nation-wide M. B. S. network. Dies is ill at his home here with influenza.

Benefits Seen Despite Food Export Drop

Despite a 23 per cent decline in American food exports in 1940, there were some bright spots in the war's dislocation of foreign trade, the Commerce Department reported yesterday.

The dairy industry in this country was favorably affected by sharply reduced imports of European cheese, and the removal of the Netherlands from competition for world markets for canned milk. The meat packing industry gained from reduced imports of some meat products, notably canned hams from Poland, though its loss of markets in England and in other countries seriously affected the industry.

Entirely favorable effects of 1940 developments were felt by the fish canning industry here, with an increased demand from England and elimination of Norway as a source of supply.

Highly favorable results were encountered also by the corn products industry with Britain buying substantially larger amounts of corn syrup and corn starch, along with increased purchasing of corn in the form of grain.

Refined sugar exports increased more than a third over 1939, with Finland and Greece buying heavily.

Cumulative canned vegetable exports for the 12 months were slightly larger than for 1939, with British purchases of baked beans, soups and tomatoes early in the year offsetting reductions in foreign sales of asparagus.

All together, food exports declined from $312,000,000 in 1939 to $240,000,000 in the following year, while imports of food products declined 7 per cent from $604,000,000 to $563,000,000.

Halifax Talk May Clarify War Aims

By J. C. Stark
Associated Press Staff Writer

Viscount Halifax, the British Ambassador, has arranged to make his first public speech in the United States this month and it may rank as one of the important declarations of British policy on the war and ultimate peace.

The speech is set tentatively for about February 20 before the Pilgrims Society in New York, the American branch of the organization before which Lord Halifax made his farewell address in England with Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Sources close to the Ambassador indicated that in the forthcoming speech he may deal with Britain's war and peace aims in greater detail than has any other British official.

Since his arrival, Lord Halifax has declared that Britain's first war aim to win the war and the first peace aim to reconstruct the world, with the help of other nations, so as to avoid another war.

But Lord Halifax, cognizant of public demands in both the United States and Great Britain for a more comprehensive statement of the British government's views on post-war adjustments in event of a British victory, has intimated that he would give this soon in a public speech.

Senators Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, and Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, have introduced a resolution in the Senate calling for a statement of the war aims of the belligerents and asking whether any secret treaties exist for territorial distribution after the war. Lord Halifax has declared his government had no such treaties.

Nazis Train in 'Hothouses' For Expected Africa Campaign

Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, Sweden, Feb. 2.—The Berlin correspondent of the newspaper Tidningen describes today how German troops destined to fight in Africa are being trained in special "hot-houses" near Berlin and in Thuringia.

This correspondent says it is no longer a secret that the German general staff has a "Plan South" evolved under the direction of Col. Georg Tshirmer, the specialist in Oriental and African problems.

Thousands of German soldiers have been examined by special tropical doctors and have been vaccinated against malaria, cholera and smallpox. They have also submitted to extensive training in "hot-houses."

The "hot-houses" are chambers 100 meters long and 40 to 60 meters wide where the temperature is maintained at 40 degrees Celsium (140 degrees Fahrenheit) and the humidity of the atmosphere is often varied.

The soldiers are expected to work in this atmosphere 48 hours with only half a bottle of tepid water. During tests, experiments were also carried out with special kinds of tropical foods the production of which was started last November by factories which have already created foods for parachute troops and Stuka pilots.

Officers have been given special training in mountain and desert warfare and many instructors were previously official observers with the Italian troops in Africa.

Col. Tshirmer's headquarters was established in the fishing town of Pillkoppen, and during last autumn troops equipped with planes, cars, and caterpillars held maneuvers on the downs near Kurische Nehrung in East Prussia.

The pilots used are sportsmen who before the war made trips over Africa, and on the air staff can be found the well-known Australia flier, Hans Bertram.

Church Losing In Japan, Says Ex-Missionary

Christmas in China are taking advantage of the war situation to strengthen the church, but in Japan the outlook for the church is darker, the Rev. J. Hubard Lloyd, of Chatham, Va., former missionary, said at a service in Washington Cathedral yesterday afternoon.

It was a special missionary service of the Northern Convocation of the Diocese of Washington. The congregation of approximately 1,100 included members from 26 churches and chapels in Maryland. A massed choir of 228 voices from these churches sang missionary hymns.

Mr. Lloyd, who returned in July, 1939, from 30 years' service as a missionary in Japan, said grimly: "We are now practically prohibited from sending missionaries there. Our last two representatives are just leaving and have closed up the work there.

"There is a terrible danger that the Christians in Japan will be compelled to compromise, to accept the tenets of militarism," he said.

"To me the hardest thing to bear is this fact—during the last few months when this tremendous pressure has been brought against the church, none of our Japanese Christian clergy or laity has defied the dictates of the militarists in Japan. They have been compelled to acquiesce. Yet I am convinced that the church will carry on," he added.

In contrast, he said, "the effect of the war on China and the church is going to be splendid. Christianity is going to have an opportunity in China such as never before.

"Our missionaries and Chinese Christians have done such splendid work in rescuing and in witnessing, that today non-Christian Chinese look up to Christians as their natural leaders. In China, the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church."

The Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, D. D., dean of the Cathedral, welcomed the representatives of the various churches to the Cathedral as "the parish church of the diocese."

Happy Marriage Rules Prescribed For Newlyweds

Advice on how to be happy in marriage by couples who have been married for 25 years was relayed to "recently-weds" by the Rev. Leslie L. Bowers, pastor of Fifteenth Street Christian Church, at a special service in their honor last night.

The precepts included: Have a definite understanding about finances from the beginning; keep Christian principles as guiding factors; provide a home for yourself, however humble; allow a reasonable freedom for both husband and wife; stop arguments before they reach the point of hostility; keep up the courtship after marriage; remember the home to keep it holy.

Eighteen of the couples whom the Rev. Mr. Bowers has married in his nine-year pastorate here were seated in a special section at the front of the church. At the end of the service, he had them repeat their marriage vows. Other couples, whom he married during a former pastorate here some 25 years ago, were in the congregation.

Episcopal Group Names Officers

Newly elected officers of the auxiliary to Grace Episcopal Church, Silver Spring, Md., were announced yesterday as follows:

Mrs. Marshall Lehman, president; Mrs. L. M. Christie, vice president; Mrs. Florence Lincoln, recording secretary; Mrs. John J. Turner, treasurer; Mrs. Leo Zwissler, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Maude Harmon, devotional chairman, and Mrs. Christie, supply chairman.

Chairmen named are Miss Alice Jones, Christian social relations and church periodical club; Mrs. Lehman, educational secretary; Mrs. A. B. Clarke, united thanks offering; Mrs. George Milne, advance work and program, and Mrs. Paul Fonda, magazines.

Studebaker Tells Hebrew Union 'Spiritual Program' for Schools

John W. Studebaker, United States Commisisoner of Education, declared yesterday that American public schools "must be depended upon to make essential contributions" to the "spiritual preparedness of the Nation."

He addressed representatives of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations at a luncheon gathering of their Mid-Atlantic Regional Convention at the Mayflower Hotel.

The public schools' program he outlined follows:

1. Greater emphasis on the development of a genuine understanding of our basic freedoms as these are embodied in our Constitution and its Bill of Rights.

Cultivate Tolerance

2. The cultivation of racial and religious tolerance in youth.

3. Afford young people needed training in organizing and presenting facts which bear upon debatable issues.

4. Instill a genuine respect for those qualities of character and competence which are indispensable requisites in all citizens in a democracy.

5. Help to deepen the conviction that our country can offer the possibility of an abundant life to everyone who will participate actively and honestly and cooperatively in seeking a solution to our common problems.

6. The development in young people and many adults of those essential practical knowledges and skills without which, at this time especially, democracy cannot be effectively defended against brute force and aggression.

100 Attend Sessions

More than 100 representatives of temples in Washington, Maryland, Virginia, Delaware and Pennsylvania attended the day-long session. The Washington Hebrew Congregation was host to the group.

The Washington Plan, "a program for mobilizing the spiritual defenses of the American community," was presented by four lay leaders of the Washington Congregation as a model for other communities.

Mark Lansburgh described the regular weekly broadcast.

"The radio program normalizes the idea that democracy means not only tolerance but also the free interchange of all faiths," Lansburgh declared.

Participation in service clubs as "helping to mould the community ideal," was discussed by Herbert J. Rich. The Clergyman's Institute, introduced in Washington by the Hebrew Congregation, was termed "a lesson in the effort to revitalize the ministry with the idea of the importance of Judaism as a forerunner of Christianity," by Joseph D. Kaufman. Walter Tobriner discussed the Committee on Religious Life for the Nation's Capital. William L. Bush presided.

Morning Symposium

A morning symposium on "Revitalizing the Synagogue Service" was held under the chairmanship of Dr. Bernard A. Baer. Taking part were Maurice Jacobs, of Philadelphia; Cecil Schwartz, of Harrisburg, Pa; Mrs. Calvin Leichtman, of Hazleton, Pa., and B. A. Finkel, of Wilmington, Del.

Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, of Temple Emmanuel, New York City, spoke at a banquet held last night at the Mayflower. Alvin L. Newmyer acted as toastmaster.

House Committee May Act Today On Debt Limit Bill

The House Ways and Means Committee expects to recommend formally today legislation to increase the public debt limit to $65,000,000,000 from the present $49,000,000,000 to enable the Treasury to finance the huge armament program.

Secretary Knox was called as the first witness at the opening of hearings today by the House Naval Appropriations Subcommittee on the Navy's request for $3,550,490,080 in cash and contractual authority to carry on the fleet building program during the year starting July 1.

The House Military Committee asked Undersecretary Robert P. Patterson and other representatives of the War Department to appear today for questioning concerning the Army's construction and purchasing programs, and its labor policies.

Donovan's Visit Inspires Turkish Offer of Solidarity

Istanbul, Turkey, Feb. 2 (AP).—Turkish newspapers expressed concern today over the possibility that German troops, now concentrated in Hungary and Rumania, were on the verge of an offensive in the Balkans.

One newspaper urged "unification of American and Turkish aims and desires."

The newspaper Catan, commenting on the visit to Ankara of Col. William J. Donovan, official United States observer, said "there are two duties of all peoples who believe in lasting peace and democracy: One to stand together against repetition of aggression; two, to organize a new world based on principles of humanity and formed without an element of revenge.

"The colonel can take this message to America from Turkey—'Turkey is prepared for continuous collaboration upon both these aims with the American nation.'"

Court May Give Browder Decision Today

By the Associated Press

An eight-judge Supreme Court may pass today on the conviction of Earl Browder, 1940 Presidential nominee of the Community Party, on a charge of wilfully using a passport obtained by false statements.

A vacant chair on the tribunal was caused by the retirement of Justice James C. McReynolds, who will be 79 years old today. Well informed sources say Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, has been chosen for the position. President Roosevelt said he had decided upon an appointment but that it would not be announced right away.

A maximum of 37 decisions are possible when the justices reassemble after a two-week recess devoted to writing opinions.

Other leading cases that may be decided today involve:

1. Constitutionality of the Federal Wage-Hour Law, which fixes minimum pay and a maximum work week for employes in interstate industries.

2. Whether officers of a labor union are subject to trial under the Sherman Anti-Trust Law for activities growing out of jurisdictional controversy with another union.

3. The validity of injunctions restraining unions from picketing Chicago stores selling the product of a "cut-rate" dairy and from picketing a Chicago beauty parlor which did not employ union members.

4. Contempt of court convictions of the Los Angeles Times and of Harry Bridges, West Coast labor leader, growing out of comment on court cases prior to a final settlement.

5. Validity of an injunction temporarily restraining Gov. Leon C. Phillips and other Oklahoma officials from interfering, by use of troops and a State court suit, with work on the $20,000,000 PWA-financed Grand River hydroelectric project.

Too Lenient

A weak link in the chain of law enforcement in the District is brought to public attention by the Washington Criminal Justice Association in a study of sentences imposed by two judges in the District Court during the last three months of 1940. A growing tendency toward leniency is noted in cases involving serious offenses which is especially shown in the use of probationary and concurrent sentences.

Actually one judge put on probation 44 per cent of the criminals going before him for sentence, and another 33 per cent. Fourteen persons guilty of robbery were released on probation, and a large number similarly were saved from prison after pleading guilty or being convicted of housebreaking, larceny, gambling, automobile stealing, assault with a dangerous weapon and similar crimes. In some instances criminals with long police records were released on probation. Theoretically, of course, these individuals are under supervision, but since one probation officer often has to look after 200 or even more probationers, the possibilities of abusing this practice are clearly evident. The association's study, moreover, shows that many of the jail and prison sentences meted out are very lenient in comparison to the seriousness of the offenses committed. The practice of permitting sentences for several offenses to run concurrently seems to be particularly short-sighted. For such a practice creates an impression that punishment will be no more severe for many offenses than for one.

No doubt the court will appreciate this critical review of its activities, for judges ought to consider the general effects of the sentences they hand down as well as the results in each case. The association points out that "each year more than 1,000 felons are returned to the city of Washington by the courts, the parole and prison officials." Moreover, it finds that about 50 per cent of all felons have served previous prison sentences. Where lenient treatment contributes to the rehabilitation of law-breakers no further justification for it is needed. But the courts ought to make sure that they don't encourage lawlessness by reducing penalties to a point at which crime appears profitable.

Births Of A Nation

A bulletin lately issued from the Bureau of the Census discloses two very interesting but on the whole disconcerting aspects of the population problem in the United States. For one thing, in the past 50 years the median age of Americans has risen from a little over 21 years to about 29 years. Thus we are well on the way to becoming a nation in which middle-aged men and women will predominate—something which can scarcely fail to produce a profound alteration in the national psychology. The other item is that, for what is probably the first time in our history, there is an almost even distribution of population by sex. That is to say, the ratio of males to females is now only 101.1 to 100 as compared to 102.5 to 100 ten years ago, and about 105 to 100 some twenty years ago. Thus the point is also close at hand when there will be more women among us than men, a prospect which may or may not support those critics who complain of "an increasing feminization of our culture."

The rise in the median age of Americans is easily traceable to the concurrent declines in both birth and death rates. So is the shrinking ratio of males to females, though here the stoppage of net immigration is also a factor of great weight, since male immigrants have naturally outnumbered females. Both phenomena are pretty general in most other countries, too. Almost everywhere in the world, to be sure, the number of males born exceeds the number of females. But because the female is the hardier of the species, this disproportion is not maintained among the adult population. As the Census Bureau points out, the older the population, the smaller the ratio of males to females "because the mortality rates among males are higher." Moreover, an aging population necessarily means fewer women of child bearing age. Already in the United States the median age of women (now 28.9) has passed that maximum fertility which is commonly placed between 16 and 24 years. Finally, as the ratio of males declines, the proportion of unmarried women necessarily increases.

Not much, however, seems to have been said about these tendencies at the annual conference of the Birth Control Federation in America the other day in New York. At any rate, nobody seemed much perturbed about them. On the contrary, the president, Dr. Alan Valentine, discussed the contribution that birth control would make to the national defense, since "mechanical weapons have made the value of armed men depend not on their quantity but their quality." Let us hope he is right in assuming that higher quality will come with lower quantity, for the decline in quantity appears almost certain.

War Aims

A year ago there was a general questioning as to the seriousness with which the British were embarking upon the war against Naziism. Senator Borah was so dubious that he dubbed the conflict "a phony war." This is exactly what the Russians thought. To them the war was merely a gigantic shadow play out of which would emerge a British-German alliance against Soviet Russia—the dreaded counterrevolution.

No longer is there any such questioning. Nothing "phony" can be discerned in the British war-making since the British rose as one man to the challenge which the Nazis launched with their May 10 blitzkrieg against the Low Countries. Not only the American people, but the entire world realizes that Winston Churchill stands for the spirit of war. Like Clemenceau in World War I, Winston Churchill was called to power at a desperate hour in his country's history, and the pith of the Churchillian program is the four-word declaration of the French Tiger: "I am making war." This is matter for American comfort. For it is upon the sustenance of this war cause that our whole national policy is now based. If the British were to lie down on the job, we should be in a fix only a little less perilous than they, since a Nazi victory would find us way behind on our defense schedule, particularly in the building of our two-ocean navy.

And yet those who were once in doubt as to British seriousness in war-making have now become querulous lest the British should be giving all their thoughts to war-making! They are asking for an outline of Britain's war, meaning peace, aims. For our part we could hope that Britain would be singleminded for the ordeal to come. There can be only one war aim, and that is, in the President's words, that Britain should prevail. But, for the benefit of those who feel that the British aren't thinking deeply upon the problems of a post-war settlement, it may be said that British periodical literature is full of such preoccupations. For Britain the writers are dreaming and planning a nation nearer to the heart's desire; for Europe they are envisaging federations or unions, so that the continent will not again be either riven by pathological nationalism or endangered by a tyrant's lust for conquest. It is amazing, indeed, that so much thought is being given to post-war readjustment when the nation is harnessed to total defense.

Nobody can say whether this constructive outlook will outlast the kind of dreadful assault which is now in course of preparation. But the odds are all in favor of such a supposition. Hate in Britain so far has not extended to the German nation. Britons still are able to single out what Westbrook Pegler calls the Thing from the Nation, even amid a rain of bombs dropped by Germans in Nazi uniform. One reason is Trevelyan's: the British are warlike, but not militarist. Another is the awareness throughout the length and breadth of the land that the post-Armistice years were barren of achievement in building up a live-and-let-live international society. A third reason is that in this war the British are fighting with no coequal ally whom they must keep allied on the territorial and other promises which disfigured World War I. These are all hopeful signs that the chance will not be wasted this time on schemes of reparation instead of reconstruction.

But from our immediate point of view the war aim which matters most is already declared by the British. This is to fight with all their being against the achievement of the Nazi war aim—the enslavement of a whole continent and the transformation of a slave continent into a springboard to world power.

Lunar Strategy

The theory of invasion at high tides is based on the necessity of landing high up the beaches. When the barges touch bottom, it is important to an invader that his men, tanks and artillery have to contend with as little as possible of mud and sand. Long periods of daily tides, moreover, help to speed reinforcements. It so happens that in the late winter and early spring the influences of the moon's distance and phases combine in such a way as to wash the Dover cliffs, the Thames estuary and Southampton with high waters for as many as ten days at a time. If we grant that the Germans must act quickly to counter growing American aid to England, the tides beginning about the twelfth of this month would provide a likely occasion for their supreme effort. There is another point to bear in mind, and that is the peculiarities of the tides at different places. On the southern coast of England, past the Isle of Wight west to Poole Entrance, the contour of the land is such as to cause a double high tide—the second following the first in from two to three and a half hours. The proximity to the great naval base of Southampton may be a deterrent, but if we take into consideration the tide alone, there might be a tremendous advantage in capitalizing the local phenomenon to land a large initial striking force.

Knife And Noose

In a radio address last Friday, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, commander of the "Free French" forces, called upon the French armies in North Africa to throw off their "shameful inertia" and help "complete the conquest of Italian Libya." The appeal was well-timed. Discontent in French North Africa is on the increase as the economic situation in that area goes from bad to worse. The defeatism engendered by the belief, once widespread throughout the French Empire, that Great Britain would prove just as easy a victim of the Nazi war machine as was France is vanishing. The brilliant succession of victories won by Gen. Wavell's forces in Egypt and Libya has left its mark on the attitude of soldiers and civilians in French North Africa. Many there have begun to wonder whether the time has not come to throw in their lot with de Gaulle and Great Britain.

So dangerous did the French authorities in North Africa consider the de Gaulle appeal to be that Gen. Maxime Weygand found it necessary to broadcast an answer to it within 24 hours. Inveighing against "false rumors and loose criticisms," he urged the French African army to pay no attention to appeals that these troops should enter the war against Italy. That struggle, he said, "was ended by France with the conclusion of the armistice." Its renewal would only mean "the destruction of France and peril for all who took part in this undertaking."

However, this plea of Weygand's may have a double significance. If it took direct issue with those urging the reentry of the French African army into the struggle against Germany it was, indirectly, but not less clearly, a warning to Berlin of the danger of attempting to force France into becoming an ally of the Third Reich in the struggle against Great Britain. And while he did not say so, it is apparent that a move of that kind might cause all French North Africa to flare up into revolt.

Thus, in his dealings with Adolf Hitler, Marshal Petain continues to hold a trump card. The head of the Vichy government is being subjected to very considerable pressure from Berlin. Proof of this can be seen in the denunciation of the Vichy regime by the pro-Nazi French press in Paris and the clamors for the return to the government of Pierre Laval, whom Petain ousted as vice premier some time ago. With Germany preparing an all-out attack on Great Britain, it is clear that Hitler wants German-French relations regularized so that France will be no obstacle but an aid to the achievement of his ambitions by allowing her ports to be used by Nazi submarines and her fleet to be placed under Germany's direction. Yet, if the noose is being tightened around the neck of France, North Africa provides Petain with the knife with which that noose may be cut if it gets too tight.

We Can Afford Music

Today Washingtonians are invited to do themselves a favor. They are asked to give to a fund from which the contributors will derive direct benefits—the sustaining fund of the National Symphony Orchestra. For one need not be ill or underprivileged to draw the dividends of music. We know there are many demands on the generosity of District residents, that Washingtonians respond every year to distress calls from all manner of organizations. Nor do we deny that the cost of living is on the rise; or that the national defense effort is reflected on our tax returns. Shall we, therefore, deny support to those things which buoy our spirits in these trying times? There is the example of the British. Their lot surely is worse than ours, yet when the London Philharmonic recently appealed for funds, they gave plentifully rather than let the orchestra disappear from their lives. The British decided they could afford it. Can we? Of course we can!

PREMONITION

The old cow felt the thaw last night, and stood,
A drooling silver string hung from her chin,
Forgetting the pail hung on its peg of wood,
Forgetting the hay that she was standing in.
She flattened her ears and stretched her neck so long
She looked as foolish as her aimless daughter:
The noise she made was far from being song,
But she had heard the brook's releasing water
Under the broken ice, and felt the change.
She stood there, great eyes rolling and knees gone weak,
But no one felt like laughing at her: strange,
But no one seemed to want to smile or speak.
We only paused for a moment; laid a hand
On the wasted flank, on the dusty, quivering brand . . .

Foreign Trade

Now that the possibilities of a German invasion of the Western Hemisphere have been debunked, the cry goes up that there is not room in this world for Hitler and us both. The reason? Trade! This lends itself to debunking even better than the invasion scare. Our trade with Europe and Africa in 1939 amounted to $1,401,000,000 in exports and $894,000,000 in imports. Let's assume all kinds of preposterous things now and suppose that Hitler, having won the war, having subjugated the passive resisters to his rule, and having quickly organized Europe and Africa into a great economic cartel, decides to trade with the West only on his own terms. We repay him in kind and ships stop crossing the Atlantic Ocean. For us this is a $2,000,000,000 interruption to normal trade. For Hitler, runs the argument, it is merely economic warfare, for which Germany is "geared."

It cannot be argued that this conflict would withold vital materials from us; we could obtain them elsewhere. But let's just admit an improbable contraction of our trade to the extent of two billions. How does this loss compare with the cost of underwriting a British victory—not counting such elements as loss of American lives, totalitarianism at home, and the debasement of morality consequent upon war? The last war cost us at least thirty billions, and a new adventure into the Wonderland of Europe would unquestionably cost more. But let's just prorate our $2,000,000,000 trade loss over the 15 years guaranteed by a thirty billion war bill. Do the interventionists look out upon those 15 years and predict a growing, and expanding Hitler? The figures argue that if any "appeasing" is to be done, Hitler, not the United States, will have to engage in it. For Europe is, and must be, an area in greater need of trade than the United States. Today, however, our interventionists are not interested in figures. With them it's "Down with tyranny and damn the cost!" This smelling out of tyranny is great sport. The only trouble with it is that the quarry must always be dressed in a foreign soldier suit.

Why Do We Dally?

Isolationists cry peace but there will be no peace until Hitler runs his course. We must aid Britain with cash and in months, not years, with planes and ships and arms. Why do we dilly and dally? Ten nations already have dallied. What do isolationists wish? What would they have? Is money so dear? Do our hearts not beat? Have we lost our courage and bravery? Forbid it Almighty God! There is but one course America should take—preserve our liberty unto the death.

JOHN D. NEFF,
Secretary, National Young Democratic Clubs of America.
Washington, Feb. 1.

The People's Will For Aid To Britain

Any United States Senator or Congressman who delays legislation for aid to Britain or for speeding up our own defense program is unwittingly or intentionally playing into the hands of the sinister forces that are seeking to destroy the Nation. This very delay may spell the ruin of the country. For the past several years we have been told and we have seen in the events of Europe that in the modern method of warfare time is the most important element. A few months, a few weeks, or even a few days spelled the course of events and the issues of war in more than one nation.

These men are not representing the American people and they know that they are not. When both political parties adopt the same plank in their platform it is prima facie evidence that the leaders know that the overwhelming sentiment of the people is expressed in that plank. Both parties declared for defense and for aid to Britain—each used it for political capital because they knew that the intelligent, loyal citizens approved.

Then why will these men set themselves against the will of the people? It is now a matter of little importance. If it only involved our money, our industries, our business, our institutions, our homes, we might tolerate it, but it not only involves all of these but also our happiness, our liberty, our lives, and our children.

Here is the treachery of long debate. It is not like Nero—playing the fiddle while Rome burned. It is playing with time which gives opportunity for our enemies later to burn a thousand cities. The people should write their men to stand aside and let the American citizens have their way.

What kind of intelligence and judgment do men have who oppose furnishing Britain the materials with which her men may fight for their liberty and our liberty 3,000 miles away, because Britain cannot pay cash? Who is going to pay for these same materials if we keep them here to fight the war over here instead of over there? And who will have to fight with these materials over here? Would it not be better to let Britain fight with these implements over there than for our boys to fight with them over here? Who, after all, is it that wants to see our boys kept out of the war? The only sure way to keep our boys out of war is to be sure Britain wins.

But you think this aid to Britain will bring on war with America! If you think Germany would attack us while she is at war with Britain, don't you think she will make war on us if Britain loses the war? Don't you know that military Germany has declared that America is the arch-enemy of Germany because we turned the course of the last war against her? Who for one moment thinks the totalitarian powers are not planning to make war on us? On what other basis will you explain the Fifth Column and their organization schemes and plans right here among us? What other reason have all of these secret agents?

Will you also explain why the Axis powers are so pleased with the position taken by men in the Congress who oppose or delay our preparedness program? Why do the speeches of these men delight Berlin and Rome? Just what is the difference in thought, argument and position between these men and those who are known to be the most dangerous enemies of the country?

Have you ever thought why the talks and addresses of the President greatly offend Berlin and Rome whereas those of his opponents are very pleasing and acceptable to the same powers? It seems to me if I knew that my speeches and interviews against the President and his policies were so pleasing to certain foreign groups I should know and I would think that the people would know which side I am on and I should wonder what the people think of me. I think I should stand on the American side or resign, or keep still.

MATTIE B. NEFF.
Takoma Park, Md., Jan. 30.

Of Isolationists

The politician has been the bane of our Government since its history began. His make-up is a combination of ego, greed, jealousy and an incontrollable lust for the spotlight and the headlines. He instituted witchcraft in the 1690's. In 1876 he was a Tory, a carpetbagger in 1865, and in 1919 he became the Isolationist.

At the end of the World War, Woodrow Wilson set up the machinery to end all wars. His League of Nations was constituted to settle all differences by arbitration and provided for an international police force to enforce its decisions. It had its faults of course, but they were of secondary importance to the benefits the League endowed and these faults could have been ironed out as time progressed and experience profited. The experiment was at least worth a trial, but the Isolationist would have none of it and led by a few ringleaders (one of whom is still in office), whose bellows could drown the voices of the more conservative and progressive members, they were able to defeat the necessary two-thirds majority for ratification by a minority vote of 35 to 49. As a result of their actions, we have a world in chaos and we in the United States are spending something over $33,000 a minute in a feverish attempt to arm ourselves against an aggression which threatens in the offing.

We now have a new group of the same caliber embodied with the same characteristics and bent on the same course of destruction of any legislation that would insure the life of democracy and hope of a peaceful world.

In spite of the lessons of Europe and Hitler's threats in his December 10 speech, they follow this course and who can help but wonder just where their sympathies lie. They have fought every act recommended for our national defense. They delayed the conscription bill for a longer period of time than it took Hitler to conquer Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France. They have done everything in their power to divide the Nation when unity is imperative. Whether they intend so or not, they are doing more to destroy our national defense program than Hitler's paid agents.

Let us indorse the President's program unanimously in this critical period and let us inform these obstructors that their actions are neither progressive nor patriotic and that we condemn them to the letter.

W. J. BROOKS.

Plea In Verse

Dear Lord, they talk of war,
These mighty men of state;
Have they forgotten days of youth
Before they tasted hate?

See, Lord, I am so young,
I like to laugh and run,
To work and play and sing
And rest when day is done.

I like to walk at even
And watch the stars above;
Have these men never known
A young girl's precious love?

Lord, let them remember
What hell a war can bring;
How love gives way to bitter hate
And youth forgets to sing.

So, Lord, I beg of thee
Peace to this world please, give,
For, see, I am so young,
And, Lord, I want to live.

They Die But Once

CUTTING THROUGH clouds of tobacco smoke the yellow glare of the big bulbs beat down on the pit's earthen surface, a half-hundred men stood about or lounged on the benches, and in front of the pot-bellied stove an emaciated hound slept peacefully. The time—a cold, blustery night; the place—somewhere in Maryland.

Two men came out of an adjoining room, each with a gamecock in his arms. The birds' feet and legs were unusually large, their combs, trimmed close when they were mere cockerels, imparted a martial appearance, and in their eyes was the look of eagles.

"Four pounds, five ounces," said the referee, and the black cock's handler lifted him from the scales. A gray battler was next weighed. "Four pounds, five ounces for him, too," declared the referee. "Take 'em in the gaffing room and attach the irons. Step lively now—we have a long program ahead."

They were preparing for another battle in the old weather-beaten barn. The last set-to had suddenly ended when one of the contestants staged an ignominious act. Unable to take the punishment which his Winchester, Va., opponent was inflicting, he turned and ran out of the pit. Caught and again presented, he quit like a common dunghill fowl . . . the coward dies many deaths, the brave die but once. The losers—who refrained from booing—paid their bets, however, and now all hands eagerly awaited the return of the gray and the black.

There is no nonsense about cockfighting. No alibis, no ballyhoo, no programs and no form charts. Not present either is the ubiquitous promoter introducing champs or near champs, and no "mike" has been set up over which the winner is urged to crow a few cockle-doodle-does to his portly old mother scratching in the straw down on the farm. You eat home-cured ham sandwiches doused in homemade chili sauce. Scarlet-clad foxhunters and well-dressed folk from official Washington josh truck drivers and farmers, rivermen and chicken raisers and are joshed in turn. Cocks have been sent in from Pennsylvania and Virginia to compete with the Maryland birds, and altogether the main is quite a party.

Once more the grim-faced handlers step into the pit. Now the gray and the black are armed with steel gaffs—"irons" in the vernacular. For the feathered principals it's life or death, for the handlers it's a test of "nursing" their charges through to victory. Betting of the man to man variety proceeds good naturedly. The sums range from the hundreds to a single dollar.

"Heah's two bucks on the gray!" challenges a hawk-faced tobacco cropper. "Any takers?" Long-haired and hump-shouldered, the cropper sprawls in his seat and shifts his cud contentedly.

"Man, you've made a bet," responds an oyster tonger. Six feet two inches tall, clad in mariner's jacket, gum boots and bell-shaped trousers, he stands erect as a sapling oak, has blue eyes and black hair—mops of it. Having sold his cargo, he has kept his boat tied up at Washington, and is out for a fling before returning down Potomac. He dares the cropper to double the bet. . . . Here's real wealth and the sporting spirit.

"Big boy, jes' to prove I'm game," retorts the cropper, "that's O. K. by me. Four dollars is a lot of money, but I'm goin' to stay with you." Snapping his gallus and expectorating copiously, he hits the sandbox plumb in the center. "Last night I had a dream about a gray mule and tonight I jes' gotta bet the gray cock."

A chilly blast sweeps the place; someone pokes the stove and throws in a chunk of wood.

"Steady your birds, gentlemen," says the referee. He holds a stop-watch and ten seconds pass. "Fight," comes the order, and as the handlers step back the cocks fly at each other. A flutter of wings and the dull thud of battering bodies. They meet high, they meet low, they slap and they jab.

No one says a word. With immobile faces every man's eyes follow the warriors as they advance, rise like fluffy bundles, and fall back.

The black cock floors the gray and the latter's handler demands a count (One of three periods allowed for a comeback).

"One, two, three . . ." drones the referee, and the gray, not resuming the attack before "ten," concedes a point to his opponent.

Here each handler recovers his bird. With a chiropractor's skill the men knead bodies and legs. Again the referee orders cocks set down.

The gray takes steel aplenty. He seems to offer little resistance. In one sally the black hits him so hard that he crumples. Calling for another count, the handler picks up the wobbly cock and plays his last card. Holding the bird's head to his mouth, he sucks out a quantity of blood. The maneuver momentarily revives the gray, who, when savagely attacked, is so weak that he barely gets his feet off the ground. Nevertheless, he meets his confident antagonist with both irons to perform an invisible operation on the windpipe, which instantly reducing the black to a mass of inert feathers, ends the fight. Standing over the body, the gray flaps his wings and crows feebly.

"Pay me!" shouts the cropper above the murmurs of the astonished crowd. "Who you betting in the next battle?"

"Wait till I see the cocks," replied the tonger, handing over the money. "I like to look 'em over before picking my man."

"What the use of that?" said the cropper dryly. "You cain't never tell what a gamecock's goin' to do."

And so it goes all the night through until the pink flush of a frosty dawn brightening the Eastern horizon, the "cockers" depart with the living and the dead.

Vichy Under Fire

By Barnet Nover

The Question Of Collaboration

WHEN MARSHAL Henri Philippe Petain conferred with Adolf Hitler at Montoire last October it was agreed that the basic policy of the Vichy government should be one of "collaboration" with the Third Reich in Europe's "new order." However, the Marshal and the Fuehrer have never seen eye to eye as to just what the term means, with the result that Vichy has been increasingly under fire from Berlin and Berlin's puppets in Paris for its uncooperative attitude. Now a showdown approaches.

NOVER

Petain's idea has been that collaboration between Vichy and the Third Reich should fit into the framework of the armistice agreement and largely be limited to the economic sphere. Hitler has insisted that unoccupied France should become Germany's military and political partner as well. This view the aged marshal has rejected.

THIS DIFFERENCE of opinion was not so important in October, however, as it has since become. At that time the bubble of Italy's pretensions as a great military, naval and air power had not yet been pricked by the Greeks and the British. When Petain and Hitler met at Montoire the possibility was still being reckoned with that Gen. Graziani's capture of Sidi Barrani some weeks earlier would be, as the Fascist press insisted it would be, the prelude to a large-scale Italian assault on Alexandria and the Suez Canal. There was then also the possibility that such a drive would coincide with a German or a German-Italian drive across the Balkans and the Near East to the oil fields of Irak.

Furthermore, Pierre Laval was then still vice premier in the Vichy government and Marshal Petain's heir-apparent. A fervent believer in Hitler's "new order," Laval could be reckoned on by Hitler to do everything possible to bring about complete cooperation between France and her conquerors.

IT WAS THUS possible for Hitler to bide his time in the hope that in due course Vichy would be brought around to his point of view. He cannot afford to be so patient now. The Italian armies are everywhere in flight—in Libya, in Ethiopia and in Eritrea, and continue to lose ground in Albania as well. The collapse of the Italian war effort would, by releasing British sea and air power now confined in the Mediterranean, make it easier for Great Britain to survive the anticipated German onslaught. In the meantime, Hitler must reckon with the fact that each passing month sees an increase in this Nation's capacity to supply the British with the planes and ships and munitions they need.

Hitler needs France's collaboration not merely because unless he can be sure of it he may during his assault on Great Britain find himself with a rebellious population along Germany's flank but also as an offset to the Italians, now increasingly a liability rather than an asset of the Third Reich.

WHAT DOES HITLER want the Vichy government to do? The precise nature of the Fuehrer's demands on Petain have never been revealed. It is suspected, however, that at the very minimum Hitler wants permission for the use by the Reich of France's Mediterranean ports and such North African bases as Bizerte. It is also suspected that the Fuehrer wants part, if not all of the French fleet to be turned over to the Axis. Should Vichy agree to such demands France would again be in the war—this time on the side opposite her former ally, Great Britain.

Marshal Petain has resisted these demands. On the other hand, there appears to be little doubt that they would be carried out were Pierre Laval in control of the Vichy government. That is why Berlin did not take kindly to Laval's dismissal by Petain last December and why there has been continuous pressure on the aged marshal to reinstate his former vice premier. So far, however, this has not happened. There have been indications that he would not be averse to having Laval in the government in a relatively minor capacity but no more. This would satisfy neither Hitler nor Laval.

IT IS INTERESTING to note that the clamor which has arisen in the pro-Nazi press in Paris against the Vichy government is not directed against Petain but against the men surrounding the aged marshal. Hitler, apparently, is not yet ready to treat Petain as another Schuschnigg; he prefers to treat him as another Hindenburg.

Hitler's unexpected restraint is not the product of any esteem he may feel for the hero of Verdun; it arises out of the practical awareness that the forcible removal of Petain would lead to an explosion not only in unoccupied France but throughout the French Empire. The fact that Gen. Maxime Weygand had to rush to the microphone last Saturday in an effort to counteract the plea made the previous day by Gen. de Gaulle, the "Free French" leader, to the French North African army to join in the struggle against Italy shows that Vichy's control over French Morocco, Algeria and Tunis is not too firm. Further pressure by Hitler on the Petain regime would only increase the centrifugal forces already present in the French Empire.

Yet the strategy of terror which Hitler and his French stooges are applying against Vichy may not be without its effect in weakening the capacity of that regime to resist the demands of the Third Reich.

Capital Parade

By Joseph Alsop And Robert Kintner

ONLY TWO or three weeks ago there was a good prospect of our putting our massive economic power behind Britain's effort of economic warfare. An excellent economic defense plan had been launched, and seemed to have plain sailing ahead. Indeed, the President had virtually agreed to sign the necessary Executive order. But then, at the last moment, the plan was caught in one of those governmental eddies, all too common in Washington, where hapless projects are tossed endlessly to and fro in the cross-currents of the bureaucracy.

The disagreement was chiefly between the Treasury and State Department, with Commerce and other agencies playing subsidiary parts. It arose more than is usual from honest difference of opinion, less from petty conflicts of ambition. But whatever the reason, the plan now seems destined to revolve in its eddy until it is finally knocked to pieces, like a rudderless ship in a whirlpool.

DURING RECENT months several departments and agencies have interested themselves in the economic defense problem. Six weeks or so ago a memorandum proposing action, said to have originated with Leon Henderson, was sent the President from the Defense Commission. Even before that, a special projects division was set up in the office of the Administrator of Export Control, to study the problem under the guidance of former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Thomas Hewes. At the Commerce Department, ever since his appointment as Under Secretary, Wayne Chatfield Taylor has been considering a scheme to combine economic defense and preparations for post-war economic reconstruction.

Finally, at the Treasury, where interest in economic defense first awakened in Washington, a complete plan and Executive order to implement it were drawn up towards the end of December.

As it happens, most of the powers needed for economic defense are already lodged in the Treasury. Through the stabilization fund, it controls world money markets. Its freezing and balance-blocking power permit it to control foreign assets in this country. The germ of shipping control exists in the Coast Guard's power to grant or withhold port clearances. And its banking connections make it easy for the Treasury to mobilize the influence of American firms abroad. Only export control, exercised by the office of the administrator under the White House, and the important control arising from purchases of strategic materials, not in the RFC, are not under the Treasury roof.

THE TREASURY plan called for addition of export control to the other Treasury powers, formation of a general staff within the Treasury to apply the several controls, and appointment of an interdepartmental committee to direct this general staff. It contemplated several bold changes in Government policy, such as general freezing of the American assets of all foreign nations, and extensions of export controls to make them more damaging to the Axis. The plan, presented to the President by Secretary Henry Morgenthau, jr., was promptly objected to at the State Department. State Department officials naturally feared such aggressive action might upset our relations with Japan and Russia.

Attorney General Robert H. Jackson was thereupon called in, and on his advice the plan and order were redrafted, to give full power to veto or modify any proposed move to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, as chairman of the interdepartmental directing committee. This, it was thought, nullified the policy objections to the plan. On the understanding that something like an agreement had been reached, the President declared he would sign the Executive order on January 9. Preparations for active economic defense were actually started at the Treasury.

Then on January 8 Secretary Hull asked for more time to consider the draft order. Time, very properly, was granted. And time has prolonged itself, and new objections have been raised, until the prospect of a decision has almost vanished.

VARIOUS REASONS are given for the delay. Assistant Secretary of State Adolph A. Berle, jr., who has advised Secretary Hull on the subject, is extremely doubtful whether the right organization has been hit upon. He particularly questions whether the Treasury, already burdened with responsibility, should receive such a large accretion. Other State Department officials are not satisfied with the veto power conferred on Secretary Hull.

THE WASTE of time has had some pretty unpleasant results. The Germans and Italians, fearing a freezing order, have removed every dollar they could liquidate from this country to South America, where the dollars will inevitably be used against us. Although proposed and backed in both Treasury and State Departments, even a selective freezing order, applying only to German, Italian and Swiss assets, has not been agreed to. Yet the waste of time, being irreparable, should cause less present concern than the continued disagreement. As has been stated, the disagreement is for once reasonably honest and disinterested. It is not accompanied by the usual sordid bickering. But however unusual in manner and matter, the disagreement is likely to have the usual effect—one of those preservations of the bureaucratic status quo, hurting no one's feelings, but rendering the Government administratively impotent.

C.I.O. Plan For Steel

By Ernest Lindley

Speeding Output

ONCE AGAIN organized labor seems to have got ahead of industrial management with a constructive plan for the benefit of national defense. This time it is the Steel Workers Organizing Committee with its plan to bring into production during 1941 almost 6,000,000 tons of steel melting and finishing capacity now idle.

As in the Reuther scheme for making airplanes in automobile factories, the details are less significant than the fact that the proposal came from organized labor. Both are plans for stepping up production — production essential to national defense. Not long ago it would have been incomprehensible to most people—including many labor union leaders and members—that labor should interest itself in this subject.

A whole new conception of industrial relations is now opened up, with labor offering to work beside management in increasing efficiency and output.

The second significant feature is that labor has been quicker than management to think in over-all terms of an entire industry. The SWOC plan, like the Reuther plan, frankly calls for the treatment of an industry as a single unit. It requires a certain amount of centralized direction.

FOR MONTHS Government economists have been arguing with the steel industry about its capacity. The Government view, generally speaking, is that the industry must expand so that it can meet the demands of national defense—including British needs—without squeezing normal civilian consumption too much. The restriction of civilian consumption, in the form of automobiles, refrigerators and other products would hold back general economic recovery and tend to force up prices.

The more or less official attitude of the steel industry has been that expansion is not desirable, except in special lines of fabrication for rearmament. It has taken the view that it is unsound to expand to meet a temporary peak in demand. It has held that there is plenty of steel ingot capacity to meet defense requirements and that it would be wiser to ration civilian consumption for a short period than to build added facilities which would not be needed later. The New Deal argument is that the added ingot capacity will be needed indefinitely if our economic system works at near capacity.

Despite this more or less official attitude of the industry, there has been expansion and will be more this year. On January 1, 1941, steel capacity was 2,400,000 tons greater than on January 1, 1940. It will be greater by at least as much on January 1, 1942.

Now comes the SWOC, headed by Philip Murray, who is head of the C. I. O. also, with a plan for making use of capacity which is now idle.

THE MURRAY SURVEY of the industry found that some 1,965,000 net tons of Bessemer steel melting capacity is idle. It found that about 2,500,000 tons of melting and finishing facilities of 14 small steel firms could be put into production this year. These facilities are now idle or need rounding out to achieve maximum production.

The Murray proposal includes such concrete practical suggestions as this: That such simple operations as rerolling concrete reinforcement bars be reassigned to some 16 small steel producers. This would release larger steel companies with more refined facilities for more complicated types of production.

The big companies, in other words, have been grabbing all this good business, and rolling these bars from new steel. In 1940, according to the Murray survey, they did 90 per cent of this kind of business, leaving only 142,000 tons of it to the small manufacturers. The latter have a capacity of about 500,000 tons, according to Murray. Therefore, he proposes, reassign part of this simple work to them, and let the big companies go head with other types of fabrication which the small companies are not equipped to handle.

Naturally, the large companies want to hold their usual commercial business. They are looking ahead to lean times, like the lean times they have had in the past.

THE MURRAY PLAN seems to be nearer to earth than the Reuther plan is. The technical and managerial problems which it poses are simpler than those involved in the making of large numbers of airplanes in automobile factories.

It was announced long ago that the Murray plan was coming soon. After it was published last week the leaders of the industry on the management side were brought to Washington. A statement was issued which implied that, in part at least, the Murray plan was right.

In one respect, the Murray plan must have been pleasing to the managers of the industry. It did not ask for the building of any large amount of new steel capacity. It took the position that neither the Government economists nor the leaders of the industry are convincing in their statements, and that further study is needed to arrive at the truth.

Naturally, the SWOC proposed that organized labor join with management and the Government in directing the operation of the entire industry at maximum efficiency. Naturally, this proposal does not sit well with most of the managerial interests. On the record, however, they seem to be lagging behind labor in examining and working out problems which are of a managerial nature. If organized labor is not reaching final solutions of these problems, it is at least doing some invaluable prodding.

Footnote To Lindbergh

By Dorothy Thompson

The Economic Factors He Ignores

UNDER THE title "The Lindbergh Doctrine of American Defense," Mr. Lippmann wrote a lucid and brilliant article on Thursday to prove the fallacy of Col. Lindbergh's reasoning on air versus sea power. I hope that Mr. Lippmann's article has been carefully read several times over by all the members of Congress. Mr. Lippmann took up Col. Lindbergh's actual testimony before the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House and answered it incontrovertibly from history and in logic.

THOMPSON

BUT COL. LINDBERGH'S reasoning is as fallacious in the things he does not take account of as in the things he counts. There is nothing in any of his speeches to indicate that he is conscious of the power and pull of economic factors.

And this is where a Western Hemisphere policy such as he advocates—America for the Americans—would break down even if, or when, the seapower of the United States were equal to that of the triple Axis plus Great Britain.

We cannot furnish a market for South American products. The United States does not have consumers for those products. The consumers for those millions of tons of wheat, corn, meat, copper and cotton are neither in the 90,000,000 who are the total number of inhabitants of the South American continent nor in the 130,000,000 of the United States, nor in the 11,000,000 of Canada—all of whom have wheat, corn, meat and copper already.

The consumers are in Europe: In the 395,000,000 of that overcrowded, highly industrialized peninsula of Asia—western Europe, exclusive of Russia.

EVERY YEAR Europe purchases South American products to the tune of $2,500,000,000. Every year the United States purchases South American products to the tune of $200,000,000 to $300,000,000. Every year Europe sells manufactured goods to South America for over a billion dollars and the United States sells for $600,000,000. But we can only sell if South America has the money with which to buy. And that money she must get as the result of the turnover of all of her trade.

Now, if the Nazis win in Europe, they will, at one stroke, have become South America's sole, greatest and absolutely indispensable European customer, as South America is an absolutely indispensable source of certain foods and raw materials for Europe. And if the United States attempts to interfere with or cut down that trade we shall become the worst enemy of South America.

South American ports will be crowded with German ships; Nazi commercial, technical and eventually military advisers will be in every South American republic. To keep in with these Nazi representatives will be a necessity for every South American government, and the end will be a series of Nazi states south of the Rio Grande.

With extreme rapidity, the Latin-American states will be as peacefully penetrated, reorganized and reoriented by the Master of Europe, plus his Italian and Spanish satellites, as Spain itself has been.

NOW, WHAT are we going to do about all this, even if we have seapower and airpower to burn?

Are we going to go down and blast out the Nazis by force?

Then we shall become an "aggressor nation" and Germany will become "the defender of Latin-American independence."

The Nazis won't have to invade Latin-America; they will be invited in to defend Latin-American freedom, trade and prosperity against "the Colossus of the North!"

And against that "menace" airdromes built by the Nazis for "purely commercial purposes" will shortly be supplied by the Nazis with bombers and fighters.

THE INDEPENDENCE of Latin-America has always been guaranteed by the United States plus Great Britain.

When the Monroe Doctrine, which was formulated by the United States and Great Britain, was under discussion, it was submitted to Jefferson, who sent President Monroe the following memerandum on it:

"America, North and South, has a set of interests distinct from those of Europe. She should, therefore, have a system of her own, separate and apart from that of Europe. While Europe is laboring to become the domicile of despotism, our endeavor should surely be to make our hemisphere that of freedom. One nation (Great Britain) could most of all disturb us in that pursuit; but she now offers to lead, aid and accompany us in it. By acceding to her proposition we detach her from the bands, bring her mighty weight into the scale of free government and emancipate a continent at a stroke . . . With her, then, we should most sedulously cherish a cordial friendship, and nothing would more knit our affections than to be fighting once more, side by side in the same cause. Not that I would purchase her amity by taking part in her wars. But the war in which the present proposition might engage us is not her war, but ours."

Thus Jefferson admits that the Monroe Doctrine originated in London, and that it involved on Britain's part the risk of war, which, however, would not be Britain's war, but ours.

Should Britain lose the war to the Nazis, a feature of American policy that has been supported by Britain for over 100 years would go into the ash can. Not only would we be incompetent to defend it alone in a hostile world, but we should be unable to hinder the inexorable pull of economic interest and of cultural interest between a German-monopolized Fascist Europe and Latin America.

The fall of Britain would mean the encirclement of the United States, north, south, east and west; the end of our position of unparalleled land and oceanic power, and either capitulation or war under the most unfavorable possible conditions.

Col. Lindbergh's viewpoint shows a complete lack of knowledge of history and of naval, economic and cultural factors. His personal biases are quite unimportant; whether or not he has sympathy with the Nazi system of politics is quite unimportant. His program would mean the end of the freedom and equality of the United States as a great nation.

Confusion In Chicago

A STRANGE situation was developed in the troubled life of the American Newspaper Guild, a C. I. O. group, in Chicago, where the Communist influence caused a bitter and disastrous strike against the Hearst organization which ran 18 months and wiped out or hastened the extinction of hundreds of jobs in the editorial, mechanical and other departments of the defunct morning paper known as the Herald-Examiner.

Beaten in a strike which was called by a majority of a minority, the Guild found itself repudiated as the bargaining agent for the editorial and other white-collar workers, and displaced by the new editorial union of the American Federation of Labor. After the strike many of the strikers returned to work on the surviving Hearst afternoon paper, but the Guild Reporter of January 15 reports that under the terms of a new agreement between the owners and the A. F. of L. union the management has been firing the Guildsmen, 50 of whom had been let out when this issue of the Reporter went to press.

THE REPORTER says discrimination against Guild members, because of their membership and their strike record, was perfectly apparent, which probably is true. The management replied that under its contract with the A. F. of L. union, now the accredited bargaining agent of the majority, it was required to fire enough Guild members to place 50 per cent of the jobs in the ranks of the new union.

Having canvassed the facts thus far, the Guild Reporter then says that Victor Pasche, the secretary-treasurer of the Guild's national body, "exposed the hypocrisy of this statement by pointing out that the Guild had many similar and even more stringent Guild shop contracts, but always worked out such arrangements by enrolling nonmembers rather than by demanding that the management discharge them."

So the Guild, beaten and repudiated after a rash strike brought about by the Communists, now proposes to violate its own discipline by permitting its members to join a rival union.

VERY ODDLY, it happens that at the present moment in New York five members of the staff of the Daily Mirror, another Hearst paper, are summoned to a Guild trial of the Moscow type and are threatened with the loss of their jobs for doing that very thing.

The five Mirror workers felt that the interests of the members had been betrayed by the Guild in negotiating with the management and resented also the obvious domination of their local by Communists. Therefore, they formed a local of the A. F. of L. union and resigned from the Guild, only to discover that the Guild, like the Communist Party, has a concealed man-trap provision in its constitution which holds that a member may not resign, but may be expelled, with penalties.

The existence of this provision, expressed in deceptive, negative language, was detected some time ago to the surprise of many of the members who had not understood that, in joining the Guild, they joined for life. However, the man-trap interpretation was denied until recently, when the case of the Mirror employers forced the issue. The Guild now says a member may quit the Guild but that, of course, in doing so he would also quit his job.

SO IN CHICAGO the Guild is willing that its members should commit the treason of dual unionism, should withdraw their designation of the Guild as their bargaining agent and join a rival organization which the Guild has denounced as an antiunion movement, while in New York the Guild is about to try five members on formal charges for doing the same thing.

Moreover, in the Chicago case the Guild itself insists on the principle of the closed shop, or Guild shop, which amounts to the same thing, but now denounces as hypocrisy the enforcement of the same sort of agreement with the new A. F. of L. union, to the distress of the Guild and its members.

The five Mirror defendants probably will not appear for trial and doubtless, in that case, will be condemned in their absence like the Moscow heretics. They all risk loss of their jobs and other persecution by the Communists, but they take the position that, as citizens, they have a superior right to resign and that, having resigned, they are not subject to trial or penalties. It may also be observed that they have valid precedent for their course in the contention advanced in Chicago by Mr. Pasche.

Some FCA Tips for Career Girls

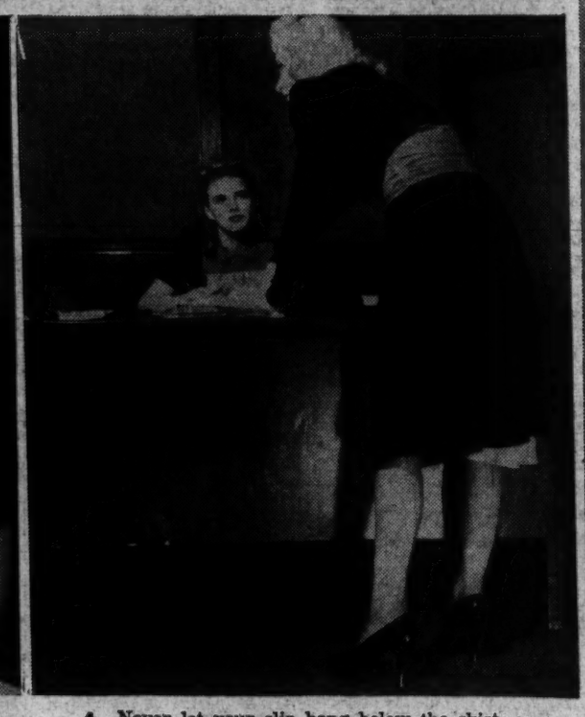
1. The Farm Credit Administration has some keen clerks and it might be because they follow these commandments. The first is clean shoes, straight heels

2. Keep your hair neat. Let it fly in sports and dancing but keep it combed at work. And use a brush, especially around the collar

3. Never have a shiny nose and don't keep your lips and cheeks too red. The commandments suggest that lessons be taken in the art of makeup



4. Never let your slip hang below the skirt, even though it does have a beautiful colored ruffle or something.

5 Never wear nicked nail polish. Keep a small bottle for repairs. The girls who posed for these pictures are Gay Gallo and Virginia Howe, of the Rhythm Rockettes at the Capitol Theater

6. A walking Christmas tree has no place in a business office, so watch the costume jewelry

7. Keep the seams straight, girls. The commandments suggest that "few of us can afford to make our legs conspicuous"

8. Don't be a walking advertisement for a perfume counter, for "some of us are allergic"

9. Check on yourself before leaving for the office and the busy day ahead

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

"So Ends Our Night" Is Only Start for Mr. Ford

Film of Europe's Refugees Launches New Star; Little Offers Benefit Premiere Tomorrow Night; This, That and the Other About the Theater

IT WAS A GRIM and terrifying revelation of an aspect of the catastrophe of Hitlerism new to the screen that was unwound Saturday afternoon when Fred Rohrs, Washington manager for United Artists, unspooled "So Ends Our Night" for the drama desks.

BELL

"So Ends Our Night" is the tragedy of the European refugees—that harried and hounded horde of men and women "without a country," for lack of passports or the papers necessary to give them the standing of citizenship in any nation overrun by the totalitarians. It is salvaged from complete starkness by the taut thread of romance that is woven through its basic fabric of individual and racial persecution. It has even been found possible to inject a considerable vein of comedy into Talbot Jennings' screen adaptation of Erich Maria Remarque's story of "Flotsam," a later narrative that lacks none of the power of the same author's "All Quiet on the Western Front," although it deals with a later war and a new approach to war's physical and psychological horrors.

This first of the David L. Loew-Albert Lewin productions for United Artists has the superior advantage of well-nigh perfect casting. Its pivotal characters are portrayed by Fredric March, Margaret Sullavan, Frances Dee and Glenn Ford, supported by such admirable mimes as Erich von Stroheim, Anna Sten, Joseph Cawthorn, Leonid Kinskey, Roman Bohnen, Sig Rumann and Spencer Charters. But the most arresting of these is Glenn Ford, who remained over from the President's Birthday Celebrations for the screening.

The youthful Mr. Ford still is a little bewildered by the good fortune that has come to him in being cast in such fast company. Having played secondary roles in secondary pictures for quite a spell, he is not yet quite sure how he happened to be tossed in there with such idols of his early screen-gazing as "Freddie" March and "Maggie" Sullavan. "Maggie was one of my 'crushes,'" he frankly admits, "and when I found myself playing opposite her, the excitement was almost too much for the Ford nervous system. I 'blew' scene after scene—but John Cromwell, the director, seemed to understand, and so did Freddie and Maggie. They were swell. It was my 'big break' and they did everything they could to make it easy for me."

That should not have been too hard a chore for Mr. March and Miss Sullavan, for the 24-year-old Mr. Ford gives an exceptionally fine account of himself in his first major assignment. Either Miss Hopper or Miss Parsons, I forget which, already has expressed the view on this page that Glenn all but steals the picture from his more experienced associates. I'll say he does. A sort of junior Paul Muni in appearance and manner, he somehow also suggests a Richard Carlson in the easy perfection of his diction and an efficient convert to the Charles Laughton theory that on the screen the eyes are the most eloquent organs of expression. Only a comparatively short time ago, Master Ford, one of the most unaffected beneficiaries of the cinema I know, was a parachute jumper, not from any spirit of bravado, but because he "needed the money." After a weekend at the Albert Lewin home on Long Island, he is returning to Hollywood by train because flying might worry his mother, with whom he lives at Santa Monica. That is the kind of lad he is. His mother, incidentally, never knew about his parachute jumping. After "So Ends Our Night," there'll be no stopping the fellow.

Chester B. Bahn, editor of Jack Alicoate's Film Daily, the trade publication already looking forward to its twentieth annual poll of the professional film critics of the country, has been snooping about in these columns of The Post and is interested in our recent suggestion that the "Ten Best Pictures of 1941" might almost be selected on the evidence of the first months of the new year. It seems that Stanley Gunn, of the Austin Daily Tribune, which presumably would be in Texas, is of the same opinion. Mr. Gunn feels sure that the next list of the "Ten Best" will include "Gone With the Wind," "The Great Dictator," "The Long Voyage Home," "Flight from Destiny," "Arise My Love," "The Letter," "The Philadelphia Story," "Kitty Foyle," "The Eagle's Squadron" and "The Lodger." About "Flight from Destiny," "The Eagle's Squadron" and "The Lodger," we wouldn't know, but it will take an extraordinary catalogue of future releases to dislodge "G. W. T. W.," "Dictator," "Voyage Home," "Arise," "Letter," "Philadelphia Story," "Cheers for Miss Bishop," and "So Ends Our Night." Two more shouldn't be hard, the way things are going. Maybe Mr. Gunn has named them.

Tomorrow night at 9, the Little Theater will break out a gala premiere of Herbert Wilcox's Technicolor production of "Queen of Destiny," starring Anna Neagle in the title role, with Anton Walbrook as Prince Albert. All seats will be reserved and now are on sale at the box-office at $1, $1.50, $2 and $2.50, proceeds to go to the British-American Ambulance Corps. Showings under the regular house policy will begin Wednesday morning. One suspects this of being the sequel to "Victoria the Great," originally known by the title of "Sixty Glorious Years." Anyhow, what's in a name and who cares?

Hold That Left High, Fella, and Don't Forget to Duck!

JAMES STEWART, CARY GRANT, KATHARINE HEPBURN, JOHN HOWARD as they will be seen in the pivotal roles in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of Philip Barry's stage play of "The Philadelphia Story," opening Thursday on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater. Mary Nash, John Halliday, Roland Young and Virginia Weidler also are important in the cast of this superlative picture

River Thames Is Trans-Lux Star of Week

Of special interest in this week's program at the Trans-Lux Theater is a beautiful travelog "River Thames—Yesterday." It is in Technicolor and shows the historic river as it was before the ravages of war. Pictures in the news section show the same locale now alert and ready for invasion, camouflaged aircraft batteries along its banks.

Other good shots among the news films are Churchill inspecting anti-aircraft defenses, civilians being trained to fight fire raids and women trained to take mens' jobs in factories. The bombing of Dublin was caught by the cameramen and Australian mine sweepers are shown clearing the sea. There is a subject on the late Greek premier, Metaxas, and there are a number on United States defense activities.

Sam Snead, winning the "Bing Crosby" golf tournament, and views of the biggest-yet aquaplane are outstanding shots among the sport events.

Other supplementary features are a pleasing "Picture People" reel, an interesting sport film, "Feminine Fitness"; a "Popeye" cartoon, for comedy, and a surprise educational novelty, "Caught Mapping."

Gayety

"BROADWAY SCANDALS." The Independent Burlesque Association presents the musical attraction in two acts and 21 scenes, featuring Marion Miller, supported by I. B. Hamp, Gertie Beck, Valerie, Marie Voe, Harry Clazz, Bob Taylor, George Tuttle and Bob and Babette. Dance numbers devised by Jack Montgomery.

The current week's burlesque attraction at the Gayety is one replete with pretty girls, with a marked accent on comedy and lavish production numbers.

The star is Marion Miller, a blonde siren, whose musical specialties will make Gilda Grey look to her laurels. Marion also offers a catchy song number, preceding her dance, which is both daring and cleverly rendered.

Headlining in the comedy sector are I. B. Hamp and Harry Clexx. Hamp, a real favorite here, is a laugh riot with his latest witcapades. With the able assistance of Gertie Beck and clever Bob Taylor, Hamp offers many funny scenes, his top effort coming in the burlesque of "Tobacco Road."

Aside from the fetching Miss Miller, the show offers some stunning sirens in Valeria, Marie Voe and Babette. Valerie, a very cute number, presents several bewitching beauty parades, while Babette's acrobatic efforts meet with popular acclaim.

One of the outstanding features of the bill is supplied by Bob and Babette. The former half of the team, in particular, is a clever chap who presents one of the most unusual specialties seen here lately. The "ladies of the ensemble" are youthful and easy on the eyes. Wardrobe, music and settings rank among the best encountered here this season.

Leonard Lyons:

CRIME DEPARTMENT: Last week a gray-haired emigre took his pet dog for a stroll through the streets of Manhattan. The policeman on the beat discovered that the dog had done something which violated a municipal ordinance—and so the cop began to issue a summons . . . The gray-haired man, who doesn't speak English, protested—until one of his friends arrived and explained that the emigre was the distinguished playwright, Maurice Maeterlinck . . . "Never heard of him," said the cop and issued the summons—in the name of "Morris Maeterlinck" . . . so last week, in the Ninth District Magistrates Court, Maurice Maeterlinck, answering to the alias, "Morris Maeterlinck," pleaded guilty to the violation of an ordinance and paid a $2 fine.

FOREIGN DISPATCH: Merrill Mueller, the I. N. S. correspondent in London, reports this story: At an R. A. F. airdrome he watched a young aviator take off in a Hurricane and participate in a fight in which 12 Nazi planes were downed . . . When the flyer returned he claimed that he had downed two of the planes himself. The commanding officer, however, credited him only with one plane. "We saw you get the first one," the officer explained, "but only one man saw you get the second plane—and two witnesses are required" . . . The young aviator went to the commissary and sulked. "What's the matter?" Mueller asked him . . . "Aw," replied the flyer—next thing you know they'll expect you to bring back scalps."

BOOK DEPARTMENT: When Archibald MacLeish, the Librarian of Congress, met James Melton, the tenor told MacLeish: "What a job you're doing. Nobody ever heard of the Library of Congress until you came along—and look at it now" . . . "Nobody ever heard of man until Adam came along" said MacLeish—"and look at man now."

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT: In the movie trailer for the new George Bernard Shaw picture, Shaw tells the American audiences: "This is a remake of an old, stale play of mine. A short time ago you saw the movie 'Pygmalion,' which was a remake of another old stale play of mine. Shortly before that you witnessed a production of 'Heartbreak House,' also an old, stale play of mine. I'm sending to America all my old, stale plays. But that's a fair exchange—because America is sending over here all its old, stale destroyers."

HEALTH DEPT.: Greta Garbo was escorted to La Martinique, where she was introduced to Danny Kaye. She complimented him upon his performance and then asked: "Where do you get your energy? How can you play a matinee, then an evening performance—and then do two shows in a night club?" . . . "I take a certain stimulant," Kaye told her . . . "What kind?" Garbo persisted . . . "Oh, a pill," said Danny, "a thing which comes in a box, which I buy at any drug store" . . . "Oh, by the way," introduced Garbo, thus reminded, "—this is Dr. Gaylord Hauser."

REALTY DEPARTMENT: Vincent Astor was one of those who rendered invaluable assistance in the President's securing of naval bases, especially in Bermuda, in exchange for the 50 overage destroyers . . . After this was accomplished Astor was very much relieved . . . for it was a job well done . . . Later, when the site for the Bermuda bases was mapped out, it was discovered that the plans provided for the erection of an aviation field on Astor's Bermuda property—which would mean the destruction of his house and a filling-in-sand process extending into the sea . . . all of which meant huge, unnecessary expense . . . Astor made no protest, preferring the sacrifice . . . Last week, however, other bases were selected, and the Astor home will remain.

DRAMA DEPARTMENT: Next Sunday the magazine section of the Mirror will feature a story about Edith Craig, the talented actress and widow of Richard Craig, jr. It will relate the misfortunes which have beset Edith since the untimely death of her brilliant husband. The story will conclude, however, with the assertion that her luck, at least, has turned—for she's playing one of the principal roles in "Separate Rooms" . . . That story will be published on Sunday . . . Saturday night, however, Miss Craig will leave the show, and someone else will replace her.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Feb. 2 (INS).—Norman Kerry, erstwhile glamour boy and former Universal star, was stick today. He returned to Hollywood completely exhausted and with a threatened case of pneumonia, so his doctor put him to bed and ordered no visitors. The excitement of getting back to Hollywood after his seven years absence was just too much for Norman. He will have to get well in a hurry for Harry Sherman was paging him today for a role in "Parson of Panamint," one of the Hopalong Cassidy Westerns.

PARSONS

Norman's life is more adventurous than any movie or fiction. He was in the Foreign Legion. He left Germany when the Nazis took over. He has lived in England and all over the world, but he says there is no place in the whole world like home. His account of the days he spent in Spain should make us all glad we are in America.

Every so often the whisper that the life of Belle Starr is to be made at Twentieth Century-Fox pops up. I usually discard it as a perennial rumor, but today I was told that Irving Cummings, who has just signed a new long-term contract at Twentieth, was actually getting the script in readiness to produce. Belle Starr, as you probably know, was a woman outlaw who had as many notches on her guns as Jesse James or any of the male desperados.

"Buck Privates" is so funny you will hang on to your chair laughing at Lou Costello and Bud Abbott—and while the picture isn't in the colossal class, Lou Costello is. Frankly, most of the reviewers were surprised at the wistfully funny appeal of the boy who made himself famous on the air chortling, "I'm a baaaad boy!" He never mugs to get over his gags and not since Chaplin's famous "Shoulder Arms" has there been a funnier comedy moment than Costello drilling with the draft recruits.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Stagging at the new club car, Stokowski, no less, who has spent every waking moment at the Carthay where "Fantasia" is showing; Hedy Lamarr left the hospital today and will convalesence at her home; Gar Wood lost no time in telephoning June Preisser long distance when he read that she was wearing someone else's ring. June says Gar is still head man in her life and may be here soon; good news that her mother is recuperating after a serious operation.

Lady Mendl, who is always the brightest one at any party, is herself giving a cocktail party tomorrow afternoon; while Bob Riskin is in New York Frances Robinson is night-clubbing with Bill Bye; Brenda Joyce couldn't be prouder of her bridegroom, Owen Ward. He passed the C. P. A. test the first time, which they tell me is so difficult that only a few make the grade; Olympe Bradna hobbling around with a sprained ankle; Gene Raymond meets Jeanette MacDonald in New York to do a broadcast with her.

That was Billy Halop's sister with him at a night spot; what were John Garfield and Artie Shaw talking about at such length?

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Sheds Dignity in Mudpuddle Scene

The campaign to help Marlene Dietrich shed any suspicion of artiness or exaggerated dignity has reached highwater mark in "The Flame of New Orleans," which has begun rolling at Universal as the first American vehicle of Rene Clair, famed French director.

The down-to-earth program for Miss Dietrich originated with Universal's ace producer, Joe Pasternak, when he cast the glamorous star in the rough-and-tumble "Destry Rides Again," during which she engaged in the now-historic hair-pulling spree with Una Merkel.

The trend was sustained in "Seven Sinners," when Brad Crawford felled Miss Dietrich with a straight left.

Comes now "The Flame of New Orleans," in which, by way of physical indignity, Miss Dietrich's carriage is overturned by an angry Bruce Cabot and Miss Dietrich's nineteenth century bustle lands in a mud puddle.

In Hollywood

—With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Feb. 2.

Trust Twentieth Century to buy a good racing story when they see one, because their horses in Technicolor are something. They've just bought "Green Entry," the brainchild of S. Ruth Howard, who always loved horses and had a flair for writing, but never had time to do it until she had an automobile accident and was put in a cast. Then she wrote this story, which has become a best seller.

When the bombing took on "blitz" proportions, he called them all together and said, "Work is all very well, but life is more precious, and I'm putting my problem right up to you men. If you choose, we'll stay here and go on with our job. Or, we'll move into the country, where it will take a couple of weeks before we can install our equipment."

They chose to stay where they were and keep on with their work, asking only that one man patrol the roof of the building, to warn them in case of fire bombs.

The sneak preview of the latest Hardy family pictures had the customers shouting over little Kathryn Grayson. This is her first. She's another one of those discoveries of Ida Koverman's.

It looks as though Myrna Loy and Bob Taylor would be teamed in Metro's new picture, "Reunion," which is a swell story laid against the German occupation of Paris. But the semitragic background remains a background. It's a love story.

Harold Hurley, who did such a swell job as producer at Paramount, is being talked about as the one who may be the new head man at RKO.

It must be matrimony, because she's had glamorous make-ups before, but Bette Davis won't look over 16 in "The Great Lie." I've always heard that love cure was something to shout about. Some day I'll have to take a day off and find out!

Bill Lundigan quipped that he's played reporters five times in a row and it's about time that he became a managing editor. Regis Toomey replied, "Yeah? Well, I've played cops and detectives in ten pictures and nobody's asked me to be J. Edgar Hoover yet."

The players who flew over Mount Whitney, which is the highest peak in this good old U. S. A., for that location trip of "The Bride Came C. O. D." in Death Valley, are shouting the praises of Paul Mantz, one of the greatest fliers of our day. He's got a story that will knock you for a loop. He started as a stunt pilot seven or eight years ago. Now he owns 34 planes, has more medals than you can shake a stick at, and he's never lost his enthusiasm.

Remember the children's symphony orchestra here that we were shouting about—and still are? Godzinski conducted one of their concerts. The other day, out of a clear sky, Jan Ker, the 14-year-old drummer, received a wire from the Cleveland Orchestra offering him $75 a week and asking if he would like to join them next fall. Would he! The boy goes East, and will study for four months with Goodman, drummer of the New York Symphony.

Charles Coburn is so good in "The Devil and Miss Jones" that everyone feels when the picture's released, he'll be the star. The day he finishes shooting, he planes to New York to see the shows, then goes on to visit relatives in Savannah, and will vanish until the picture is released.

It was husband-and-wife night at Chasen's the other night. Not a sweetheart in sight!

Marguerite Lee's Troth Announced by Parents

W. P. Mahony, Jr., Is Bridegroom-Elect; Wedding of Mrs. Totten to A. G. Barrois Today Will Surprise Their Friends

An engagement and a wedding, the latter scheduled for this afternoon, make the social news in Washington today.

Of much interest here is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Cazenove G. Lee, jr., of Newark Street, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marguerite duPont Lee, to Walter Butler Mahony, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Mahony, of Scarborough-on-Hudson, New York.

Miss Lee, who is called Margot by her friends, studied at the Friends School and the Madeira School here. Later she attended Vassar College, and since her graduation has been making her home in Washington. She has been active in the program of the Washington Housing Association and is well known in athletic circles. She was city tennis champion of Washington in 1940 and has held several titles at the Chevy Chase Club.

Mr. Mahony was graduated from Deerfield Academy and Amherst College, where he was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and Phi Beta Kappa. He is a nephew of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, and is a brother of Mrs. Robert Whitelaw Wilson, of Washington. Mr. Mahony is an associate editor of Reader's Digest. He and his fiancee have not yet set a date for their wedding.

Mrs. Totten To Be Wed

As a surprise to Washington, as no announcement of their engagement has been made, will come news of the wedding to be held today of Mrs. Vicken von Post Totten to A. Georges Barrois, a Frenchman. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock at the Church of the Covenant and will be followed by a reception at the home of Mrs. L. Corrin Strong.

M. Barrois is a professor. He and his bride will make their home in the Capital following their marriage.

The bride is the widow of George Oakley Totten, architect. She is a versatile person, a painter, a sculptor and writer. She first won fame with her porcelain figures, and later modeled busts of some of Washington's most distinguished men and women. The Government commissioned her to do a mural in postoffices in West Virginia and Connecticut.

Bride Born In Sweden

Mrs. Totten was born in Sweden, and came to Washington years ago to hold an exhibition. She was asked by an architect to do some ceramic friezes for an Aztec museum her fiance was designing. Their community of interests led to marriage.

Both Mrs. Totten and her fiance will dispense with attendants at their wedding this afternoon, and the ceremony will be an extremely simple one.

Official Set's Daughters Plan For Texas Fete

Miss Erma Najera, talented daughter of the Ambassador of Mexico in Washington, Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, will represent that country as princess in Galveston's 1941 Mardi Gras, February 21 through the 25th.

This fete, which dates back to 1867, will be known as the "Pageant of the Americas" and, as far as is known, this will be the first American city to set the pace of further welding the Western Hemisphere on the basis of pleasure, as well as business, with representatives from all the New World countries invited to participate in this spectacular event.

Included in the entourage will be other daughters of prominent officials. These girls will be chaperoned to Galveston by Mrs. Morris Sheppard, wife of the Senator from Texas.

Aiding also in carrying out this fete are Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas, who has sent letters to the country's other Governors to send representatives, as well as Dr. L. W. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union, and Miss Minerva Bernardino, vice chairman of the Inter-American Women's Commission.

Mrs. Sheppard will arrive with the girls on a special train, the "Diplomat," on Friday afternoon, February 21, leaving Washington on the 19th.

Among the Pan American girls who will take part in this four-day program are: Senorita Leda Fernandez, daughter of the Minister of Costa Rica; Senorita Matilde Pastoriza, daughter of the Minister of the Dominican Republic, and Senorita Laura Recinos, daughter of the Minister of Guatemala. Others also coming are: Senorita Susana Larguia, representing Argentina (incidentally, she was a representative at the Lima conference); Senorita Mercedes Guerra, daughter of the representative of the Inter-American Economic Advisory Committee, representing Cuba; Senorita Teresa Labarthe, daughter of the Naval Attache of the Peruvian Embassy, and Senorita Eugenia Sosa, niece of the Ambassador of Ecuador.

Patrons Listed For Trinity Ball

Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt heads the list of patrons for the Red and White Ball being sponsored on Valentine's Day by the Washington Chapter of the Trinity College Alumnae.

Among the patrons and patronesses for the Valentine's Day dance at the Mayflower are: The Minister of Ireland and Mrs. Robert Brennan, Senator and Mrs. Francis T. Maloney, the Alaskan Delegate and Mrs. Anthony J. Dimond, the Very Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president of Georgetown University; the Rev. Dr. William H. Russell, chaplain of Trinity College; Dr. Jane M. Hoey, Dr. and Mrs. Martin McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. Matthias Mahorner, Mr. and Mrs. Martin O'Donoghue, Dr. Regis Louise Boyle, Dr. and Mrs. James H. Earley, Mr. and Mrs. William Lebling, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Collins, Dr. and Mrs. Christopher J. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Cauliflower, Miss Florence O'Donoghue, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Wortman, Mrs. Jeremiah J. O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent L. Toomey, Miss Lucille Parduhn, Dr. and Mrs. Chester Brady, Mrs. Clarence J. Donohoe, Miss Elizabeth Healy, Mrs. George E. Morris, Dr. and Mrs. William F. O'Donnell, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Lynagh, Miss Alice Corcoran, Mr. and Mrs. S. Dolan Donohoe, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond R. Ruppert, Mr. and Mrs. Henry I. Quinn, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Meehan, the Class of 1927, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey C. Callahan, Miss Evelyn Nee, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Deviny, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Donohoe, Miss Mary Kennedy, The Chateau, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Eustace, Miss Mary Guerin, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Keegan, Mrs. John M. Golden, Miss Virginia Hunter, the Bridge Club.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

DANIEL C. SANDS, M. F. H., of Middleburg Hunt, arrived at his home, Benton, yesterday from New York, where he went to judge at the hound show last week and to attend the Masters of Fox Hounds dinner Friday night.

Mrs. Adelaide Williams Massey, who has been living in Paris, France, for some years and who returned to America in December, has arrived in Middleburg from Baltimore and is visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, jr., at their home, Wolver Hill. Mr. and Mrs. Iselin entertained at a dinner party in honor of Mrs. Massey on Saturday evening.

Lady Virginia Thornton, of Harrisburg, Pa., who has been visiting Mrs. George Lawrence in Warrenton, has returned home after being extensively entertained while here. One of the largest parties in her honor was a luncheon given by Mrs. Adeline Serre.

MR. AND MRS. Harry J. Duffey entertained at a large buffet dinner party on Saturday evening at their home, Mountain Spring, near Halfway, celebrating Mr. Duffey's birthday. After dinner many of the guests played poker and bridge, while others sat around open fires and chatted. During the evening sleds were brought out for a bit of coasting down the side of Bull Run Mountain. A bonfire at the bottom of the hill, with bales of straw around it, made a cheerful and warm setting for the merry coasters. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Duffey, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Bearns, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Day, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Greene and Mr. and Mrs. William Wilbur—all of Warrenton—and Mr. and Mrs. Duval Tyler, Mr. and Mrs. Holland Potter, Mr. and Mrs. Turner Wiltshire, Mr. and Mrs. Crompton Smith, Mr. and Mrs. T. Beatty Brown and Mrs. Fobert Booth, of Middleburg.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sloane gave a dinner party on Friday evening at their home, Whitehall, Warrenton, celebrating their eleventh wedding anniversary. Among their guests were her mother, Mrs. George Ingalls, of Hot Springs; Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Haserick and Mr. and Mrs. William E. Doeller. The latter just returned from a visit to Boca Grande, Fla. Mr. Winmill will leave this week for a visit to Miami Beach, Fla., and Nassau.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Scruton, who have been leasing the Vail, near Warrenton, on the New Baltimore road, moved last week to the cottage on the North Wales estate, where they will make their home.

A.A.U.W. Reviews Fellowship Bids

Meeting this weekend to award research fellowships totaling more than $15,000, the fellowship awards committee of the American Association of University Women reviewed applications for nine national fellowships, open to women of this country, and two international awards, one of which will go to a Latin-American candidate.

They also heard the vicissitudes of women scholars in the European war. Present in Washington was Mrs. Aase G. Skard, of Trondheim, Norway, to tell the committee of the part an A. A. U. W. fellowship had played in saving her from a German concentration camp and enabling her and her husband and two pairs of twin children—girls aged 3 and boys aged 1—to come to this country by way of Russia, Siberia and Japan.

Two years ago this same committee awarded a $1,500 international fellowship to Mrs. Skard to enable her to continue her child psychology research in Stockholm, Sweden. She was thus studying outside Norway when the Germans took possession of the country.

A year ago, another $1,500 award in the field of physical science enabled Dr. Herta Leng, formerly a biophysicist of the University of Vienna, to continue her research at Purdue University, Ind. In her research there Dr. Leng applies special techniques developed at the University of Vienna and makes use of Purdue's cyclotron, an instrument that produces artificially radio-active elements.

A third report made to the committee was that of a young English girl, Dr. Marjorie Walters, of Somerville College, Oxford, who recently came to Bryn Mawr College in this country on the $2,000 Rose Sidgwick Memorial Fellowship awarded last May by the British Federation of University Women.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathew J. McGrath entertained informally at the Southern breakfast in the Colonial Room of the Wardman Park yesterday.

D.A.R. Chapter To Mark 26th Year

Tomorrow Dorothy Hancock Chapter of the D. A. R., Mrs. John W. Townsend, regent, will combine its regular meeting with a birthday luncheon at the Chapter House, at which Mrs. Harry C. Oberholser, State regent, and other State officers of the District will be guests.

Plans for the occasion are under the supervision of the hostesses for the meeting, Miss Eleanor Jones, Miss Emma F. Kent, Mrs. J. Craig King, Mrs. Roberts B. Larson, and the entertainment committee of the chapter, which is composed of Mrs. Eliot C. Lovett, Mrs. R. T. Harrell, and Mrs. Edward L. Morrison. Following the luncheon, Miss Helen S. Johnson, secretary of the D. A. R. Museum will speak, and a paper on the subject "America Looks Abroad" will be read by Mrs. Charles S. Schermerhorn, program committee chairman.

The chapter was organized 26 years ago with Mrs. Dorothy Smallwood Geare as its first regent. In addition to its customary activities this year, a Red Cross unit has been formed which meets on Thursdays at the home of Mrs. J. Craig King in Spring Valley.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence V. Benet, who have been vacationing in Florida, are now at the Hotel Fort Sumter in Charleston, S. C. They will return home shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith entertained at dinner on Saturday at their home in Cleveland Park in honor of their house guest, Mrs. Robert Elsworth Thomas. Other guests were Representative and Mrs. Jennings Randolph, Representative and Mrs. Luther Patrick, Representative William Pheiffer, Col. and Mrs. J. Van Ness Ingram and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lathrom.

Miss Jean Templeton Offterdinger, of Washington, was among the Stephens College students taking part in the annual show, the Junior Jollies, last weekend.

Mrs. J. H. Ten-Eyck Burr has gone South to spend two months in her home at Crescent City, Fla.

Col. and Mrs. Truman Smith are at the Biltmore in New York.

Capital Whirl

By Sally Swift

THE NEW regime at Dumbarton Oaks gave it first entertainment the other afternoon when the Dumbarton Oaks Research Library and Collection of Harvard University invited guests for tea and music in honor of M. and Mme. Henri Focillon. M. Focillion is the first Harvard Fellow for Research who will give lectures at Dumbarton Oaks. His first lecture, in a series of six, will be given today and M. Focillon will be followed later by other lecturers. Students from Harvard who will attend the lectures, arrived over the weekend and were enchanted with the surroundings in which they will work.

Before the concert the other afternoon tea was served in the spacious hall at Dumbarton Oaks and guests were greeted at the door of the music room by John Thacher, executive officer of the administration committee of Dumbarton Oaks. Receiving with Mr. Thacher were Mme. Focillon, Mrs. Edward Forbes, whose husband is director of the Fogg Museum, and Mrs. Paul J. Sachs, whose husband heads the administrative committee of Dumbarton Oaks for Harvard. The husbands of the three ladies were also present and were very busy meeting old friends and making new ones.

THE GUESTS were drawn from intellectual, official and diplomatic Washington and among them were many old friends of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss who, of course gave Dumbarton Oaks to Harvard University and made the present work possible. Mr. Thacher made reference to this fact in a graceful speech when he introduced the Musical Art Quartet. He spoke of the "affectionate memories" of other afternoons of music arranged by Mrs. Bliss for her friends when she was chatelaine of Dumbarton Oaks and said he very much hoped that the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bliss would continue their interest in and fondness for the house at the top of Georgetown.

The music, Mozart's Quartet in C Major and Schubert's Quartet in D Minor, was most beautifully played and was doubly enjoyed as an hour of peace and relaxation in war-worried Washington.

THE DAY before her departure for Argentina, attractive Bea Phillips was guest of honor at an informal farewell luncheon given by the Belgian Ambassador, Count van der Straten-Pontoz. Countess van der Straten-Pontoz and her son and daughter have been in Argentina since Christmas visiting relatives—Countess van der Straten is Argentinian by birth—and Bea Phillips will join them in Buenos Aires.

THE NEW Cuban Ambassador, Aurelio Concheso, is a man of imagination and kindly humor, to judge by a little incident which took place shortly before he left Havana for New York. The Ambassador has a friend whose son is studying at a University in the United States. Meeting his friend in a Havana club one day the Ambassador-designate said to him, "Wouldn't you like me to take a present from you to your son when I go to America?"

The friend, who, up to that time, had given no thought to presents, said yes he would like to send something to his boy. "Well," said the envoy, "now that I am an ambassador I don't think my rank would allow me to take him less than $50." Whereupon the father forked over $50 and there is now one very delighted young Cuban student in the U. S. A.

The joke is that the Ambassador's friend had been purposely keeping his son on rather short rations in the hope that he would give up his studies far from home and come back to the fleshpots of the family fireside.

MR. AND MRS. John D. Hamilton—she is the former Jane Mason—spent the weekend in Hancock, Md., as guests of Mrs. L. S. Biays.

I hear that Mr and Mrs. Ian Wilson-Young have arrived in Rio, where he will be attached to the British Legation. The Wilson-Youngs are well known in Washington and have many friends here from the days when he was secretary at the British Embassy and she, as Charlotte Brown Nast, was one of the Capital's most sought-after beauties.

Vandergrifts Play Host

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. A. A. Vandergrift entertained yesterday at luncheon at the Army-Navy Country Club in honor of Mrs. Nelson T. Johnson, wife of the Ambassador of China.

Among the guests were Miss Elizabeth Johnson, sister of the Ambassador, and Miss Bennett, house guest of Mrs. Johnson. Other guests included the Commandant of the Marine Corps, Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, Col. and Mrs. John Potts, Col. and Mrs. Harry Schmidt, Mrs. Holland Smith, of Quantico, Va.; Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Walter A. Wachtler, Col. and Mrs. William Capers James, and Col. James' mother, Mrs. James, sr.; Dr. and Mrs. Edward Kunkel, and Maj. and Mrs. Richard Cutts.

Mrs. Johnson has just recently arrived from China with the latest group of evacuees, and with her two children has taken an apartment at the Brighton. Ambassador Johnson is still at his post at the American Embassy, Chungking, China.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor, of New York, were weekend guests at the Carlton.

Mrs. Shippen, Guest of Honor, Absent at Fete

That current bane of Washingtonians, the flu, kept Mrs. Edward Shippen away from the party which her father-in-law, Dr. Lloyd Shippen, and Mrs. Shippen gave in her honor yesterday.

Mrs. Shippen, jr., is the former Miss Natalie Brooks Sears, and was married last autumn. She and her husband are making their home on Thirty-second Street in Georgetown.

Several hundred guests called at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Shippen yesterday afternoon between 5 and 7. The hostess wore a street-length frock of blue and gold lame.

Among those pouring tea was the bride's mother, Mrs. Thomas Carter, who has taken an apartment here for the winter. Also assisting were Mrs. Dean Acheson, Mrs. Francis Addison, Mrs. Clarence Aspinwall, Mrs. Basil Boteler, Mrs. John C. Boyd, who also was married last fall; Mrs. H. Rozier Dulany, jr., Miss Anne Carter Greene, Mrs. John H. Hanna, Mrs. John B. Hyde, Mrs. McCook Knox, Mrs. Albert Lucas, Mrs. Ernest F. Mechlin and Mrs. Perry Wilmer.

Mrs. Shippen also asked several of her Maryland friends to assist. They included Mrs. Edward N. Brush, Mrs. J. Morrison Harris and Mrs. W. Hall Harris, jr., of Baltimore, and Mrs. Louis J. Williams, of Belair, Md. The tea table was centered with a cluster of purple iris and mimosa.

Hogg Couple On Florida Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hogg, who were married on Friday, will make their home in Washington after a two-week trip to Florida. The bride is the former Miss Eleanor Clare Wyvell, daughter of Mrs. Martin M. Wyvell and the late Mr. Wyvell, and Mr. Hogg is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hogg, of Dierks, Ark.

The couple were married at the home of the bride's mother, 4411 P Street, the Rev. Paul Yinger officiating. Mrs. Benjamin Goldfaden was matron of honor and Albert Haringer served as best man.

Alpha Zeta Beta Province to Meet

The second meeting of Epsilon Province, Alpha Zeta Beta National Sorority, will be held today at the Wardman Park Hotel. Mrs. Stanton T. Kolb, director, will preside. Plans and reports will be presented with regard to the two-day conclave of the province to be held in Washington March 29 and 30. The executive committee will present for consideration the names of those who will be nominated at the conclave for election to province offices.

Patriotism and South Sea Romance in Spring Prints

Designs Large, Colors Vivid In New Fabrics

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor.

GIVEN a free hand, fabric designers have gone to every corner of America and to neighboring countries for their inspirations. This is expected to be the biggest season in years for prints—and little wonder, too, when you see the prints that will bloom this spring.

In the American scene, Indian and Californian print designs are making conversation everywhere—vegetables, seagulls and geometric patterns inspired by handwoven Indian rugs and blankets. Right now the patriotic spirit is expressing itself in prints with stars and stripes, rope and other nautical patterns. Old nineteenth century print books have inspired wallpaper prints—floral vines with alternating stripes, floral stripes worked in with a background and flowered chintz reminiscent of an old English garden.

Tropical Prints

Native prints of the neighboring countries already have a strong hold in popular appeal and are becoming more profuse. Prints with Hawaiian, South Seas, Bahamian, South American and Javanese influence are the trend. They are usually designs of gigantic tropical flowers and bold plaids of South American inspiration.

In keeping with convention, small monotone spaced prints are featured for suits and jacket frocks. Gay multi-colored patterns are aggregated for street wear, and sports motifs are tuned to tailored and sports classics. As in the past, large dramatic designs are featured for evening frocks.

When you go out to buy your first spring print, you'll find the florals, formerly favored for evening wear, have graduated to the street and afternoon type dress. This year they are bigger than ever, but even the upholstery size has been handled in a more natural manner. The newest looking ones are widely spaced so that their background shows up, giving them more variety.

The colors of floral designs range from ripe flamboyant shades to subtly handsome cameo tones. Many of the designs have a liquid, flowing movement so that they are wearable by the larger figure.

New Floral Designs

Not, however, that there are no small or medium size floral prints. Sweet peas, calla lily blooms, daisies and trailing motifs are handled ni a new manner so that they are not even recognized at times. As for small prints, they are often influenced by the large ones being more widely spaced and scattered.

If floral prints are not to your liking, there are a multitude of others that will appeal. Fruit prints are in season—clusters of strawberries or cherries. Leaves, from the common garden variety to strange huge ones like the South American bamboo leaf, would add interest to any dress.

Miss Lansing Hall, currently appearing in the Civic Theater play, "The Gentle People," wears here a very new Hawaiian print formal of rayon jersey featured at a local store. As one who wears prints successfully, she makes it a rule to wear a striking print—and by that she doesn't mean a flashy one. "Most prints become muddy and disappear from a distance," says Miss Hall. She likes a print widely spaced that has a definite color or white for a background. The gown she is wearing successfully combines green leaves with a red flower because they are tied together by a white background. The motifs reflect the tropical atmosphere of the romantic Hawaiian Islands. The green band at the midriff and bows catching the neckline repeat the green patterned leaves of the print

"Did it do her any good?"

"Oh, she didn't finish it. It took too much time . . . and then her sinus acted up again . . . and she just figured she needed the rest more."

"Well, my sister-in-law's cousin took the Madame Pompadour course, and they say she's an utterly changed woman."

"Marcia said the Cleopatra course had just about the same exercises and diets she'd cut out of the paper."

"I know, but it's just as Sylvia says—you simply won't do them unless you've put out your money and want to get something for it."

"Well, I know I've got to do something right away about my hips."

"So have I. Why the store clerks all think I wear a size 18!"

"I have a lot of perfectly wonderful exercises cut out and put away if I could ever find time do them."

"You'll never do any exercise at home. The only thing to do is to join a gymnasium class."

"I believe you're right. Now what I need is somebody to look me over and tell me just what to do."

"Oh say, I heard Cynthia Puffer went to Hopscotches!"

"She did—for a couple of lessons. But her mother-in-law came to visit . . . and then after that she had to go to Florida."

"Well of course it's no use going to one of those places for a course unless you can see your way clear to go through with it. Now if people would just let me alone—"

"Me too. But I never have a moment to do anything for myself."

"Say I was reading a piece in the paper the other day that said all you needed to do was to walk five miles a day."

"Now that's more like it. Walking's a natural exercise."

"Ye-as . . . only five miles a day would take a lot of time."

"Well of course you wouldn't necessarily have to do five miles—even two or three would do you some good."

"Are even one!"

"Well, I was reading a piece where it said the thing to do was always to walk upstairs—never to take an elevator."

"I don't believe in that at all! All the doctors say walking upstairs is very bad for the heart."

"Yes, it really takes too much out of you."

"You know I think the only way to take it off is by diet. Now Louise Partridge is taking that new raisin and artichoke diet—that is, she was until her company came."

"Did it do her any good?"

"She lost 10 pounds, but of course now she's gained it all back."

"That's always the way. You simply can't go on a diet and live at home."

"No indeed. Now if I could just get off somewhere by myself I could really diet. But when you live with other people——"

"I know. That's why Marie Widener went to that Buttermilk Farm."

Did it help her?"

"Yes, but she was losing all her strength and she had to come home."

"You know, Elsie Wadd really has the system!"

"What's that?"

"Massage!"

"Is THAT what she does?"

"Yes, she has this wonderful Swedish masseur, and all she has to do is to take Turkish baths . . . and lie on a board——"

"Say, have you got his address?"

"No, but I'll get it."

"You know I believe that's just what I've been looking for!"

"Me too!"

U. S. Soldiers Are Meat Eaters

Armed forces of the United States—admittedly better fed than any in the world—eat considerably more than twice as much meat as any other group of consumers. Estimates made by the American Meat Institute and based upon the most recent figures available from the office of the Surgeon General of the Army, show that the new recruit, on entering the Army, finds himself eating meat at the rate of approximately .88 pound per day, or well over 300 pounds per year. The civilian per capita consumption last year was approximately 141 pounds.

Newlywed Husband's Parents Offer to Buy And Share Duplex Home With Him and Bride; She Considers It Unwise Move; Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married over three months and have been very happy. My husband's parents have been very good to us. They gave us practically all our living-room furniture as a wedding gift, and more recently my father-in-law was instrumental in securing a fine position for my husband. (His preceding job hadn't paid him enough to permit me to stop working.)

We will not be in a position to invest in a home for quite a few years yet, and recently my parents-in-law have suggested that the four of us buy a duplex home together. They would meet most of the necessary down payment. My husband and I have talked this over and he sees no reason why we shouldn't be overjoyed at the prospect.

Naturally, I am very appreciative of the offer, but at the same time I can't help feeling it is hard for any two families to live together,—no matter how harmonious their social associations have been. My husband can't seem to understand that I would rather have just a small house, and wait longer for it, that was really our own home,—than live in a larger, nicer residence in which (I am afraid) I would always feel more or less an outsider.

My husband says if his parents ever ask us pointblank what we would like to do,—he is going to say "yes" to their suggestion and let me explain why I would rather decline it. They have been so nice to me that I would be almost compelled to say "yes" rather than hurt their feelings. I don't suppose it has ever dawned on them that I wouldn't feel perfectly at home with them. Do you think I am being ungrateful in feeling as I do? I shall appreciate your opinion. Sincerely,

J. J.

Offer Should Be Graciously Declined

DEAR J. J.: It is a mark of psychological health rather than of "ingratitude" for one to wish to preserve a proper degree of independence and self-reliance. Your attitude toward your parents-in-law's offer is in all ways admirable. Your husband's attitude is questionable,—and suggests that he has a marked tendency to be "mama's boy;" that he doesn't believe in doing for himself what mama or papa may be willing (or can be persuaded) to do for him.

In providing part of your furniture and in getting your husband a better position than he had been able to obtain through his own efforts,—your parents-in-law have already done quite enough to "put him on his feet" in the adult institution of marriage. It is now high time he weaned himself from their coddling solicitude,—and the very fact that he is disinclined to do so tells the story of his progressive enslavement by parental overgenerosity.

My advice to you is to follow your "hunch" and graciously decline their suggestion, if ever they propose it pointblank. Tell them (as I have already said) that you feel they have already done "more than enough" to help you both, and that you would be afraid of becoming hopelessly spoiled and spineless if you continued indefinitely to take advantage of their extraordinary kindness. Say that you and Jim (to give your husband a name) must learn to stand on your own feet and earn your own home, if ever you are to amount to anything,—and that you believe both of you will better appreciate everything that "home" stands for if you come by it slowly, through your own efforts, as most folks do.

You may say quite fearlessly that you and Jim have discussed their suggestion and don't see eye-to-eye on it; that Jim is overjoyed and eager to accept,—but you feel this is because he has been "conditioned" by their loving kindness to take a good many unearned accommodations for granted, and that this is an attitude which you feel bound in conscience to resist, rather than encourage.

If your courteous rejection of their offer is sincerely based on a healthy desire to retain your joint independence and develop increasing social competence,—they cannot but admire your stand and respect your decision, no matter how disappointed they may be at having to discard their foolishly-fond plan. M. H.

Makes Up Hands

Hollywood, Calif. — Geraldine Fitzgerald, whose hands appear in numerous close-ups in "Winged Victory" doing lovely sketches and paintings, has the most unique hint for hand beauty ever to come out of Hollywood. Geraldine uses the same makeup on her hands that she puts on her face—and at the same time. This includes soap and water, cleansing or softening cream, astringent, night cream, bleach, powder and a little rub of rouge on cuds and bone. That minute touch of rouge, she says, gives length and grace to hands under artificial light.

Now is the Time to Beware of Contagious Colds!

At a treacherous time like this, with contagious colds all around you, what you do today may save you and your family a lot of sickness, worry and trouble later.

Follow these simple rules of health: Live normally. Avoid excesses. Eat simple food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular. Take some exercise daily—preferably outdoors. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

Then use these two time-tested treatments when needed.

AT THE FIRST SNIFFLE, SNEEZE OR SIGN OF NASAL IRRITATION . . . put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril right away. This helps to prevent many colds from developing, because Va-tro-nol is expressly designed to help Nature's own defenses against colds. (If a head cold causes stuffiness, you'll find that a few drops of Va-tro-nol helps clear the clogging mucus and makes breathing freer and easier.)

IF A CHEST COLD OR COUGHING COLD DEVELOPS (some colds get by all precautions) depend on Vicks VapoRub to relieve miseries. Rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back and cover with a warmed cloth. VapoRub acts to bring relief 2 ways at once. It stimulates surface of chest and back like a warming poultice. At the same time it releases helpful medicinal vapors that are breathed direct into the irritated air passages.

Both Va-tro-nol and VapoRub have been tested through years of use in millions of homes. When you use these two medicines you are not experimenting, you are not taking needless chances. Remember: If the condition of the cold fails to respond quickly to treatment—or if more serious trouble is indicated—call your family physician right away. In the meantime be prepared! Get a bottle of Vicks Va-tro-nol and a jar of Vicks VapoRub today—have them handy, ready to use.

Leader Hails Mission's Work Among Youth

Jubilant at the National Christian's Mission's success in other cities, and confident of its local possibilities, the vanguard of its 30-man speaking team checked in yesterday at the Lee Sheraton Hotel. More are expected today, following the close of a Pittsburgh phase last night.

A cross-section of the Nation's Protestant religious leadership, the speakers are directed by Dr. Jesse M. Bader, who said the mission's effect upon youth was among its greatest accomplishments.

Work in Schools Lauded

"The biggest thing this mission is doing is its work among high school students," he said, describing how speakers have gone into high schools throughout the country and "have found more religion than they knew was there." He added that youth is no longer blase, sophisticated, and was never more serious than today.

Because the National Christian Mission stresses no denominational or sectarian message, but only the great fundamentals on which all agree, the project has had no criticism, he said, from any religious group—Protestant, Catholic or Jewish. Instead, it has drawn city-wide support.

The mission has helped to promote Christian unity, has fostered closer cooperation between religion and labor, and has reached thousands of unchurched, touching the "forgotten man" of society, Dr. Bader said.

He explained that the technique of the mission is very different from the methods of individual evangelists such as the late William (Billy) Sunday and others. Where they pitched a tent, drawing people to it, the mission, is going to the people, he said.

The mission in Texas resulted in the organization of Councils of Churches in several cities for the first time in the State's history. In Houston, 900 new church members were added, and 1,100 in Oklahoma City.

Dr. Bader is chairman of evangelism for the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, which is sponsoring the mission with the cooperation of its constituent bodies, such as the Washington Federation of Churches.

Aguinaldo Urges Support for U. S.

Manila (Monday), Feb. 3 (AP).—Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, leader of the Philippine Insurrection against the United States, told members of the Filipino Veterans Association at their annual meeting Sunday to stand by America in the critical days ahead.

"Personally, I shudder whenever I think of the dangers that may disrupt American and Japanese relations and precipitate those countries into war," he said. "Of course there is no reason why we should feel panicky, for as you all know our defense is in the good hands of the United States."

Nazis to Build Centers For Soldiers in Norway

Berlin, Feb. 2 (AP).—Permanent cultural and recreational centers for German soldiers will be built throughout Norway, it was disclosed today when Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels called on the nation to contribute. Adolf Hitler gave the fund 1,000,000 marks (about $400,000).

The homes will be built in Norwegian towns where German soldiers are garrisoned.

of human activity, to contact lapsed church members, to bridge the chasm between the church and other organizations in communities, and to stress the spiritual and moral foundations of an American democracy.

Dr. Miller Presides

Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, pastor of National City Christian Church and general local chairman, presided and led responsive readings, and the Rev. Earl L. Harrison, pastor of Shiloh Baptist Church and co-vice-chairman of the local Mission, offered a prayer. Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, president of the Federation of Churches, gave the invocation, and Dr. W. L. Darby, local Mission executive secretary, the benediction. Dr. William R. Barnhart, executive secretary of the Federation, intoned an offertory prayer.

Many Washington churches canceled evening services to allow congregations to attend the two mass gatherings, the Continental Hall phase of which was conducted by Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, and program chairman of the local Mission. The combined singer from Mount Vernon and Foundry Methodist Churches sang. Dr. Charles B. Foelsch, pastor of Luther Place Church led devotions.

Dr. Jones, who has been speaking to thousands in other mission centers, will have two speaking engagements today. One will be at the noonday meeting at Epiphany Church, the other at an area mass meeting in Metropolitan Presbyterian Church.

Ministers' Meeting

At 10 a. m., Dr. Scherer will join with the Rev. Harold Phillips, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Cleveland, in addressing a ministers' meeting at Calvary Baptist Church.

Also scheduled for Calvary, at 2 p. m., is one of the mission's most important phases—the seminars, where the team members will discuss the Bible, personal faith and experience, Christian family life, the church, religion and health, Christian social relations and world relations.

Leaders there will include Methodist Bishop Paul B. Kern, Bishop Thomas B. Darst, the Rev. George W. Richards, Dr. Warren D. Bowman, Dr. Charles H. Sears and Dr. Adolf Keller. In an employed people's seminar at Mount Vernon Place Church at 4:45 p. m., Dr. Keller will speak on "Christians and the International Situation."

Film-Flam Suspect Arrested After Pastors Complain

A 40-year-old restaurant worker suspected of tricking church pastors out of various amounts ranging from $5 upwards was in custody last night.

Detective Sergt. Dowd said numerous complaints had been received from pastors.

Dowd said the racket was worked by phoning pastors and asking them to loan an "embarrassed friend" some money and assured the pastor that he would have a chauffeur stop by later with a reimbursing check.

The suspect was arrested at St. Anne's Church, 4400 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest.

3 Children Saved In 2-Alarm Fire

Three small colored children were carried to safety yesterday by their mother and grandmother when a two-alarm fire destroyed the family's cleaning and pressing establishment at 1253 Ninth Street Northwest.

Mrs. Lucille Finch noticed smoke filtering into her apartment above the shop. Her husband, Lawson Finch, and father, Arthur Walker, were out. With her mother, Mrs. Bessie Walker, she carried the children down the smoke-filled stairway to safety. Rescued were Lawson Finch, jr., 3; Jane, 18 months, and Lavatia, 7 months.

Liner Manhattan Likely To Be Refloated Today

Lake Worth, Fla., Feb. 2 (INS).—The 24,000-ton United States liner Manhattan tonight was reported about to be set free from a sand bar off Lake Worth Inlet.

Three tugs succeeded in slipping the ship part way off the bar at high tide today, and it was thought she might be refloated tomorrow.

Dr. Anna Rice Says Women Awake to Crisis

Dr. Anna V. Rice, tall, scholarly former general secretary of the International Y. W. C. A., feels that for the first time in a generation, women are awakening to the importance of the world crisis in its effect on personal and religious life.

Taking part in her first mission, Dr. Rice said that women, especially Christians, are on the "horns of a dilemma" regarding the present situation. Some demand "all-out" aid to Britain, others want isolationism.

It is fortunate, she assured, that through individual church discussions and the Christian Mission seminars, Christian women can "agree to disagree agreeably" on controversial subjects.

If young people are shown that religion does work in everyday life, they are not backward about accepting it, thinks the Rev. Philip Lee, another Mission team member.

"They are anxious to find the deeper things in life," he said in drawing upon his experiences in other mission centers where he spoke before thousands of high school and college students.

Mr. Lee is third generation Christian Chinese, and pastor of a Chinese Christian Church in Chicago. A gifted singer, Mr. Lee said yesterday he feels the old-time gospel songs carry special spiritual strength.

Mothers won't have to remain away from the National Christian Mission because junior or "sis" demands attention at home.

The forward-looking local committee arranged for a kindergarten at Calvary Baptist Church during the seminars and the united women's meeting, the latter on Friday.

The National Mission is not overlooking a detail in its arrangements, especially in publicity. Two stenographer-typists are kept busy getting out stacks of advance copies of addresses for newspapers. The Lee Sheraton is the hotel and press headquarters.

Two crack newspapermen are handling the National Mission publicity. One is Clarence Taylor, who is traveling with the eastern phase of the Mission. The other is John Fortson, publicity director for the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, who is handling the Mission on the West Coast. Fortson was formerly connected with a major news service.

One of the busiest men at the mass meetings last night was Dr. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the local mission. He came with stacks of programs, made sure no one was overlooked. More than 40,000 schedules of the local mission have been distributed, he said last night.

Alexandria Woman Held in Slaying

Albert Bell, 35, colored, 510 North Alfred Street, Alexandria, died yesterday at Alexandria Hospital of a gunshot wound suffered Saturday. He was shot, police said, by a woman who told the officers she jokingly pulled the trigger of a .25-caliber automatic, thinking the safety catch was on.

The woman, Fannie Lambert, 37, colored, 317 North Henry Street, was charged with murder. She will be given a preliminary hearing before Judge James R. Duncan tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Guard Units Mobilize In Winchester Today

Winchester, Va., Feb. 2.—One hundred and twenty-two members of Company I, 116th Infantry, commanded by Capt. Paul R. Hartman, and Headquarters Detachment, commanded by Lieut. William E. Pingley, will be mobilized tomorrow morning.

Units of the Twenty-ninth Division, the men will be quartered for at least a week in the local armory, according to present plans.

An Army medical board will arrive tomorrow morning to examine the men. From Winchester, the two companies will go to Fort Meade along with other companies of the regiment.

Alexandria's New Parking Meters To Be Installed

Installation of the first of 124 parking meters along the north side of King Street, Alexandria, to replace meters which were rejected by the city council after two months' trial will be begun today by the Southern Iron Works, local representatives of the Karpark Corporation, of New York, which has been awarded the replacement contract.

The Karpark meters are to be installed on a six-month trial basis, with the city reserving the right to reject them at any time prior to the expiration of that period. At the end of six months, the council is scheduled to decide whether to retain the meters permanently, in which case a percentage of the proceeds from the parking meter system will be applied to the purchase price.

The meters installed on the north side of the city's main thoroughfare several months ago were rejected after numerous complaints from motorists which resulted in Judge James R. Duncan's refusal to convict autoists who were arrested on traffic charges involving the meters.

A FAMOUS LOAF JOINS THE DEFENSE PROGRAM

In Cooperation With Government and Local Health Authorities Working for Better Nutrition . . . The Charles Schneider Baking Co. Proudly Announces

Vitamin B-1

Now Enriches The Family Size Loaf of

DAN-DEE WHITE BREAD

Most Modern Foods Are Deficient in VITAMIN B-1

Examples

ORANGE—only about 26 Int. Units of Vitamin B-1 per 3½ ounce size.

2 EGGS—only about 40 Int. Units of Vitamin B-1.

1 GLASS OF MILK—only about 30 Int. Units of Vitamin B-1.

Symptoms of VITAMIN B-1 Deficiency

Medical authorities say if Vitamin B-1 is lacking in your daily diet, you may suffer from indigestion, constipation, nervousness, irritability, loss of appetite, and—in case of children—failure to grow properly, fleeting pains in the muscles, etc.

- VITAMIN B-1 is the Energy Vitamin.
- U. S. Department of Agriculture Bulletin No. 507 says "The Average Person Requires 500 to 600 VITAMIN-B-1 Units Daily."
- It Now Enriches This Famous White Loaf With the Vitamin Content of 100% Whole Wheat.

Each delicious loaf of Schneider's Family-size Dan-Dee White Bread is now enriched with Vitamin B-1. This literally means a soft tender white loaf containing as much vitamin as the average rich, 100% whole wheat loaf.

There is no change in the color or texture of this famous bread. There is no increase in price. But you have the authority of your Government, the American Medical Association, and other experts that good wholesome bread enriched with Vitamin B-1 is indispensable for maintaining health in the individual, the home, and the nation.

Little Boy—Great Big Hangover

Five-year-old Clyde Bruffy, of 4544 Conduit Road Northwest, was browsing around the kitchen yesterday—while mother was out. He noticed a pint bottle on the shelf. When Mrs. Bruffy found the youngster he had consumed nearly one-fifth of a pint of whisky and was feeling very, very ill. After treatment at Georgetown Hospital he was reported doing well.

Can't Make Jack a Dull Boy

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 2 (AP).—When school officials declared a holiday because of an influenza epidemic here, the school board received a letter from Jack T. Moore, a high school student. He wrote:

WPA Remapping Trail Of Mercury and Mars

The planet Mercury, it seems, has been up to some jitterbug stunts recently. And even the old reliable planet Mars has been a bit cantankerous. Sailors at sea pilot their ships from navigation charts based on the orbits of the planets. But when either Mercury or Mars or both slip away from their usual course and have a night out, the sailors become flustered. However, Works Projects Administration is taking care of it. At the Naval Observatory here is one of WPA's oddest projects, three persons are replotting the orbits of Mercury and Mars. New navigation charts will be made for the Navy when the work is completed. All concerned hope the planets will behave after this.

Tell-tale evidence that Senator James Byrnes can have the Supreme Court vacancy if he wants it is the fact that an attempt is being made to find jobs for several members of his office staff. One employe already has accepted a job with a private concern. He is expected to leave in about six weeks, about the time Byrnes is expected to be promoted to the highest court.

'Don'ts' for Secretaries

Farm Credit Administration has some of the best-trained secretaries and clerks in the Federal service. The employes are taught among other things not to use that old bromide: "I'm sorry, he's in conference." The phone operators will even take messages, and they make it their business to know all employes and where they are located. The service is excellent for a Government agency.

Latest instructions for FCA's "business gals" were prepared by girls in the agency. They are "Ten Commandments for the Business Gal," illustrated elsewhere in this issue of The Post, and worded as follows:

1. Thou shalt always keep thy shoes polished and thy heels straight. Shoe repair shops are plentiful and polishing can be done at home.

2. Thou shalt always keep thy hair neat and tidy. Let it fly loose and fluffy when you are partaking of sports or dancing but keep it combed at the office—PUHLEASE! And use a hair brush, especially around the collar.

3. Thou shalt never have a shiny nose or lips and cheeks too red. Lessons in make-up are cheerfully given at all cosmetic counters and beauty salons.

4. Thou shalt not let thy slip hang below thy outer skirt, even though it may have a gorgeous colored ruffle.

5. Thou shalt never wear nicked nail polish. Small bottles for repairs can be bought at the five-and-ten.

6. Thou shalt not wear party dresses to work. Nuf Sed!

7. Thou shalt not bedeck thyself with jewelry—a walking Christmas tree does not belong in an office.

8. Thou shalt strive to keep the seams in thy stockings straight. Very few of us can afford to make our legs conspicuous with crooked seams.

9. Thou shalt not be a walking advertisement for a perfume counter—some of us are allergic.

10. Thou shalt always take one last look in a mirror before starting for the office in the morning.

More than 700 Federal employes may have been sent to Florida at Government expense last winter, but here's a chance for two Federal employes to be sent to St. Petersburg at the expense of WJSV and the Federal Employe Council. Any Government employe may participate. All he has to do is write a card or a letter in care of the council to WJSV and tell how he is spending his spare time and what the council can do to promote recreation among Government workers. The contest closes February 18.

Civil Service Exams: Marketing transportation specialist, $3,800; Agricultural program analyst, several grades with salaries ranging from $2,600 to $5,600; Accountant and auditor, $2,600 to $3,800; junior supervisor, tabulating equipment operator, $1,800; junior supervisor, alphabetic card-punch operators, $1,620; Public Health nurse, $2,000; Chemical engineer, $2,600 to $5,600. The commission has announced that the male stenographer and typist test for employment in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, and North Carolina will be closed February 11.

20 Citizens' Units to Act On Bus Line

Meetings in Week To Plan Drive For Cross-Town Transit Service

Meetings of 20 citizens associations and a citizens mass meeting to complete plans for the cross-town bus drive will be featured in this week's list of civic activities.

Wilbur La Roe, jr., of the Council of Social Agencies, will be the principal speaker at the Citizens Association of Takoma's D. C. fifth annual dinner today at 6:30 p. m. in the Trinity Episcopal Church parish hall, Piney Branch Road and Dahlia Streets Northwest.

Seven other associations will meet tonight. Dupont Circle citizens will hear the Rev. Albert J. McCarthy, of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, speak at their 4:30 p. m. meeting in the Mayflower Hotel.

Kenilworth to Elect

Kenilworth will hold a postponed election of officers; Manor Park will examine the 1942 District budget; and the Progressive Association of Georgetown will hear D. Sterling Wheelwright speak on the National Symphony Orchestra tonight.

Representatives of 40 associations interested in the proposed cross-town bus will attend a meeting tomorrow night in the Thomson School, Twelfth and L Streets Northwest, to discuss plans for the P. U. C. hearing February 11 and hear a report by the citizens' steering committee, it was announced by Chairman Nathan Lubar.

The Southeast Council tomorrow night will hear Representative William T. Schulte, chairman of the House Traffic subcommittee, speak on traffic conditions here, at its meeting in No. 11 Police Precinct, Nichols Avenue and Chicago Street Southeast.

Delegates to the Northeast conference also will discuss methods of lowering the District's traffic fatality rate at their meeting Thursday. This problem will be taken up simultaneously by the Connecticut Avenue unit that evening.

Utility Man to Speak

Members of the Chillum Heights association Friday night will hear a talk by W. Herbert Gill, of the Washington Gas Light Co., according to President David W. Gabelein.

On Saturday, Miss Clara W. Herbert, District librarian, will discuss the city's library setup at a meeting of the Mount Pleasant Citizens Association.

Party to Honor District Building Phone Operators

They've been just a couple of voices to most of the public for all these years, but Mrs. Mae Long and Mrs. Theresa Follin will receive some well-earned recognition today—from their associates, at least.

Mrs. Long is rounding out 26 years as District government telephone operator, Mrs. Follin, 15 years. Their fellow employes at the District Building will cut an anniversary cake and eat ice cream in their honor this afternoon.

The two have had a hand in most of Washington's local affairs since they first strapped on their earphones and mouthpieces. It's been part of their duties to notify the proper officials of four-alarm fires, floods, storms and many a decision of import has been made over lines which they could disconnect with the movement of a finger—lines to the District Commissioners, for example.

Mrs. Long lives at 429 Rhode Island Avenue Northeast; Mrs. Follin at 504 Thirteenth Street Southeast.

D. C. Chinese Celebrate the New Year 4053; Fireworks, Cash for War Relief Greet Dragon

By Scott Hart
Post Staff Writer

In the first moon, after the sun entered the constellation Aquarius, in approximately the 4,053d Year of the Dragon—that is, yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock—Washington's Chinese celebrated their New Year in the honorable precincts of Sixth and H Streets Northwest, and caught some $1,500 in a Chinese flag for war relief.

A leather drum on rollers was pounded and three Chinese crashed cymbels, while several hundred Chinese threw firecrackers in front of the Chinese Youth Club at 800 Sixth Street Northwest, signaling out the dragon. And the dragon danced into the popping firecrackers like a man treading on hot coals.

This set the drummer to beating harder, the cymbals crashing louder and inspired more fireworks. Then up came six Chinese girls, costumed, holding a Chinese flag by its corners. Venerable Chinese, who had prospered behind showcases full of jade, imported wares and prayer wheels, leaned out of windows, drew from their pockets rolls of bills and let samplings sail down onto the flag.

The procession, led by the dancing Dragon, a thing monstrously feathered, a jeweled head, and tail of red cloth, held by a gyrating Chinese, moved to the Chinese National Salvation Association Headquarters at 607 H Street Northwest. There it ran into a barrage of $1, $5 and $10 bills floating from windows, and firecrackers flickering like fireflies. Police held back the crowd.

In a second-story window, a stout Oriental drew a fat roll of bills, regarded it inscrutably, peeled off a $5 bill and five $1 bills and meditatively watched them floating into the flag, already sagging with silver and currency.

The procession, signalizing the thirtieth year of the Chinese Republic, and opening of the New Year, memorialized the suffering of Chinese back home. It continued to move up H Street amid firecrackers, to the front of the flag-decorated On Leong Chinese Merchants Association Building. There it got a more terrific blast of fireworks, and the Dragon was fed there on lettuce, suspended on red strings from windows. It danced then with greater energy.

The Dragon had awakened on schedule. It proved, symbolically, the reawakening of China from a 4,000-year-sleep. It crunched lettuce in an incredibly bejeweled mouth while the Flag, just as voraciously, consumed money.

Dr. C. C. Hung, pastor of the Chinese Community Church, 1011 L Street Northwest, watched gladly from the Salvation Association's window. He had held earlier services to accommodate the exercises. Behind him six tellers counted the bills and coins in monotonous sing-song, looking pleased, while the firecrackers raged and two Chinese performers outside wrestled fantastically.

Weather Bureau, Groundhog Agree It Will Be Cold

Washington, the Weather Bureau and Gus Groundhog agreed yesterday, is in for some winter.

The bureau, taking a short-range view of the situation, predicted lower temperatures and light rain or snow today, with temperatures ranging from 30 to 36 degrees.

But Gus clinched things for at least six weeks by seeing his well-publicized shadow yesterday, February 2. In spite of efforts of Zoo attendants and small boys to prevent it, he peered out twice during the one-hour sunny spell in the afternoon.

Lone Rider Proves Bandit, Robs Bus Driver of $91

A lone gunman last night commandeered a passengerless Capital Transit bus and robbed the driver of $91. Victim of the holdup was Robert V. Price, of Fairfax, Va., bus driver. The bandit boarded the bus at New Hampshire Avenue and Longfellow Street Northwest and effected the robbery after a half block's ride.

Police last night had one man in custody and were seeking two others following a safe-cracking theft at Hogate's Restaurant, Ninth Street and Maine Avenue Southwest. The strongbox was blown open with nitroglycerin. Amount of money taken was not divulged.

In another case seven or eight colored men were sought after assaulting a special officer, Thomas Parks, colored at a Fourteenth Street cafe when he attempted to arrest one of them for disorderly conduct. They took his gun and fled.

Some 14 pounds of assorted cold meats were stolen from the Liberty Lunch, 910 Fifth Street Northwest. Music and cigarette machines were broken open and an undetermined amount of money also was taken.

'Y' Health Lecture

Dr. Benjamin Rones will speak on "Be Good to Your Eyes" at 8 p. m. today at the Y. M. C. A., 1736 G Street Northwest. It will be first in a second series of health lectures sponsored by the Y. M. C. A.

Judge Denies Nolan Charge Of Leniency

Cases Are Weighed On Merits, Says Jurist; Report Lauded by Leaders

District Court Justice James W. Morris last night characterized as giving an "unfortunate impression not in accord with the facts" a report from the Washington Criminal Justice Association indicating growing leniency in sentencing habitual offenders.

"We try to deal with each case on its merits," Justice Morris said, "and it is sometimes rather illusory to speak of them in mere figures."

The jurist explained that he had not had an opportunity to study the full report or to check its statements against his own records. He added that when he has done so he may have a full statement to make.

Leniency Cited

The report, without naming any District Court judge, cited instances of what the association found to be leniency during the last three months of 1940. Justices Morris and F. Dickinson Letts were sitting in the criminal division during that time. There was no statement from Justice Letts.

"Judge A." declared the report, "sentenced 146 persons for serious offenses and granted probation to 65 of these persons or 44.5 per cent. Judge B sentenced 185 persons for serious offenses and granted probation to 61 persons or 33 per cent.

"During 1939 probation was granted in 29.5 per cent of all major offenses while in 1938 the percentage was 26.9 per cent."

Coupled with the statement was a warning from Dr. James A. Nolan, director of the Criminal Justice Association, that the Capital's crime-control problem is certain to be aggravated by the growing pay rolls and rising sales records resulting from huge defense expenditures in the Washington area.

Association Praised

Several civic leaders of the city praised the association for making public its findings.

Harry N. Stull, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, described the report's findings as "very interesting," but would make no specific comment on them, he said, because of his position as an attache of the United States Court of Claims.

"I feel that the report has adopted a very realistic attitude and I heartily approve it," said A. Z. Wood, president of the Junior Board of Commerce. Wood deplored what he called a "tendency to show too much concern for the criminal and not enough for the general public which is his victim."

Pointing out that as stated in the report, adequate sentences are only one part of the crime-control problem, Wood declared for a larger and better equipped police department.

Minor Hudson, former president of the board, said he believed the report would serve its purpose if it merely caused court justices to give more consideration to the community's interest in leniency.

Francis G. Addison, former president of the Board of Trade, said the report showed that a criminal convicted in Washington has one chance in two of being probated. He said the practice acts as an inducement for criminals to operate in the Capital.

Sefton Darr, former president of the District Bar Association, described the report as a "fair analysis and statement of the situation."

Postlude

Four Encores Sung Here By Lily Pons

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Doro hy Hodgkin Dorsey presents Lily Pons in a song recital Sunday afternoon in Constitution Hall. Assisting artists: Frank La Forge, pianist; Franl. Versaci, flautist. Program: Arias from operas by Mozart, Handel, Gretry, Donizetti, Ravel, Campra and Gounod; songs by Gabriel Faure, Saint-Saens, Dalcroze and La Forge.

Admirers of Lily Pons crammed Constitution Hall yesterday afternoon, showered applause upon her at every opportunity, won four extra songs from her by persistence in recalls, and reluctantly dispersed when the cantatrice, with grateful gestures, made it evident that she preferred not to sing any more after her taxing program. It was an indubitable proof of the popularity of the French soprano whose recent acquisition of American citizenship testified in turn to her appreciation of the manner in which the public has adopted her.

BROWN

The recital opened with Bionda's aria from the second act of Mozart's "Die Entfuehrung aus dem Serail," sung in Italian which adapts itself much better than German to floriture. This was followed by two Handelian arias, "Alma mia," from "Floridente," and "O Had I Jubal's Lyre," from "Joshua," and the aria, "La Fauvette avec ses petits," from Gretry's "Zemira et Azor," with flute obligato. In this group Miss Pons' voice showed signs of either weariness or indisposition, for there was some slight flatting of high notes and an occasional forcing of the tone. Recovery was rapid, however, and for the remainder of the recital she was completely in command of her resources.

Her second group, devoted to Gabriel Faure's "Le secret," "Clair de lune," "Apres un reve" and "Nell," had its disappointments, because songs of this character require shades of color and an emotional finesse which are alien to this prima donna's voice. She sang them delicately but coolly, with the result that their poetic values were not fully disclosed. In the two extra numbers that followed, Hue's "A les oiseaux" and La Forge's "The Bird's Song," she reverted with what seemed to an air of relief to her floridly brilliant style.

After the intermission Miss Pons gave her listeners a Donizetti aria in French, "Que n'avons-nous des ailes;" the vocalise from Saint-Saens' ballet music for Dieulafoy's drama, "Parysatis," Dalcroze's "L'oiseau bleu," an aria from Ravel's "L'Enfant et les Sortileges," and La Forge's "L'incredule."

Symphony Fund Drive Starts Today

More Than 800 Volunteers Will Strive Toward $107,600 Goal

An army of some 800 volunteers today will start a ten-day campaign to raise $107,600 for the National Symphony Orchestra's 1941-42 season.

Money raised in the drive will be used to meet the difference between the cost of operating the orchestra and income from ticket sales and concerts on tour.

The operating cost for the minimum 20-week season—the shortest the Musicians' Protective Union will approve—is estimated at $177,600. A total of $70,000 is anticipated from ticket sales and tours.

Although the 800 workers will attempt to reach every potential subscriber in the Washington area, the campaign directors made a plea yesterday that voluntary contributions be sent to campaign headquarters at the Carlton Hotel, the symphony offices in the Woodward Building or the symphony box office in Kitt's Music Store.

Walter Bruce Howe is general chairman of the campaign and A. F. E. Horn vice chairman. Results of the first day's canvassing will be announced at a luncheon in the Carlton Hotel at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow.

The various committees engaged in the campaign will be headed by the following Washingtonians: Thomas F. Morgan, jr., special gifts; Earl A. Nash and Bruce Baird, business and professional groups; Mrs. William Bryden and Brig. Gen. John N. Greely, Army; Mrs. Eugene Barnes and Mrs. Reeve Lewis, associations; Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, education, with the following assistants, Miss Eleanor Connolly and Miss Mary L. McQuade, Catholic and parochial schools; Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, colleges and universities; Mrs. John T. O'Rourke, private schools, and Mrs. Miriam B. Hilton, public schools. Augustus E. Giegengack, Government departments; Mrs. Emory Scott Land and Mrs. Alfred Johnson, Navy and Marine Corps; Mrs. Charles Bittinger and Mrs. Foster Adams, orchestra guild; D. Sterling Wheelwright, speakers' bureau; Mrs. Edwin B. Parker and Mrs. Robert LeFevre, suburban committee. Mrs. R. H. Dunlap is campaign secretary.

Additions to Bar Group

The New York State Bar Association and the Association of the Bar of the City of New York yesterday were announced as new members of the Inter-American Bar Association by William Roy Vallance, Secretary General of the organization.

Without Shirley Povich

(While Shirley Povich is on his vacation his column is being written by other members of The Post sports staff.)

By Tony Neri.

In what appears as the resumption of last year's interrupted turf duel in the 3-year-old division, Col. Edward Riley Bradley's Bimelech and Charles S. (Seabiscuit) Howard's Mioland, have been installed current favorites for the forthcoming $50,000 Widener Cup race and the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, respectively. In a poll conducted by the Turf and Sport Digest Bimelech was voted the best of his division last year with Mioland a close second.

NERI

With Kayak II reported injured and definitely out of the West Coast race and Challedon, the early choice, a doubtful starter, it looks like Howard has another Santa Anita Handicap winner in the "Axis" horse (Mioland is by a German sire, out of an Italian mare). Kayak II won the hundred-grand race in 1939 and Seabiscuit last year.

Kayak's withdrawal from the big race caused no amount of alarm, for it was evident from the opening of the winter book quotations that Howard was aiming to win with Mioland. Caliente's future books show Howard with a heavy play on Mioland and not a cent on Kayak. Mioland's price in the future books dropped from 8 to 1 to 5 to 2 and may go lower. That 8 to 1 that Howard got looks mighty good.

Incidently there is a 2,000-to-1 shot listed—a horse named C. P. Smith—a winner with a price like that certainly could make it a happy day for the Smiths.

Reports from Florida indicate Bimelech is in the best of shape again and no sign of last summer's injury has been detected in the son of Black Toney in his drills for the Widener.

Last May Bimelech went to the post in the Kentucky Derby the shortest price favorite in the history of the Bluegrass classic, but the 35-to-1-shot Gallahadion captured the race. A week later Bradley's colt turned the tables on Gallahadion by taking the Preakness. In the Pimlico race Mioland was second and Gallahadion third. Mioland finished fourth in the Derby.

It was in the Preakness that Howard's big horse (Mioland stands over 16 hands) showed such a tremendous stretch drive so characteristic of his later victories.

After the Preakness, Bimelech was defeated by Corydon in the Withers Mile in New York, while Mioland scored his first major triumph in the American Derby at Washington Park. In Bimelech's next outing he was soundly beaten by the Dixiana Stable's Sirroco in the Arlington Classic. It was after this race that a foreleg injury was discovered and Bimelech's retirement was announced by Col. Bradley.

Mioland in the interim was winning his share of stake races. Charles S. Howard was tended an invitation to run his colt in the Pimlico Special, but declined the bid, choosing instead, to enter Mioland in the $20,000 Westchester Handicap at Empire City, scheduled for the same day as the Special. It was a wise move by Howard. With an impost of 120 pounds, Mioland just romped in. In his two starts at Santa Anita this winter, the colt won with ease, one being a $10,000 stake victory.

Col. Bradley had intended to send Bimelech to stud this spring on his Idle Hour Farm in Kentucky, but since his little colt was pronounced fit again the colonel decided to point him for the Widener race at Hialeah, March 1.

If Mioland and Bimelech emerge winners of the two big winter classics, Belmont Park may be the scene of a match race between the pair in June, which if run, should prove a natural, rivalling the famed Seabiscuit-War Admiral duel at Pimlico in 1938. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, president of the Belmont course, has a knack of arranging such turf duels. It was Vanderbilt who persuaded Samuel Riddle, owner of War Admiral, and Charles S. Howard, Seabiscuit's owner, to run their respective charges in the Pimlico race.

A Mioland-Bimelech match race would probably pack Belmont Park to the rafters, but first the two principals will have to overcome March 1 obstacles. Both the Widener and Santa Anita Handicap are to be run on that day. The past two years longshots have prevailed at the Hialeah Park race and the California race has had its share of long-priced winners. Who knows maybe that 2,000-to-1-shot, C. P. Smith, will take it all in the Coast race.

So until the results of the March 1 races come in, a future battle of Mioland and Bimelech still looms as a natural.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Feb. 2.—You'd think that sports champions would make good in the movies, wouldn't you? They have class, style, confidence, the ability to draw people, ready-made audiences etc. You'd think the bicep boys and the muscle molls would knock 'em dead in Hollywood, wouldn't you?

CONSIDINE

(Oh . . . you wouldn't, eh? Well, we're going to write this piece anyway.)

Hollywood (we discovered, when there) will give almost any celebrated athlete a screen test. Over the years it has probably tested all of them . . . and found about 92 per cent of them wanting. That is one of the reasons why the fighters you see in the fight pictures can't fight; that is why the heroes in the football movies need so much help from the scenario department in order to negotiate the 99-yard touchdown run that beats Old State and wins Mary Brian, the venerable co-ed. The real fighters, football players and the denizens of every other sport rarely, if ever, know how to act.

There will be some unkind persons in the audience who will say that even the sports people who do make good in Hollywood, can't act. The successes, of course, have been Johnny Weissmueller, Sonja Henie, Johnny Mack Brown, and a non-starring, but regularly paid group which would include Pat Flaherty, former big league pitcher; the late Mike Donlin, of the Giants; Nat Pendleton, the rassler, and a few others.

There have been a lot of 1-shot appearances. Max Baer was excellent in the "Prizefighter and the Lady," with Primo Carnera, who did not take the part of the lady. But the picture didn't go well. From Corbett's time, each heavyweight champ has had a crack at features or serials, and all have flopped, the last and one of the most memorable pancake being a G-man picture starring Joe Louis. Conservatively, it set the G-man movement back 15 years. Babe Ruth was out there for a quickie, too, and Lou Gehrig, Eleanor Holm, Frank Shields was under contract to Goldwyn, but had trouble getting on and off sets without rupturing the furniture. Nearly every great swimmer became a Tarzan, as did Glenn Morris, the 1936 Olympics hero. The society for the prevention of cruelty to the great apes resented all of them deeply.

The greatest athlete of all time, Jim Thorpe, lives in Inglewood, a suburb of Los Angeles. He can't get regular work, or even a regular laborer's job around the studios. Jim has trouble making ends meet, for his family is growing. It embitters him to see some of those Hollywood bosses fighting to give a short-term job to every semi-athlete who comes along. If a Rose Bowl player is anything less than a monster, he is pretty certain to be lionized in Hollywood and given a screen test. But Jim is forgotten. His chief work, when he gets it, is as an Indian extra in the hoss-opry mob scenes, though his deathless hips have known the caress of a sarong and his iron dome has been littered with ginger flowers, in Hawaiian pictures.

So it was natural when Frank Capra looked around for a ball-player type to star in "Meet John Doe," his new opus, that he chose Gary Cooper—who, actually, never played baseball nor had he ever seen a ball game. Capra is smart. He hired Pat Flaherty to teach Cooper how to stand on the mound and how to throw a ball so that it didn't appear that he was tossing a bean-bag. Flaherty pitched for Washington in 1916, 1917 and 1919, was with the Red Sox in 1920 and finished up in '21 with the New York Giants. He also played for the Chicago Bears, and, withal, is an intelligent, competent, good-looking actor. He has had 150 speaking parts, which is a lot better than par for athletes who race to Hollywood.

Cotton Warburton, Aaron Rosenberg and a few others who were idealized by Hollywood big shots have held on to jobs in the mechanical or directoral side of the business, but countless others have been given the bounce as soon as their sportspage reputations faded.

Rosenberg got his break as an assistant director in an odd way. He was shooting dice one night in the Clover Club, with his total capital of seven bucks. An executive of one of the companies, who had been playing at another table, had lost $7,500 on the galloping dominoes. He recognized Rosenberg and asked him if he could shoot dice as well as he could play football. He said, "sure," and made 13 straight passes. The executive, riding on that fabulous string of 13 passes, recouped his losses and won $2,500, took Rosenberg out of U. S. C. and put him to work the next morning.

Oliver Wins Western Golf Open With 275

New Champion

ED OLIVER

Ben Hogan, Nelson Tie For Second

Wilmington Pro Finishes With 69 To Overtake P.G.A. Champ for the Title

By the Associated Press

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 2.—Golf's comeback kid with the candy striped shirts won the biggest championship of his young fairways career today—the Western Open.

Rotund Ed (Porky) Oliver, with an exhibition of dauntless courage when the pressure was on, fired final rounds of 67-69 over the par-71 Phoenix Country Club course for a 72-hole total of 275 strokes, three under the aggregates of Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson who deadlocked for second place.

Oliver, three shots off the pace after the first 36 holes, got his stretch drive under way on today's morning round. Out in 37, he fired a 30 on the home nine that still left him two shots behind Nelson as the field passed the 54-hole mark.

Then he went to work. Out in 35, one under par, he birdied the tenth and twelfth holes for a sizable margin, then coasted in to a 34 on straight pars and a bogie six at the eighteenth, where he elected to play safe after his tee shot caught the rough.

Rallied Coming In

Oliver's first two rounds were 67-72—and that 72 Saturday saw him slip to a bad 40 going out and then rally beautifully for a par-shattering 32 on the "in" nine.

His play under pressure was typical of the performances which gave him three tournaments last year, the Phoenix 54-hole event, the Bing Crosby and the St. Paul Open.

Oliver, Hogan, Nelson, Johnny Heafner, Linville, N. C., were the five "stretch runners" today. Hogan, playing with Oliver, had finals rounds of 70 and 72. Nelson this morning had a 67 but slipped to a 74 in the afternoon—and gained his tie with Hogan on a "delayed drop" putt at No. 18—where he watched the ball hang on the lip a full 45 seconds before it dropped into the cup.

Bulla, tied at 136 with Hogan after the first two rounds, finished today with a 72-72 for a 280 total, a shot under the aggregate of Heafner, whose final rounds were 68-72. Those five were the only players who broke par of 284 for the 72-hole grind.

Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., finished with rounds of 67-70 to match regulation figures for the tournament.

Jim Demaret, of Houston, defending champion and pretourney favorite with Nelson and Hogan, never did get going, his rounds today of 72-72 giving him a total of 189. Lawson Little, National Open champion, had closing rounds of 69-75 for a 287 aggregate, one shot under the total posted by Eduardo Blasi, of South America, who made a remarkably fine showing. Ralph Guldahl, three times Western Open champion, finished with 285.

Victim of Fatal Spill at Agua Caliente

Young Rider Dies En Route To Hospital In San Diego

Accident Occurs At Agua Caliente Track; Youth Suffers Skull Fracture

By the Associated Press

San Diego, Calif., Feb. 2.—Earl Dew, 1940 American jockey champion, died en route to a hospital here today after suffering injuries in a three-horse accident at the Agua Caliente, Mexico racetrack.

The slim, 18-year-old Sac City, Iowa, youth incurred a skull fracture when thrown by Bosca, 5-year-old mare, as she tripped rounding the stretch turn in the sixth race at the border track.

Taken to the track hospital, Dew showed symptoms of a brain concussion but responded so well to treatment that attending physicians confined him there for observation.

Two hours later he suffered a relapse from what was termed a "secondary hemorrage" and it was decided to rush him to a hospital in San Diego. He died before arriving here.

Mare Also Dies

The accident occurred as Dew was about to make a stretch bid with Bosca. The mare suddenly went down and two other horses, Draco, ridden by Billy Pearson, and Whiz Shot, with Jack Haycock up, were unable to avoid the fallen horse.

Both of the latter thoroughbreds fell, but their riders were not injured. Bosca broke her neck and died immediately.

More than 20,000 spectators saw the pileup, which was the second serious accident of the 15-race program. Earlier, in a steeplechase, Al Dorey, aboard Sunny Monday, was hurt when his mount tumbled while going over a jump and rolled on him. He was taken to a San Diego Hospital and was reported suffering from brain concussion, but was in good condition.

Winner of the American riding title last year after a thrilling battle with W. L. Taylor, Dew was to be honored at today's Agua Caliente program with the presentation of a gold watch emblematic of his championship. He had flown here this morning from Albany, Calif., and had decided to accept several mounts during the program.

Scored at Santa Anita

Dew rode Subdeb to victory at Santa Anita Park December 31 to give him 287 wins for the year and the 1940 national jockey championship.

He flew to Los Angeles from Tropical Park in Florida to wind up the season at Santa Anita and Agua Caliente, and barely nosed out Walter Lee Taylor, of Houston, Tex., for the jockey title. Taylor rode 286 winners.

Dew was a free-lance rider, but Earl Beazley, veteran horseman and counselor for the boy, had first call on him. It was Beazley and Racing Secretary Webb Everett of Santa Anita, who helped Dew get riding assignments at Santa Anita when he abruptly left Tropical Park.

After capturing the national jockey championship, Dew returned to his home in Sac City, Iowa, for a vacation.

Kovacs Beats Riggs in Miami Net Tourney

By the United Press

Coral Gables, Fla., Feb. 2.—Clowning Frankie Kovacs, of Oakland, Calif., today won his fourth straight tennis title of the winter circuit when he rallied to defeat former National Champion Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, in finals of the first annual University of Miami Invitational Tournament.

The scores were 4—6, 1—6, 8—6, 8—6, 6—1.

"I was mighty, mighty lucky," the tall Californian grinned as he walked off the court.

Leads Cheering Section

The angular Californian, who sports a two weeks' growth of beard and swears he won't shave until he wins the national amateur championship, found time to clown despite the terrific battle Riggs gave him for four sets. He frequently sprawled on the court, slammed the ball out of the enclosure, and led applause when Riggs smashed a well-placed shot past him.

Kovacs kept Riggs on the run for much of the match with a smashing backhand. Riggs held the whip hand in the first set and won three straight games before Kovacs scored in the second. The fleet Chicagoan took the second set, 6—1, before Kovacs could get started.

Kovacs fought back in the third set. With the scor. four-all, the youthful Californian bore down.

Kovacs led, 4 to 1, in the fourth, only to see Riggs' set knot the count. After that, Riggs folded up in face of Kovacs' withering cross-court fire. The lanky youth from the West won five traight games before Riggs broke through to score in the final set.

In the doubles finals, Jack Kramer, Rollins College, Fla., and Gardner Mulloy, Coral Gables, defeated Elwood Cooke, Portland, Oreg., and Hal Surface, Kansas City, 6—3, 7—5.

Blood Bank Pin Tourney Listed for Convention Hall

One of the aging bowling feuds of the city will be reopened this week when the Masonic and the Knights of Columbus bowling teams enter their top-flight rollers in the Fraternal Blood Bank bowling tournament February 9, at Convention Hall bowling alleys, with the knocking down of pins scheduled for 7:30.

The tournament, with entire proceeds going to Children's Hospital, was won by the Elks team last year. Other teams entered are the Odd Fellows, Almas Temple, and the Royal Arcanum.

Five games will be rolled simultaneously by the competing teams with the total pins deciding the champions.

In charge of arrangements and ticket distribution are Leonard L. Pearce, general chairman; Arville L. Ebersole, executive secretary, National Duckpin Congress; Harry J. Seeley, Almas Temple; Ray Cross, Masons; Perce Ellett, Odd Fellows; Ted Mosely, Knights of Columbus; Herman Wealthall, Royal Arcanum; Joseph A. Riani and Seymour Hall, Elks.

The tickets, at 25 cents each, will be on sale at all of the local and suburban alleys.

Porky Comes Back From 'Wars' for Golf Victory

By the Associated Press

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 2.—Ed (Porky) Oliver, youthful Hornell, N. Y., professional, literally "came back from the wars" today to win the $5,000 Western Open golf championship.

Oliver was competing in California tournaments recently when his Selective Service Board notified him to report. He drove across the country to Wilmington, Del., his parents' home, for an interview. Given a deferred status in the military draft because his parents are dependent upon him, Oliver returned to the winter gold trail of golfdom.

Baltimore Six Routs Washington Eagles

By Jack Munhall

Baltimore, Feb. 2.—Through the fog-like smoke of Iceland Arena the Baltimore Orioles tonight skated to a 6-3 victory over the Washington Eagles and reduced their margin of leadership in the Eastern Amateur Hockey League to a single point—the slimmest advantage the Eagles have had in a month. It was Washington's third straight loss after an undefeated string of 12 games.

For the second time in three days the burly Baltimoreans outroughed and outplayed the Capital City Club and a turnaway crowd of 3,600 was on hand to enjoy it. Arena officials said that the match had been a complete sell out since Friday and estimated that two or three thousand patrons had been denied admittance.

The Orioles, defending league champions and pace setters in the current Boardwalk Cup series, broke a 2-2 first period deadlock with two goals in the second stanza and then rapped in another pair in the third to transform the struggle into a rout.

The match was unusually rough until the third period, when, safely in the lead, the Orioles loafed and concentrated on defense.

The ice fairly crawled with players and the crowd loved it. Biggest cheer of the night sounded when Linesman Pat Reilly was knocked helter-skelter in a collision, narrowly escaping serious injury.

Eagles Look Bad

Washington never looked as bad as in this match. Held in close check by Baltimore's defense, which now is undoubtedly the most effective in the league, the Eagles had great difficulty even to work the puck out of the neutral zone.

Gordon (Porky) Pranschke, with two goals—one unassisted—was outstanding for Washington, while Guy Roach, Jack Riley, Bill Moe and a pair of newcomers, Stan Kowalski and Elio Morzo—fresh from London, Ontario—sparkled for the winners.

Amid the first period parade of five Orioles and three Eagles to the penalty box both teams scored twice to finish the opening 20 minutes on even terms and in uneven tempers.

Each club capitalized a penalty to tally one of its points, Baltimore recording the tying tally as Knipfel languished in the meanie box on a doubtful decision. Struck in the face by Riley's stick, Knipfel was banished for holding, his sentence starting after he paused at the Washington bench to receive hurried first aid treatment for a cut.

Orioles Score First

The Orioles drew first blood literally and statistically. After Roach, the big Baltimore bully, had hit Burrage on a cross check, he knocked in a double rebound from shots by Kowalski and Dill, at 7:30.

The count was knotted by the Eagles, at 11:22, when MacBeth slid

Dew Recently Talked Over Track Dangers

By the Associated Press

Sac City, Iowa, Feb. 2.—Earl Dew, the slender 18-year-old jockey fatally injured in a three-horse accident at Agua Caliente today, only recently discussed the dangers of horse racing.

Home for a vacation here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Dew, Earl went to Des Moines January 7, where he was honored with Bob Feller at a convention. Discussing the possibilities of injuries in racing, he told a reporter:

"Even falling off a horse in a race when there are no other horses near is not at all impossible. If the horse ducks suddenly to one side or the other, you're apt to go overboard. He might see something on the track and shy away from it."

Dew, on his return to Sac City, purchased a 160-acre farm for his parents.

The mother of the almost bashful youngster was grief-stricken at the news of her son's death and she was under a physician's care here tonight.

The father said that his son's body would be returned here Wednesday. Funeral services probably will be Thursday, he added.

Survivors besides the parents include two brothers, Dale, 13, and Lacry, 3, and a sister, Bethel, 17.

Boston Defeats N. Y. Rover Hockeyists, 4-2

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 2.—Scoring twice in less than two minutes of a hectic third period, the Boston Olympics edged out the New York Rovers today, 4-2, to strengthen their hold on fifth place in the Eastern Amateur Hockey League.

Paul Guibord took a long pass from Frank Spain at the left of the goal mouth and golfed it in to break a 2-2 tie at 15:17 of the final session. Frank Stubbs scored the clincher 70 seconds later on passes by John Fitzgerald and Al Cavelli.

Ed Dartnell put the Red Shirts out in front in the fifth minute of the opening period but Spain equalized before the session ended. Jack Costello, Boston Wingman, scored the only goal of the second period and Red Tilson tallied for New York at the start of the third.

Cleveland Star Wins Penn State Ski Championship

By the Associated Press

State College, Pa., Feb. 2.—Paul Massey, Pittsburgh, representing the Cleveland Ski Club, captured all-around honors in the second annual Pennsylvania State Ski Championships on Penn State's racing trail today, repeating his victory of last year. Max Peters, Penn State Ski Club, placed second.

Massey garnered 290.5 points out of possible 300 by winning men's slalom and placing second in downhill and cross-country events. Peters, first in the cross-country event on Saturday and third in today's two events, scored 287.4 points.

The men's downhill race was captured by R. Whitcher, of Pittsburgh Ski Club.

St. Louis Rangers Win

St. Louis, Feb. 2 (AP).—The St. Louis Rangers won their ninth straight exhibition basketball game today, defeating the A. A. U. National Champion Phillips 66 Cagers, of Bartlesville, Okla., 24 to 22, before a crowd of 4,000 fans.

Dusek to Wrestle Boesch Thursday

Rudy Dusek, absent from local wrestling matches for several months, will return this week as a foe of Paul Boesch in the semi-windup Thursday night at Turner's Arena.

The feature attraction finds the masked Green Hornet back in the No. 1 bout, with Warren Bockwinkle providing the opposition.

Walter Haight Goes South

Miami, Fla.

Dear Boss,

I'm feeling mighty low this morning; in fact, as low as an elthenemusipheix (lat.) and they tell me he lives at the bottom of the ocean. It's all because of a little incident last night. As is usually the case with me, I asked for it. Some of the boys at the track were talking about how well they knew Harry Richman, Milton Berle and other entertainers around Miami. Well, I piped up with my ace, Tubby Rives, the fellow who is the master of ceremonies at the Airport Night Club every time the races come to Hagerstown. Tubby is the m. c. at the Nut Club over at Miami Beach. I told the boys several stories about Tubby and me. I had intended getting over there before I came home. Yesterday several of the racing scribes bet against their own selections and won some money. They decided to go over to the Nut Club to see "Haight's friend, Tubby."

HAIGHT

Well, when we arrived Tubby was singing a song and he spied me coming in the door. He stopped right in the middle of the piece and yelled, "Friends, look who is coming in!" Well, Boss, my companions had convincing looks on their faces. I was proud I was proving that I not only knew one of Miami's first-flight m. c.'s, but he had recognized me when I only had my belt buckle in the place. Well, the orchestra sounded a blaring note as we started for a table and then Tubby went on, "folks, I want you to meet a gentleman, a prince of good fellows—none other than Wallace Hite of the Washington Star!" My friends laughed and I yelled, "Haight of The Post." Then the orchestra played "Stairway To The Stars." I kept shouting "Haight of The Post," and the waiter came up, tapped me on the shoulder and said, "We don't serve eggs on toast. I can get you frog legs."

Well, Boss, I went to fix my hair and I just slipped out of that darned Nut Club. I'm going to the races this afternoon, Boss, but I believe I'll sit in the bleachers and get some sun while I work. That Tubby Rives affair reminds me of that one we had in The Post sports department. You know the story, Boss, but somebody's been opening your mail and may be interested. We'll have to give the hero the name of Johnny Brown because he wouldn't like to get the "bird" where he works now. Anyway, Johnny always claimed he knew all of the big shots in the fight game. He said he was a

Bob Pastor to Fight Joe Louis in Los Angeles on April 15

Jacobs Also Seeks Godoy For Champ

Pastor Go Depends On Arturo's Whims; Nova-Baer Matched For Garden April 4

By Jack Cuddy
United Press Sports Writer.

New York, Feb. 2.—Promoter Mike Jacobs announced today that Bob Pastor will fight Joe Louis for the heavyweight title at Los Angeles, April 15, unless Arturo Godoy assures Jacobs immediately that he will meet the Brown bomber on that date.

Godoy, now visiting in his native Chile, was matched some time ago for his third attempt to wrest the crown from Louis. But last week he asked that the fight be postponed until early May. Jacobs said it would be impossible for Louis to fight in May, since he is defending the title in a big outdoor fight in June against Billy Conn.

Nothing further was heard from Godoy, who went 15 rounds with the Brown bomber last February and was belted out in eight rounds by the bomber last June.

Idle Since Knockout

Jacobs said, "Godoy will have to move fast now, because everything's all set for Pastor and Louis."

Pastor has been idle since September 6, when he was injured in a bout with Billy Conn, who knocked him out in the thirteenth round. Conn struck Pastor with many low blows that night, losing two rounds on fouls. The knockout blow was so low that the referee said Conn would have been penalized for it had Pastor risen from the canvas.

This would be Pastor's third tilt with Louis, also. The former New York U. halfback lasted the ten-round distance with Louis in 1937, but was knocked out by the Detroit Negro in the eleventh round of their Detroit title fight in 1939.

Jacobs—seeking a September opponent for Louis—announced that he has matched Lou Nova and Maxie Baer for a 15-round challengers' battle at Madison Square Garden, April 4. Both California heavies have reestablished themselves by comebacks. Baer knocked out Tony Galento and Young Pat Comiskey. Nova, who stopped Baer in 1939, returned to the big time on January 10 and gave Pat Comiskey an impressive beating.

To Sign Dorazio Papers

Louis, who knocked out Red Burman at the Garden in the fifth round Friday night, goes to Philadelphia tomorrow to sign commission contracts for his title defense in that city against Gus Dorazio, February 17. Immediately after the signing, Louis will return to his camp at Greenwood Lake, N. Y., and resume training. Bomber Joe is slated also to tackle big Abe Simon at Detroit on March 14 or 21.

If Dorazio evades the hospital in his brawl with Louis at Philadelphia, he will provide Conn with a tune-up at Pittsburgh, March 10.

Meanwhile, Promoter Jacobs will try to toss Burman in with some good opponent. Jacobs was delighted with Burman's attempt to take the title from Louis Friday night.

Galento will launch his comeback campaign on March 26 when he meets Buddy Baer, Maxie's younger but bigger brother, in a ten-round bout at the Garden.

Jewels Win Over Brewer Five, 38 to 29

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, Feb. 2.—The New York Jewels avenged three previous American Basketball League reversals tonight when they scored over the Washington Brewers in decisive fashion at St. Nicholas Arena, 38-29.

The Brewers, who previously had won three games in a row, were victimized by the hot scoring hands of Ace Goldstein and Willie Rubenstein, who scored ten points each and Moe Spahn, who accounted for eight.

The Jewels coasted into a comfortable first-period lead, 13-5, and were leading at the end of the second period, 29-14. They coasted in handily thereafter. Phil Rabin tallied ten points and Ben Kramer eight for the losers.

Miss Marble, Budge Win in Baltimore

Baltimore, Feb. 2 (AP).—Alice Marble, making her first professional tennis appearance here, won her fifteenth victory in 16 starts from Britain's Mary Hardwick tonight in straight sets, 6—2, 6—3, before a crowd of 4,000.

Don Budge licked Big Bill Tilden again, 6—2, 7—5, and teamed with Miss Hardwick to beat Tilden and Miss Marble, 8—6, 2—6, 6—2, in doubles.

Although beaten in both events, Tilden won the gallery with a gallant effort against Budge and with his antics in the doubles.

Soccer Exponents Spend Quiet Sunday Afternoon at Play

Leaders Face Tough Week In Conference

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Feb. 2.—North Carolina's 1940 champions with seven triumphs and Richmond and South Carolina with four each rounded the halfway point of the Southern Conference basketball race with perfect records, but they must face a heavy blast of gunfire this week.

The three loop leaders swing back into action Monday night, North Carolina playing host to the luckless Maryland club, Richmond traveling to William and Mary and South Carolina engaging The Citadel.

Carolina's White Phantoms take the court again on Tuesday against Davidson and then on Friday they clash with Duke's strong quint in the feature tilt of the week. The record of the defending titleholders shows two triumphs over Wake Forest and one each over Washington and Lee, V. M. I., N. C. State, Maryland and Virginia Tech.

Spiders Active

Richmond meets Furman on Wednesday and Virginia Tech on Friday to round out a busy card and South Carolina entertains Clemson on Friday in the Palmetto State's big game of the week.

South Carolina has defeated Furman twice and Davidson and The Citadel one time each. Richmond whipped Clemson and V. M. I. once and Maryland twice.

The fourth ranking team at this stage of the campaign is Washington and Lee with four successes against the loss to North Carolina. Duke and Wake Forest have each won four in six tries. William and Mary has taken three in five but other members of the circuit have been unable to break even.

Terps Meet Generals

W. & L.'s Generals, perennial title contenders, will have two good opportunities to tighten their grip on a berth in the conference championship tournament when they meet underdog Furman and Maryland quints this week.

Wake Forest will leave the loop on a northern trip, meeting the Orbach A. A. in New York, Villanova in Philadelphia and Loyola in Baltimore, starting Monday.

Other outside highlights will include Duke's home games with Pittsburgh on Monday and Navy on Saturday. Maryland meets Navy on Wednesday and Furman plays the powerful George Washington team on Saturday.

Chilean Ski Team Loses First Match In New Hampshire

By the United Press

North Conway, N. H., Feb. 2.—Local skiers trounced members of the Chilean Ski Team today in the informal one-mile Eastern Slope Ski Club giant slalom run down Cranmore Mountain.

Toni Matt sped down the trail through a heavy snowstorm in 2:41.8 to defeat a field of 24 skiers. Four other local skiers, Selden Hannah, Herbert Schneider, Earl Chandler and Elwood Ireland, chalked up faster times than the first Chilean. Eugenio (Canuto) Errazuriz, captain of the South American team. His time was 3:17.4.

Julio Zegers, another Chilean, finished sixteenth and Errazuriz's brother, Ignazio finished twenty-first.

Bisons Win, 8 to 3

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP).—The Buffalo Bisons hockey team, in a scoring spree during a 10-minute overtime period here tonight, blasted five goals past Earl Robertson, Springfield Indians' goalie, for an 8-3 triumph.

Regal Beats Marlboro Soccer Eleven in Rough Game, 2 to 0

Losers Protest First Goal, Fights Ensue; Spectators Drop Sideline Pursuits to Join

The Regal Clothiers took the measure of the Marlboro soccer team yesterday, but it wasn't with an eye toward adding to the Marlboros' wardrobe.

That's just an old form of sports lore which has been kicked around for some time and which simply means the Regals defeated, vanquished, subdued, surmounted and otherwise subjugated the Marlboro eleven. The "measure" was 2-0, and the scene, Gonzaga field.

Occasion was a post-Washington and Suburban League cup game, and after a number of short pauses for a siege of fisticuffs, the Regals avenged their two previous defeats at the hands of Marlboro in league competition.

Marlboro Protests Goal

Best battle of the afternoon ended up with threats of demands for investigations ringing in the air after a Marlboro protest of a Regal goal was disallowed by Referee Frank Govan.

"Gun" Guntow, who kicked both the Regal goals in the second 45-minute period, was the center of the storm. Guntow kicked the ball between the posts from directly in front, and in no time at all 22 men were swinging happily upon one another.

A number of spectators on the sidelines who had been preoccupied with rolling dice and matching dimes rushed onto the field, and one lad who had been morosely chewing on a lemon snapped out of his doldrums and started shadow boxing.

Official Calm

As this was our second visit to a Regals soccer game, all this was nothing new and we were right at home—the only regret being that we missed the last Regal-Marlboro meeting which ended up in such a brawl the game was called.

There was one fellow who likewise was calm and composed throughout each new meele—the official who always runs up and down the sidelines waving a handkerchief at the referee. Wonder if he ever got that liverwurst sandwich?

High School Job Lures O'Rourke

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 2.—Charley O'Rourke, star halfback who led Boston College's all-conquering football team to victory over Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl last New Year's Day, has been appointed head football coach for the new $3,000,000 Cardinal Hayes Memorial High School in the Bronx.

The announcement, which came today from Archbishop Francis J. Spellman, of New York, added that Bill Kyrwicki, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., former Fordham quarterback and catcher, will coach baseball; Nat Volpe, former Manhattan College star, will coach basketball, and Bernard Gallagher, now athletic director at Cathedral College, New York, will be director of physical training.

Ground was broken for the new school last May. It will be ready for occupancy next September 1, and will accommodate 3,000 boys.

There had been reports that O'Rourke, a native of Malden, Mass., would play professional football. In the National League draft, he was chosen early by the champion Chicago Bears.

Minnesota Wins College Ski Meet

La Crosse, Wis., Feb. 2 (AP).—The University of Minnesota's four-man team won the combined Downhill and Slalom championship in the first annual Intercollegiate Ski Union meet at the Snow Bowl here today.

Bill South, Gopher ace, won the individual Slalom title and placed second in the Downhill event to pace his mates to the team title.

Rudi Block, Wisconsin captain, won the Downhill crown and placed third in the Slalom to take second honors behind South, the individual combined champion. Ken Hancock, of Minnesota, placed second in the Slalom.

Minnesota won both the Downhill and Slalom in team events and took the combined crown with a 396 point total against a Wisconsin score of 446. The University of Chicago was represented, but was disqualified for failure to complete competition in the meet.

Takoma Five Victor

Blackhawks Win Over Toronto, 4-1

Chicago, Feb. 2 (AP).—The Chicago Blackhawks advanced to within 2 points of third place in the National Hockey League tonight, routing the pace-setting Toronto Maple Leafs, 4 to 1, before 16,660 spectators.

The victory broke a three-game losing streak and enabled the Boston Bruins to gain 2 more points in their drive on the league leaders.

Crown Wins 'Stakes; 208 Game Featured

Arthur Crown, representing the Brookland Merchants League, won the $200 first prize in the fourth annual Hap Burtner Sweepstakes last night at Convention Hall, although he was forced to share honors for the evening.

Bob Miciotto, a member of the King Pin quintet in the District League, rolled the District's highest game of the year, a 208 effort, that helped him finish in third place. The big game was the highest of the season here, surpassing El Gieb's 206 by two sticks.

Aided by Handicap

Crown rolled a 1,336 scratch set in the 10-game event and was aided by a 10-pin handicap in winning with a 1,390 total. A field of 120, 30 more than last year, contributed to the big purse as did Convention Hall President Wootton E. Young with a personal donation of $100. The tournament honored Burtner, manager of the Hall alleys.

Owen Mowbray, of Richmond, Va., was only seven pins back of the winner as he pocketed second prize of $100 with 1,209 and 174 handicap pins for a total of 1,383.

Miciotto tied Crown for the highest scratch set of the night, 1,326, as he finished third with his 34 pin handicap for a total of 1,370. He won $70.

Schroth, Wins $60

Norman Schroth, an Elks League pinman, won $60 with 1,271-94 for a 1,365 total and fourth place. Frank Mischou, the first big name bowler to finish in the cash list barely made fifth place and $50 with 1,267-80 for 1,347.

Two nearby Virginia bowlers tied for sixth place and divided $70, Derwood Boeglen, of the Building Supply League in Rosslyn with 1,257-88, 1,345 and Jim Luckett, Arlington Recreation League, with 1,237-108, 1,355.

Watson, Mathias Place

Ray Watson, of the Brookland Merchants League was next with 1,263-74, 1,337 followed by Don Mathias, of Office Building Management, 1,206, a 128 handicap for 1,334. They won $20 and $15, respectively.

Ed Rees, of the Saturday Night League at the host alleys and Lindsay Scott, another member of the King Pin team to finish in the money, tied with 1,333 totals and divided $24, a stick ahead of Hollie Sisk, of Culpeper, Va. Sisk's prize was $10 while George Grayson, Warrenton, Va.; Otto Santini, Saturday Night League, and Carl Humphries, Silver Spring American, won like amounts.

Mehl to Race In Penn A. C. Meet

Philadelphia, Feb. 2 (AP).—The entry of Walter Mehl, Wanamaker Mile winner, in the Penn A. C. Mile, feature of next Friday night's fourth annual Penn A. C. indoor track meet, was announced today by Meet Director Lawson Robertson.

Blozis Leads D.C. Delegation To Jersey Meet

Special Dispatch to The Post

Jersey City, Feb. 2.—Al Blozis, Georgetown University's world champion shot put artist, heads a District delegation in the annual Seton Hall indoor games tomorrow night in the 113th Regiment Armory.

Blozis will be out to better his own record of 55 feet 8¾ inches in his 1941 debut.

Kehoe to Run

Georgetown will also be represented by 1-mile and 2-mile relay teams, while the University of Maryland will be represented by its spring medley relay quartet.

Jim Kehoe, the former Terp trackman, now representing the Washington A. A., will meet his jinx, Campbell Kane, and other stars in the 1,000.

Seton Hall Games Draw Nation's Best

Jersey City, N. J., Feb. 2 (INS).—A host of the Nation's top-ranking track stars will gather at Jersey City tomorrow night for the annual Seton Hall indoor games at the 113th Regiment Armory.

Many of the performers in the Seton Hall meet will be wearing honors won in the Millrose games at New York last night.

Most of the entries in the Wanamaker mile and the lad who won it, Walter Mehl, Wisconsin N. Y. A., will line up again tomorrow for Seton Hall's J. B. Reilly Mile, in which Mehl once more must face rugged competition from John Munski, of Columbia, Mo., and Leslie MacMitchell, of New York University.

Rice Vs. Lash Again

Gregory Rice, the barrel-chested Notre Dame boy, fresh from triumph in the Millrose 2-mile event, is matched again with Don Lash, the man who stayed on his heels last night. These two along with Joe McCluskey, Tommy Deckard, Ralph Schwartzkopf and Forest Efaw are bracketed for the 2-mile.

Not as many big-timers are enrolled for the other events, but officials of the games freely predict close competition in each of the 13 events on the program. These include shot put competition in which World Champion Al Blozis, of Georgetown, will participate; a sprint series of 50, 60 and 70 yards; four intercollegiate mile relays; a 2-mile relay event and a medley.

New Yorker, Miss Wilson Win at Heurich

By the Associated Press

Lou Pagliaro, of New York City, national table tennis champion, annexed the Eastern championship last night by defeating Bernard Grimes, of New York City, former intercollegiate champion, in the men's finals at Heurich's gym.

The scores were 21—16, 21—12, 21—10.

Pagliaro's victory came after Grimes had scored an upset by defeating Sol Schiff, of New York City, the former national champion, 17—21, 21—14, 21—14, 21—18, in the semifinals.

Pagliaro had reached the finals by defeating Tibor Hazi, a Hungarian who has been giving exhibitions here, 21—17, 21—16, 21—13.

Carolyn Wilson, Washington and Maryland women's champion, stepped into a broader field and defeated Priscilla Woodbury, of Worcester, Mass., in the women's finals, 21—14, 21—15, 21—10.

Ed Pinner and Si Sussman, both of New York City, won the final men's double event from Hazi and Schiff, 21—9, 19—21, 21—16, 22—20.

Rangers Turn Back Canadiens

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—The New York Rangers turned back the Montreal Canadiens, 2-1, tonight despite a shakeup in their forward lines caused by the absence of the injured Phil Watson. But it was Bert Gardiner, the Montreal goalie, who received an ovation from 12,237 fans such as no visiting National Hockey League player had received this season.

It was a goal-tender's contest all the way with Gardiner earning most of the credit for his team's strong showing. The Canadiens' rearguard looked a trifle wobbly on both New York goals, scored by Clint Smith and Alf Pike. The Rangers' defense was steadier throughout and that accounted for the difference in the teams.

Dave Kerr, the Rangers' goalie, made a fine effort to win his first shutout of the season, only to lose it to the quick-shooting Toe Blake, who banged in Joe Benoit's pass on a power play late in the third period.

Schulze, Matt Zunic Maintain Scoring Pace

District College Basketball Pointmakers Led by G. W., A. U. Stars; Only Three Better 10-Point-a-Game Averages to Date

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The District collegiate basketball scoring picture remains unchanged, George Washington's Matt Zunic leading in total points and American University's Dutch Schulze with the best average, but some of the boys have slipped considerably in the past few games.

In fact, only three players on the seven local teams boast averages of 10 points a game or better. Schulze watched his percentage drop slightly with nine points against Penn State last week but he still leads the list with a 12.71 average in seven games.

MATT ZUNIC

Zunic's 144 points top the totals and in 14 games he has averaged 10.29 points per contest, second to Schulze and just ahead of Maryland's only consistent point-maker, Gene Ochsenreiter, who has scored only 13 points in the last three games. Ochsenreiter, with 111 markers in 11 games his team has lost, is averaging just better than 10 points a night, a drop of three points from his early season pace.

Georgetown's great club, winners of 11 straight, is proving that an individual high scorer is not necessary for success. Jim Kiernan is pacing the Hoya scorers with a 9.33 average in an even dozen contests, with 54 field goals and only four foul shots. Bill Bornheimer is next with an average of nearly 8 points per game with Buddy O'Grady just over the 7 mark and long-shot Charley Schmidli, who usually scores a dozen points or none, has totaled 67 points in 11 games.

Small Colleges Register

The smaller college quintets, Wilson Teachers and Gallaudet, have each moved men among the leaders with recent scoring spurts. Ernie Cole, the former Eastern High ace is lacking a single point of a 10-point a game average with Wilson, having posted 116 points in 12 games. Hal Ifshin, a teammate, was put out of Saturday's Blue Ridge game and scored only one point but he was averaging 9.81 for 11 games, having missed one due to illness. Ray Holben, another local courtman on Doc White's Wilson quintet, has totaled 106 points in a dozen games.

Hal Weingold and Carmen Ludovico are waging a close battle for scoring honors on Blair Smith's Gallaudet quintet and have also moved among the District leaders, the former with 98 points in 10 games, just under the 10-point-a-game mark and Ludovico with 90 points in 10 games.

Mulvihill Shiner

Joe Comer, George Washington's lanky center, is second to Zunic on Bill Reinhart's club, with an average of 8:15 points per game with Eddie Amendola, who started the season as a reserve, hitting the hoop at a better than seven-point-a-game clip. Lou Veltri and Bobby Gilham, consistent but seldom leading scorers, each hold six point averages.

Jimmy Mulvihill, the ray of sunshine for C. U. Coach Fod Cotton who is pointing for the future after seven consecutive losses this year, is leading the Cardinals, averaging 9:14 points per game with Gene Daly, captain, next with 7:28.

Ochsenreiter, who couldn't miss despite Maryland's feeble showings in early contests, has apparently caught the fever of his Maryland team's slump in recent contests as he has dropped three points a game off his average. The next to him on the Terp squad is Arthur Woodward, who is totaling nearly five-points per game.

Schulze in Groove

Dutch Schulze, starring for the fourth consecutive year with American U., may get back in the groove this week as the Eagles are host to Randolph-Macon and Swarthmore. Freshman Gus Frizzell and Bing Byham, each hold better than 7-point averages with the Eagles.

Zunic has made the most field goals, 55, with Kiernan only one back although Zunic has dropped 34 foul shots to the G. U. star's four. Holben, of Wilson has accounted for 30 foul shots and Schulze 27.

D. C. Legion Bowlers Beat Richmonders

Washington American Legion bowlers defeated Richmond's Legionnaire pinmen by 118 sticks to easily cop the intercity series at Lucky Strike alleys. The District team was leading by two pins going into the second half of the home-and-home series.

Clarence Milne and Clarence Zimmer paced the winning pinmen with respective sets of 389 and 370.

Keough and Crew Win Bobsled Title

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP).—Charles Keough, Saranac Lake, won his first major bobsledding title today by driving his crew to victory in the National A. A. U. junior four-man event on Mount Van Hoevenburg run.

Trailing Joe Meconi, of Troy, at the half-way mark by .23 of a second, Keough and his mates recorded the fastest single run of the day in the third heat, whipping down the chute in 1:09.97. His four-heat total was 4 minutes, 41.73 seconds.

Meconi, piloting a Keene Valley entry, placed second in :42.28; Francis Mahoney, of Saranac Lake, a newcomer to the bobsledding field, was third, and Calvin Pardee, of Hazleton, Pa., fourth.

College Basketball Activity Hits Full Stride This Week

East Boasts 3 Undefeated Cage Teams

Midyear Exam Lull Which Saw Sectional Powers Tumble Ends; 'Top Dogs' Listed

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 2.—After a lull for midyear examinations, the establishment of a new national scoring record and the first conference defeats of such sectional palladins as Indiana, Oklahoma A. and M., Auburn, Stanford and Washington, the college basketball teams go back on a full-time competitive schedule this week.

The past seven days saw surprises from east to west, from Rhode Island State's tumble before Temple at Philadelphia to Stanford's 45-44 loss to U. C. L. A. last night and Washington's two defeats by Oregon State. They included, too, the 27 points scored by Ken Grimth, of little Alderson Broaddus, for a four-year scoring total of 1,603 that supplanted Hank Luisetti's record 1,596 for Stanford.

Eastern Intercollegiate League—Dartmouth, with three victories and no defeats; Big Ten—Wisconsin, 5-1; Big Six—Oklahoma and Kansas, each 3-1; Missouri Valley—Creighton, 4-1; Southeastern—Florida, 5-1; Southern—North Carolina, 7-0; Southwestern—Arkansas, idle the past two weeks, 4-0; Rocky Mountain Big Seven—Utah, 4-0; Pacific Coast Southern Division—Stanford, 4-1; Pacific Coast Northern Division—Washington State, 6-2.

Unbeaten Teams

Among the "independents," the East boasts three undefeated teams in Seton Hall, with 37 in a row and 13 this winter; Baltimore, 12 straight after its 49-36 whipping of Marshall Saturday, and Westminster, nine in a row. Toledo, Mid-western standout, dropped its first in 13 starts to Western Michigan Teachers last night, 41-28. Undefeated Texas Wesleyan, together with Texas Tech and West Texas State, are non-conference leaders in the Southwest.

A combined review and preview gives the following sectional setups:

EAST—Yale, after beating Princeton, 49-46, for its first E. I. L. victory, is the only team which has no league game this week. Pace-setting Dartmouth will play Princeton Saturday while second-place Cornell tackles Penn and Harvard visits Columbia.

On the outside, major games of the week should be Yale-Fordham and Pitt-Duke tomorrow; Westminster against Indiana Teachers Tuesday and Waynesburg Saturday; Wake Forest's meeting with Villanova, which has a record of 11 and 1, and Long Island U.'s clash with Duquesne at Madison Square Garden Saturday. The Dukes have lost two of 11 to 15 and 1 for L. I. U.

MIDWEST—Purdue's 40-36 upset of Indiana knocked the Hoosiers down to a tie with Illinois for second in the Big Ten, and put idle Wisconsin on top. Six games are on tap this week, with Illinois slated to face Purdue and Minnesota in its bid for the lead.

In the Big Six, where examinations hold the week's program to two games, Nebraska is the big news through its climb from the cellar to undisputed claim on third place. Iowa State, beaten twice by the Huskers, meets Oklahoma Saturday.

Creighton's 51-42 defeat of Drake, combined with St. Louis' first win of the year, by 32-29, in two overtime periods, over Oklahoma A. and M., put the Bluejays ahead of the Aggies. The new leaders have dates with Tulsa and St. Louis, A. and M. with Washington U. and Washburn. Temple's Western trip to play Bradley and Loyola tops the independent program. The Owl-Loyola game will be part of a Chicago double-header, with Toledo seeking to get back on the winning road against Depaul in the other game.

SOUTH—Florida, whose nearly complete league schedule has been prolonged by addition of two games against Georgia, saw its main rivals knocked out during the past week as Auburn bowed first to Tennessee and to Georgia Tech last night, 48-39. Tennessee in turn was beaten by Georgia, and now is tied for second with Tulane and Kentucky, the defending champions, who barely beat Vanderbilt, 51-50. The Wildcats get a chance to move up in two games with Alabama.

North Carolina's hold on the lead in the Southern Conference, where the title is decided by a playoff, was strengthened by victories over Wake Forest and Virginia Tech. The Tarheels are at home to Maryland, Davidson and Duke this week while Richmond also plays three in a bid to break a second-place tie with South Carolina.

SOUTHWEST—Arkansas' odds-on favorites wing back to Conference competition in a pair of matches with third-place Baylor. The Razorbacks warmed up for this assignment by handing Pittsburg (Kans.) Teachers, recent winners of an Oklahoma City invitation tourney, 71-45. Baylor, winner over Texas Christian in last week's only league game, opens the week against Southern Methodist.

ROCKIES—Utah, with a 44-21 decision over Utah State, gets a chance to widen its margin in the big seven by playing Denver, already beaten once by the leaders, and Wyoming, second with three wins in four starts.

PACIFIC COAST—Second-place California, which got that way by whipping Southern California twice, can tie Stanford for the southern section lead by beating the Indians Friday night. Stanford's highly touted defense was shot full of holes last night by U. C. L. A., 45-44 winner, after the U. C. L. Ans had lost on Friday, 54-44. Southern Cal.'s defending champions, after losing the first game in overtime, were demoralized last night as California Capt. John McGee popped in four quick field goals for a 35-26 triumph.

Oregon State's delayed shots and zone defense proved too much for Washington's sophomores, whipped twice for their first two league defeats. But the Huskies get a chance to catch front-running Washington State this week in two meetings with tail-end Oregon.

Rodman Wanamaker Trophy Voted to Hurdler Wolcott

FREDDIE WOLCOTT

Rice Star Voted Outstanding Entrant In Millrose Meet by Sports Writers

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 2.—A committee of seven sports writers today voted the Rodman Wanamaker trophy to Hurdler Fred Wolcott, of Rice Institute, as the outstanding performer in last night's Millrose A. A. track meet at Madison Square Garden.

Without wishing to detract anything from Wolcott's feat of winning his 60-yard heat and semifinal and then taking the final in world record time of 7.2 seconds, this corner must admit the choice was a difficult one. In a meet that was surprisingly disappointing from start to finish, there really wasn't any one athlete who stood out.

It couldn't be Walter Mehl, the mile winner in 4:13.6, because the first half of the mile was a ridiculous waltz which seemed cut on the pattern of the 4:46.8 nightmare Glenn Cunningham won in 1936. Though Greg Rice ran to his eleventh straight indoor victory in the 2-mile, the time of 9:03.2 wasn't good enough to make that anything exceptional.

Davis Hit by Illness

Harold Davis, the 20-year-old California collegian, got off to a brilliant start in his first indoor competition by winning the 60-yard dash. He was booked to run in the 300 also, but illness took him out of the final after he'd won his heat. Indiana's Roy Cochran and Campbell Kane, winners of the 600 and 880, respectively, might have rated since they also ran on the Hoosiers' winning distance medley relay team. But their individual races weren't fast enough.

As it turned out, Wolcott was ranked first by five of the seven voters for 29 points. Rice, on one first place and four seconds, got 19; Cochran, with one first place, got 8, Davis got 6 and Sophomore Les MacMitchell, of New York University, was given one point for at least helping to make the finish of the mile exciting by challenging Mehl in the back stretch.

Three Bright Spots

Wolcott, MacMitchell and Davis really were the only bright spots. The Rice hurdler's victory and record made up for his failure to do anything in his first Garden showing two years ago. MacMitchell can be justly proud of having finished in front of Chuck Fenske, Millrose winner and best man indoors a year ago, and John Munski. The publicized duels between Davis and Barney Ewell, of Penn State, failed to materialize when Ewell was shut out in the 60-yard semifinals and Davis scratched from the 300.

All except Davis will be in action tomorrow night in the Seton Hall meet on the flat track of the Jersey City Armory. Mehl, MacMitchell and Munski will be in the mile, Rice in the two-mile with Don Lash, Fenske in the 1,000 against Kane and John Borican, and Shot Put Record Holder Al Blozis, of Georgetown, will make his seasonal bow.

Selections at Hialeah Park

Dear Al:

These little men who make their living riding horses and risk their necks when they do it naturally have a lot of spunk. Most of them are on the cocky side and virtually all like to talk big when they are among themselves. The riders are particularly proud of ability to get away from the barrier quickly and they hold their heads high if they are pointed out as a "good gate boy." I overheard a not-too-prominent jockey talking to some of his fellow riders about a certain race. He was referring to the start and he said: "The man flipped it and I took it—as I generally do." We might hear from a 2-year-old named Albatross when time comes for the juvenile stake races. The son of Mate and Lull was in hand half of last Saturday's three furlongs and won in a common gallop. He is owned by the Coldstream Stable and was gelded before being sent to the races. Bimelech is coming right along in his training. The Bradley ace worked a mile in 1:44 Saturday morning. Apprentice Jockey Herb Claggett has recovered from an attack of flu and is back at work. His Maryland half-mile rival, Ricco Sisto, has been performing in excellent style. I see Willie Obert, the veteran jockey, around the stands in his Sunday best. I guess there are too many riders here. I think I had a winner or two last Sunday. Forgot to save a copy of the selections so I could check. Hear Russell Oakes, of Charles Town's official family, has been under the weather. I've been playing the No. 1 dog at the greyhound races but I didn't have that $251.10 dog that broke out of the No. 1 stall here at Hialeah last Saturday. Now for the winners.

BILL.

First race—Curious Roman appears best of those gathered for the day's abbreviated dash. He packs plenty of speed and should hold this company safe. Wood Robin could be the second one, Dennis F. breaks from the rail but has speed and may be dangerous.

Second race—Beauty Bien may graduate from the maiden ranks in this field of fillies. She has worked well and deserves the top ranking. Belfry Chimes and Rose Red appear to have something on the others.

Third race—Interlace appears better placed than last out. Gets in with 105 pounds and I'm going to string along. Good Reception runs good races and will be a keen factor in this field. Graeme Cracker may be close in a field of this sort.

Fourth race—Art of War, a winner over this track, may go to the front and stay there. The distance suits and the company appears about right. Old Friend gets a light assignment and will be right there. Matchcan for the minor money.

Fifth race—Cadmium gets the call in this despite the top weight. Likes the seven furlongs and needs only the right ride. Kansas City was scratched out of 1 st Saturday's stake to await this. Air Brigade may take the show.

Sixth race—Heliopolis has worked well and is nominated for the big stakes. Ran on the grass in Europe and should down these. Detroit Bull's last as a good effort. Dorimar for the show end.

Seventh race—Dissembler could be the right one in this rather open affair. The route suits this plater and I'm going to take my chances. Conrad Mann makes his way in this kind of company and is a threat. Quaker Brass to take care of the others.

Eighth race—Weekly Stipend, at the weights, appears best in the day's final. Sammie runs well on a fast track but the 122 pounds may stop him. Brown Queen II should take part of the money.

Best bet—HELIOPOLIS.

FBI Five Bows At Roanoke

Special Dispatch to The Post

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 2.—Roanoke's American Legion Hawks made it 12 straight basketball victories against no defeats by beating the FBI quintet from Washington, 47 to 24, before more than 1,200 fans at the Roanoke Auditorium this afternoon. Bob Spessard paced the Legion team with 25 points while Studebaker lead FBI with 9 points.

Willie Hoppe Scores Sixth Cue Victory

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Willie Hoppe, of New York, won his sixth straight game in the world's three-cushion billiard tournament tonight when he defeated Joe Moriarty, Chicago, 50 to 30, in 44 innings.

The 53-year-old defending champion collected three billiards in the first inning and at the end of the eighteenth held a 6-point margin. Hoppe had two runs of 6, his high for the night.

Young Herbert Peterson, of St. Louis, completed his victoryless appearance in the tournament, losing his seventeenth straight match to Clarence Jackson, of Detroit.

Peterson led 24-19 midway of the contest but fell behind when Jackson rallied to win, 50 to 35, in 50 innings.

Irving Crane, of Livonia, N. Y., defeated Len Kenney, of Chicago, 50 to 41, in 70 innings, one of the longest games of the tournament.

This was Crane's seventh victory in 16 matches and Kenney's fifteenth defeat in the same number of starts.

English Hold Races

London, Feb. 2.—Although the government has banned the running of a substitute Grand National British Steeplechase classic at Cheltenham this year, the Gold Cup and others of the usual annual Cheltenham races will be held March 19 and 20, it was made known today.

Juvenile Grows Up:

Whirlaway Shows Improved Disposition in Race Drills

2-Year-Old Champion Learns to Run As Guided; Points for Flamingo and Derby

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Feb. 2.—Whirlaway, the horse that gave jockeys fits last year, is showing an improved disposition which Trainer Ben Jones thinks may help him win the Kentucky Derby.

"He ran all over the track," Jones said of Warren Wright's 2-year-old champion, which won $77,275 last year.

"The jocks found him hard to manage. They couldn't make him run inside the field—he always wanted to run around the other horses. He had so much speed and staying power that often he could win anyway, even though he gave everybody else three or four lengths by running wide.

"But this year it'll be different. He's grown up and gotten over all that childish stuff. He'll run anywhere his rider wants him to, and that'll save lots of ground on Derby Day."

Works Every Morning

Early every morning Whirlaway goes out on the Hialeah track, where he is training for his 1941 debut in the Flamingo Stakes February 22, and breezes through a workout.

Jones is with the thoroughbred throughout these workouts and keeps his eye on him every minute he is out of the barn. Each day the training pace is stepped up. Pinky Brown, the only person allowed to ride Whirlaway, gallops him a little faster and a little farther every morning.

Then after Groom Fred Kelly has rubbed him down, the big chestnut is through for the day. He is not left entirely to himself, however, as at least one person remains within hearing distance both day and night.

Held in High Esteem

Jones, who saddled Lawrin when he won the 1938 Derby, says frankly Whirlaway is "a much better prospect at this stage of the game."

Part of this feeling, of course, may be due to the affection Jones admits he has acquired for Whirlaway since the colt has grown out of "all that skittishness he had as a 2-year-old."

Of the other Derby candidates, Jones says Our Boots and Bold Irishman must be given strong consideration. He also has a very healthy respect for C. C. Van Meter's Blue Pair, a little-talked-about horse.

ACKERMAN

Most of the kicks from waterfowl hunters this year were directed toward the early season, even though it is many years since we have been allowed to shoot them in January. They may be right about taking several weeks off the early end of the season and adding them to the end, we wouldn't know.

Of one thing we are sure, if more ducks are killed it will take just that much longer for the flights of other days, and that even then we will never get back to unlimited shooting and excessively long seasons, for that is what brought the duck population from well over a hundred million down to some 30-odd. After all, there is considerable fun in just being able to get out with some possibility of getting a shot or two. These early in the day limits bags never seem to bring real enjoyment.

However, there is considerable hope for those who like their shooting fast. Residents of the Louisiana marshlands near the Sabine National Wildlife Refuge are witnessing a sight that has not been seen in many years. According to the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, at least 60,000 canvasback ducks recently landed on Mud Lake, about 3 miles from the boundary of the refuge.

Last year, only 15 canvasbacks were noted there by Service observers. They probably noted more right here in our bay area, for the Chesapeake, Back Bay and Currituck Sound are regular wintering grounds of this duck of the epicures. But then, in the past, they have also wintered in many sections of the Gulf Coast, from Florida to the Mexican border.

Oldtime Louisiana hunters say they have never seen so many canvasbacks in that area at one time. Younger hunters failed to recognize the species.

The mystery of the appearance of the 60,000 wintering "cans" is only partly explained by Wildlife men. In 1939, Mud Lake was dry, and sago pondweed, a favorite of the canvasback, was scarce. Last fall, however, continuous rains filled the lake, and a highwater level has been maintained throughout the season. As a result, the sago pondweed flourished and spread.

The "cans" were among the first of their clan to arrive on the Gulf Coast. How they learned that Mud Lake, not normally used as a feeding ground, was again a luscious food-bin, good for many weeks, is something that even ornithologists cannot explain. But southwestern Louisianians are not concerned about the whys and wherefores, they are happy because those 60,000 canvasbacks are on Mud Lake this year.

And who can tell, possibly in another year or two, we will have in this section something as equally convincing to show that canvasbacks and other species of the short-bag ducks are back in all their glory. The Susquehanna flats, at one time, was the wintering ground of hundreds of thousands of "cans" and redheads. It can become so again.

Bruins Extend Hockey Streak

Boston, Feb. 2 (INS).—Drumming a total of 58 shots at rookie goaler Charley Rayner, the Boston Bruins tonight extended their streak to 18 games without a defeat, beating the New York Americans 4 to 1 before a crowd of 15,000.

The 20-year-old Rayner was virtually smothered with rubber as the fast skating Rossmen poured through the leaky New York defense. He was a great goal tender tonight, though, frustrating the Boston attack time after time. Of the 54 shots that he turned aside nearly a quarter were difficult to the extreme.

Flash Hollett beat him at 12:40 in the first period on a pass from Bobby Bauer and Milt Schmidt. Woody Dumart and Terry Reardon slipped scores through him in the second session but he beat the Bruin sharpshooters 25 times in that period.

Bartholomew Captures Ice Speed Skate Title

By the Associated Press

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 2.—Husky Ken Bartholomew, of Minneapolis, sped through the gathering dusk today to win the 5-mile race and become the 1941 North American speed skating champion.

Winner last week of the national title at Lacrosse, Wis., Bartholomew thrilled 20,000 fans in the finale of a three-day meet, the outcome of which remained undecided until the last event.

Bartholomew totaled 100 points while Charles Leighton, of Minneapolis, who finished second in the 5-mile, won the runner-up position at 86. Tied for third in the standings with 80 points were Leo Freisinger, Chicago, the defending champion, and Ted Ellenwood, 21-year-old Amsterdam, N. Y., stock clerk.

Bartholomew's time in the long-distance race was 17 minutes 23.4 seconds. Bob Hackenbach, Chicago, placed third.

Freisinger, pace-maker at the end of the second day, did not start in the final event. The scramble for the championship was thrown wide open earlier when Vic Ronchetti, Chicago, scored a surprise victory in the three-quarter mile, with Bartholomew taking second.

Freisinger, usually a strong contender over the three-quarter mile distance, finished well behind the leaders. Third in the race was Bud Handlan, St. Louis. Ronchetti, winner of the 1938 title, was clocked in 2:26.4.

Ellenwood captured the 440 in 37.2 seconds, with Leighton second and Joe Bree, Tuckahoe, N. Y., third. Freisinger fell on the first lap, while Bartholomew spilled on the final corner.

Carmelita Landry, Fitchburg, Mass., annexed the women's title by winning the final two events, the 440 and the mile, for a clean sweep of all five races and a point total of 150.

Miss Landry, winner of the national title last week, was never extended in defeating Elaine Gordon, Chicago, and Virginia Jahn, Cresskill, N. J., in the 440. Her time, slow for the fast condition of the ice, was 43.4 seconds. In the mile, she defeated Miss Gordon by 50 yards in the time of 3:23.4. Miss Jahn was third.

Miss Gordon totaled 80 points for the runner-up position, while Miss Jahn scored 50.

Sacred Heart Five Beats St. Martin's

Sacred Heart School handed St. Martin's their fifth defeat yesterday to retain the Parochial school lead in their game at Gonzaga gym yesterday. Coming from behind in the second half to score five points to St. Martin's one they kept a full game ahead of St. Matthews, who were disposing of St. Thomas by the score of 23-10.

Holy Comforter kept its place among the league leaders by handing St. Martin's an 18-8 licking as St. Joseph's were overcoming St. James by the score of 18-8. In the other games Immaculate Conception St. Michael's 15-9 and St. Aloysius won over St. Stephen's by the score of 22-8.

particularly close friend of Mike Jacobs, the New York promoter. In fact, he continually referred to his conversations with Mike. One night a boxing angle came up in the sports department and argument went thick and fast. Finally one of the boys suggested that Johnny call his friend Mike Jacobs and settle the thing.

"I don't want to bother Mike at 11 o'clock at night," protested Johnny. "He told me at the Louis-Baer fight that he was going to be mighty busy for the next six months." The boys began to laugh. "All right, you lugs, I'll call Mike," said Johnny and he placed the call. Now we never knew what Mike Jacobs said on the other end of the wire but here's what Johnny Brown said. "Hello, Mike—this is Johnny—Johnny Brown—Johnny Brown in Washington—Johnny Brown of The Washington Post—yes, Mr. Jacobs."

Along the same line, Shirley Povich and I were trying to get out the sports pages one night and a fellow barged into the office. Shirley didn't see him and the fellow strutted to the middle of the room and shouted, "How're you doing, Polrick?" Shirley looked up. He couldn't remember ever having seen the fellow before. "I'm rather busy now," replied Shirley, "What can I do for you?" The guy laughed and said, "How about giving me a couple of wrestling passes, Polrick?" Well, that second "Polrick" was about all Shirley could stand, so he replied, "I haven't any wrestling passes for you and furthermore, get out of here." Well, the fellow started for the door. Just as he was about to go out he turned and said, "So long, Stanley."

Not to change the subject, Boss, but these letters may be constructive at that. Remember in my Key West letter I referred to the lack of fresh water down there at the tip of the States? Well, according to word received here from Washington, Key West won't have to catch rainwater after a couple of months. The Navy is going to pipe a water line to the city. Then again, in that letter, I wrote about Miami traffic, I told you about the railroad coming right down to the center of the town. Well, the city fathers have taken that tip up and the local paper says the station is going to be moved further uptown. If you leave me down here long enough, Boss, maybe I can get them to stamp "Post Want Ads Pay" on every orange.

Always your ace,

MIAMI HAIGHT.

Baseball School Sells Outfielder to Bees

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 2 (AP).—The sale of Richard Burkhardt, Bellevue, Ky., youngster, to the Boston Bees was announced here today by the Joe Stripp Baseball School.

Faculty members of the school said Burkhardt was one of the best prospects uncovered there in several years. He is a 20-year-old outfielder.

Writers Lampoon Baseball Big-Wigs at New York Dinner

Bees' Bob Quinn and Cleveland's Bob Feller Voted Awards; Military Motif Prevails

By Judson Bailey

Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Feb. 2.—Baseball's best-known figures were targets for the sharp-shooting of scribes turned actors tonight as the New York baseball writers dressed up their annual dinner-show in a military motif.

More than 1,000 guests—magnates, players, writers and fans—gathered from all over the country for the affair. They saw awards made to President Bob Quinn, of the Boston Bees, for meritorious service to the game over a long period of years and to Pitcher Bob Feller, of the Cleveland Indians, as the player of the year.

There was food, music and speeches, and a letter from President Roosevelt which stressed baseball's present importance "in the building up of morale, whether in the armed forces or in the civilian population."

But the fun all centered around skits lampooning the baseball big-wigs and the incidents that stood out in last year's campaign: The rebellion of the Cleveland players, a Brooklyn's fan's attack on Umpire George Magerqurth, efforts to sell the Yankees, the fighting of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Jimmy Wilson stealing a base in the World Series, and the Army Draft and its threat to ball players.

Meany Top Sergeant

The show was presented against the background of an Army tent, with Tom Meany, sports columnist for the Newspaper PM, in the role of top sergeant and master of ceremonies.

Hal Trosky, Jeff Heath and Mel Harder came to President Alva Bradley, of the Indians, in one scene to complain they weren't being treated properly in the Army. The meeting was broken up by the arrival of Sergt. Oscar Vitt with a bull whip.

During a debate over the size of salaries paid Feller and Buck Newsom, of the Detroit Tigers, Bradley declared he paid Feller $30,000 last year.

"Why, I gave Newsom $30,000 in bonuses," barked Walter Briggs, of the Tigers.

"Well, I gave Feller a pass on the Nickel Plate Railroad," Bradley retorted, "and I'll match you billion for billion next year."

"All right, what will you take, heads or tails?" asked Briggs.

Another skit showed Catcher Mickey Owen reporting to Manager Leo Durocher, of the Dodgers, with whom he had a fight last summer while playing for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Stoopnagle Speaks!

Durocher was punching a bag when Owen appeared and asked:

"Who are we training for, St. Louis or Joe Louis?"

"This is going to be a fighting ball club," Durocher replied. "MacPhail has hired Gene Tunney to supervise our spring training."

Speakers included Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, Jimmy Walker, Col. Stoopnagle, Jimmy Conzelman, John Kieran, Quentin Reynolds and Bill Corum.

Lots of Hot Water Protects Family

Hot water has been labeled the greatest enemy of germs. During the winter, when colds are epidemic, an abundant supply of hot water protects family health.

The availability of hot water makes possible the sterilization of hands before eating and increases the frequency of baths and showers.

BOB QUINN

Blackbirds Bow, 33-28, To Bruins

Facing the stiffest opposition since their organization, the Washington Bruins, colored professional quintet, yesterday defeated the famous "Dolly" King and his Dixie Blackbirds before a capacity crowd at Turner's Arena, 33-28.

This, their eighth consecutive victory, proved an uphill affair all the way. The first period ended 10-7, with the Blackbirds ahead, half the points being served by King himself. The Blackbirds maintained the 3-point lead throughout the second period, "Bus" Caffe contributing seven points. The score: Blackbirds, 19; Bruins, 16.

A fast and furious third period developed, "Ezra" Murdock and "Ace" Clarke sinking birdies to tie the count at 21-all. King made a pivot shot to put the Blackbirds momentarily in front, and Steele pushed one through the basket after a razzle-dazzle dribble the length of the court.

But the game was tied at 25-all on foul shots by Murdock and Seeley and a beautiful basket by Clarke following through under the goal. Briscoe and Free counted on taps from Cooper, to put the Bruins definitely in front as the game ended.

(In a night game at Baltimore, the Bruins again turned back the Blickbirds, 41-39.)

the disc in from 30 feet out on a pass from Burrage. The puck skidded in through a maze of players legs. Then, about two minutes later, Washington forged into a 2-1 lead on a neat shot by Pranschke who had worked the puck into scoring territory together with Dewey, who passed to him from the corner.

But Baltimore retaliated at 15:20, with the aid of the penalty to Knipfel, on a goal by Riley, assisted by Moe and Webster.

Orioles Boost Lead

The game got rougher in the second period while Baltimore grabbed off a 4-3 lead.

The Orioles talled first in the period, Newcomer Morzo celebrating his debut with a lengthy goal at 7:45 after Goalie Colvin, of Washington, was laid low by a stick and the match was interrupted for several minutes.

Fighting back, the Eagles once again deadlocked the count on Pranschke's second goal, this time unassisted, through both Baltimore defensemen, at 14:00.

More Penalties

Then, after Rossignol, of Washington, and Moe, of Baltimore, had been thumbed off for two minutes for roughing Baltimore reclaimed the advantage as Piche took a pass from Grigor and rapped in a hot one from a difficult angle as he skated by the nets.

Ace Pole Vaulters Compete in Boston

Boston, Feb. 2 (AP).—Two of the Nation's best pole vaulters, Earle meadows and Kenny Dills, both of Los Angeles, sent in their entries today for the fifty-second annual Boston A. A. games next Saturday at Boston Garden.

Meadows, Olympic champion in 1936, has hopes of breaking the indoor record of 14 feet 6¼ inches, set here in 1939 by Cornelius Warmerdam. Dills forced Warmerdam to a new outdoor mark of 15 feet 1⅛ inches at the A. A. U. championships at Fresno, Calif., last year.

U. S. Skating Team Named For Canada

By the Associated Press

Boston, Feb. 2.—The United States Figure Skating Association announced tonight the United States team which will compete against the Dominion of Canada in the North American Figure Skating Championships at Philadelphia February 11 and 12.

Jane Vaughn, Philadelphia, winner of the ladies' singles title in the National Championships here last week; Gretchen Merrill, Boston, and Charlotte Walther, New York, who finished second and third, will make up the ladies' senior team.

Turner on Team

Gene Turner, Los Angeles, winner of the men's senior title for the second successive year; Arthur Vaughn, Philadelphia, runner-up, and William H. Grimditch, Philadelphia, winner of the junior singles title, will represent the United States in the men's senior singles.

In the pairs, the United States team will include Turner and Donna Atwood, Los Angeles; Jack Might and Patricia Veath, Colorado Springs, Colo., and Joan Mitchell and Bobby Specht, Chicago. The fours will be Jeanette Ahrens, Mary Louise Premer, Robert Uppgrem and Lyman Wakefield, St. Paul.

Canada's Line-up

Representing the Dominion of Canada will be: Senior girls, Mary Rose Thacker, Winnipeg; Barbara Ann Scott, Ottawar, and Norah McCarthy, Toronto. Senior men, Ralph McCreath and Donald Gilchrist, Toronto; pairs, McCreath, Eleanor O'Meara, Miss McCarthy and Sandy MacKechnie, all of Toronto; juniors, Patricia Gault, Montreal, and Shirley Halstead, Toronto; junior men, Michael Kirdy, Toronto; junior pairs, Peter Killan and Margaret Wilson, both Toronto.

Baering Down On the News

By Arthur ("Bugs") Baer.

I spoke to the bankers down in Baltimore a week ago and they seem more optimistic than a cat in the aquarium.

But, there's always one fellow who does the group worrying. He said, "things are getting better but I'm scared of the next depression."

Well, I told him the last wave of war prosperity I remembered started in 1914 and ended in 1920. That's 15 years of fat living and I sure could stand another 15 years of it.

That would bring us up to 1956 but it didn't seem to make the fellow seem any happier. You know, in a land flowing with milk and honey, there's always some mugg who will reach for the cold water spigot.

So far as my vote counts I will take these 15 years of artificial prosperity. After that they can call the fielders in, and feed me through a quill because I will be so old the mosquitoes will not bite me any more.

That prosperity wave is starting and if it seems to be a little brisker down in our neck-of-the-woods it's because I'm fanning it with my hat.

Funeral Today For Mrs. Entrikin, G.P.O. Employe

Funeral services for Mrs. Tillie D. Entrikin, 92, former employe of the Government Printing Office for 18 years, will be held today at 11 a. m. in Hines funeral home, Fourteenth and Harvard Streets Northwest.

Mrs. Entriken died Friday in Brainerd, Minn., at the home of her niece, Mrs. Levi Johnson, with whom she had been living for three years.

A native of New York, she came to Washington in 1890, and in 1909 was married to Benjamin P. Entrikin, past department commander of the G. A. R.

Here she was a charter member of the George H. Thomas Woman's Relief Corps and its department president in 1913; a charter member of Friendship Council, D. A. R., and a charter member of the Columbia Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, of which she was worthy matron in 1917.

Contract Bridge

J. M. B. gaily describes this hand: "I send you this ordinary looking hand so that I can have an excuse for telling about the big kick I got out of it; also it provides a pretty good illustration of that ever-present element, chance, or luck, and the part it may play in this exciting game. The hand came up toward the end of a friendly session of rubber bridge.

"I sat South, and had for partner a young woman to whom I had given some instruction from time to time: whose chief weakness was a disinclination to bid, especially when sitting opposite one whom she chose to consider a superior player, which of course, I am not.

"I decided, on this deal, to have my partner become declarer, if it were possible; thus my opening bid of one club, rather than one spade, or one no trump which brought forth the somewhat daring response of one heart and set the stage for a final contract of game in the suit, when normally, a game at spades, down one, would have been the outcome.

"The play was excellently handled by the rather diffident lady, who, however, modestly disclaimed credit for the squeeze which developed (or as she said, just happened,), and made possible an overtrick: incidently supplying the happy ending to what had begun as a somewhat speculative venture, at least on my part."

The king of diamonds was followed by the ace, after which East switched to a small club. Declarer played dummy's ten. West put on the king, and the ace took. A diamond was played and trumped, and the spade eight returned to declarer's queen. The club five was next led, dummy's queen taking. Declarer drew trumps overtaking the queen, when the jack from West indicated the distribution, and continuing until the trumps were exhausted. Declarer's last heart put West on the spot.

"He had to discard a spade, leaving in the last three tricks to dummy, or throw the high club, leaving North's seven in command dummy's eight having been played on the last heart. The club was given up: declarer made her seven and South's ace, king of spades, for eleven tricks. She lost two diamonds."

Your Federal Income Tax

(Prepared by Bureau of Internal Revenue, Treasury Department.)

Normal Tax, Surtax and Defense Tax

Income taxes for 1940 are paid on net incomes and on surtax net incomes. A study of the instructions that accompany the income tax forms will show how to compute the tax on such incomes. This brief statement should serve to help to that end.

The Internal Revenue Code provides for only one normal tax rate, and that is 4 per cent of the net income less the allowable personal exemptions and credits for dependents, and an earned income credit of 10 per cent of the amount of the earned net income but not in excess of 10 per cent of the amount of the net income. For instance, if the net income is $3,000, no more than $300 earned net income credit would be deductible from the net income. If the net income is $4,000 or less, there is paid only the normal tax rate of 4 per cent.

On a surtax net income of $4,000 or less there is no surtax. On a surtax net income in excess of $4,000 and not in excess of $6,000, the rate is 4 per cent of such excess. The surtax upon a surtax net income in excess of $6,000 is $80, and upon a surtax net income in excess of $6,000 and not in excess of $8,000 the rate is 6 per cent of suc excess in addition to the $80, or a surtax of $200 upon a surtax net income of $8,000.

The defense tax, which the present tax law imposes, is a tax of 10 per cent of the combined normal tax and surtax.

The following example will show how to compute the tax on a net income of $8,500, all of which represents earned net income, the taxpayer being single and without dependents:

Net income	$8,500.00
Less personal exemption	800.00
Balance (surtax net income	7,700.00
Earned income credit	850.00
Net income subject to normal tax	6,850.00
Surtax at 4 per cent of amount of surtax net income in excess of $4,000 but not over $6,000, 4 per cent on $2,000	80.00
Surtax at 6 per cent on amount of surtax net income in excess of $6,000 but not over $8,000, 6 per cent on $1,700	102.00
Total surtax	182.00
Normal tax, 4 per cent on $6,850	274.00
Total normal tax and surtax	456.00
Defense tax, 10 per cent of $456	45.60
Total normal tax, surtax and defense tax	501.60

The maximum surtax rate is 75 per cent. On a surtax net income of $5,000,000, the surtax is $3,597,780. When the surtax net income exceeds $5,000,000, the 75 per cent rate is applicable to such excess, in addition to the surtax of $3,597,780.

Taxpayers are urged to read carefully and understandingly all the instructions accompanying the income tax forms before preparing their returns. If they need any help, they can get it without cost by consulting the nearest collector of internal revenue, deputy collector or internal revenue agent.

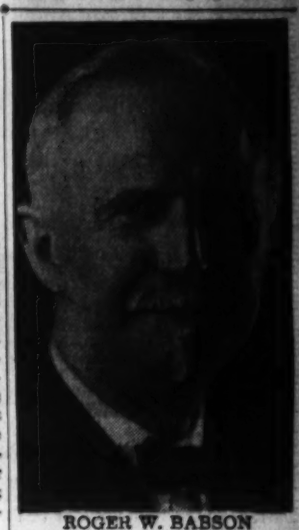
Small Cities Aided

By Roger W. Babson

The Decentralization Trend

THE NEW POLICY of the Securities and Exchange Commission should be good news to every part of the country but New York—and perhaps not bad news for even New York. This is what I learned recently when passing through Washington. The SEC has nothing against the New York Stock Exchange per se: but it does not want it to have a monopoly of all the stock exchange business. This is its main reason for objecting to the New York Stock Exchange attempt to prevent its members from operating on other exchanges. The Commission feels that this is a deliberate endeavor, on the part of New York bankers, to dry up these other exchanges and put them out of business.



ROGER W. BABSON

I find, however, that the SEC has some reasons for this move which should be very helpful to cities in the Central West, the South and on the Pacific Coast. The Commission is not opposed to speculation provided it is carried on in a legitimate manner and distributed properly throughout all sections of the country. It, therefore, believes that the smaller stock exchanges, in the smaller cities, should be strengthened and even subsidized, rather than handicapped as the New York bankers apparently want to handicap them.

SUCH A decentralization program should encourage more trading in the securities of smaller companies and thus "decentralize" the trading which is not confined to the blue chips. This program should not only broaden the market, but also tend to prevent the terrible "up-and-down" fluctuations which are inevitable when the dealings are 80 per cent in the blue chips. Naturally, New York bankers and owners of New York real estate will fight this movement, but it should be backed up by all interests in other cities.

Already the SEC has regional offices in several cities as follows: Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Denver, Fort Worth, New York City, San Francisco and Seattle. In addition, it has branch and temporary offices in Detroit, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Orlando (Flo.), Philadelphia, Jackson (Miss.), St. Louis, St. Paul, and Tulsa. The new idea, however, contemplates that, beginning next month, there will be complete registration facilities in their Cleveland and San Francisco offices. If this program is satisfactory and increases the number of new issues put out, it will be extended to other cities where the SEC now has offices.

THIS NEW program is also important in showing a changed attitude on the part of the Commission. It has concluded that both a restoration of employment and sound defense requires that industries be encouraged to issue new securities and that investment bankers be helped to market these securities. The proposed legislation affecting bank holding companies is another step along these lines. This new attitude should be of benefit to every reader of this column, whether factory owner, merchant or wage-worker.

I am sorry to say that I have not found any inclination in Washington to make life easier for the utilities. For a few months before election, it seemed as if the utilities were at last going to get better treatment; but since President Roosevelt's re-election Washington seems to be getting tough again. The following three lines of action are reported to be on the cards:

1. Adoption of a rule requiring utility companies to obtain sealed bids from underwriters or private investors on the sale of all security issues over $1,000,000.
2. Adoption of regulations restraining the payment of common stock dividends by utility companies as a means of forcing upward revision of depreciation accruals by the "plowing back" of more earnings.
3. Adoption of a general policy of requiring capital revision, if thought necessary, in connection with all new financing; requiring systematic debt reduction and greater use of common stock for financing.

THUS FAR the only real defense against night bombers is decentralization. This is why the Government is asking that the new industrial plants be built in smaller communities. This same program will continue even after World War II.

The day of "bigness" is over as applied to a corporation building one big factory for an essential industry. This, in a way, sup

Widow Held in 1933 Slaying

CHARGED WITH MURDER—Mrs. Angella Carlucci Ross, 30, widow of a Syracuse, N. Y., contractor slain in 1933, was returned from Akron, Ohio, to Syracuse yesterday upon arrest of the man accused of the killing. Booked on formal charge of first-degree murder, she is expected to testify for the second time with the slaying for which one man has been executed

Moral: Don't Argue Even If He Just Looks Like a Cop

A bus driver's uniform, mistaken by passersby for that of a policeman, brought four police cars to the scene last night during a traffic wrangle at Eighth Street and Virginia Avenue Southeast.

According to police, the argument began when a bus operated by Max H. Simms, of Arlington, slightly bumped the rear of an auto driven by Earl W. Frere, 39, of 707 Eighth Street Southeast. Passersby called help for the supposed policeman.

Police arrived to find Simms arrayed against Frere and three other occupants of the auto: Alvin W. Inscoe, 32, of the Eighth Street address; his wife, Doris, 28, and Lorraine Embrey, 42, of 714 Eighth Street Southeast.

The police took no sides. They charged all five with disorderly conduct.

D. C. Accidents Hurt 3 Elderly Pedestrians

D. C. traffic deaths this year .. 13
Deaths this date last year 5
District total last year 79

Three elderly pedestrians were injured in District traffic accidents yesterday while motorists involved in three spectacular collisions escaped unhurt.

Lillian Holland, 77, of 1529 A Street Northeast, suffered severe arm, leg and body lacerations when struck by an automobile at Seventh and H Streets Northwest. She was taken to Sibley Hospital. Lory F. Whetzel, 44, of 114 Fifth Street Southeast, was listed as driver of the car.

Crossing the street at Georgia Avenue and Butternut Street Northwest, James Murphy, 61, attached to Walter Reed Hospital, was struck by an automobile which police said was driven by John W. Fenton, jr., 17, of 1445 Spring Road Northwest. He was treated at Walter Reed for head injuries.

Injured Downtown

Eva Barrett, 70, of 804 Nineteenth Street Northwest, was taken to Emergency Hospital with head injuries after she was struck by an automobile at Seventeenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest. Lewis C. Davidson, 22, of 2814 Thirty-ninth Street Northwest, was the driver, police reported.

Five motor vehicles were involved in two crashes which resulted in the arrest of Charles J. Green, 42, of 300 G Street Northwest, on charges of hit-and-run and drunk driving.

Police reported Green's car struck an automobile at Benning Road and H Street Northeast, driven by William Bushby, 21, of 4036 Gault Place Northeast, and forced it into a truck driven by John M. Hatton, 34, of Kensington, Md.

Hit Still Another

Green failed to stop, the officers said, until he struck another car a mile and a half farther out Benning Road, knocking it into a parked automobile. Driver of the other car was Ernest L. Oakley, 16, of Capitol Heights, Md.

Harold M. Dixon, 22, of Hyattsville, Md., was charged with driving on the wrong side of the street after a three-car collision, at Bladensburg and Queens Chapel Roads Northeast. Dixon's automobile collided with a car driven by William F. Plummer, 41, of Anne Arundel County, Md., knocking it into an automobile driven by Carl F. Steinbach, 24, of Walter Reed Hospital, police reported.

Chinese Lauds Missionaries At Rockville

The world of today faces material wealth but spiritual bankruptcy. Men are at loss as to where to turn in critical moments, the Rev. Philip Y. Lee, of Shanghai, secretary of the China Christian Broadcasting Association, told a mass meeting last night at Rockville, Md.

The meeting was held in connection with the National Christian Mission now in session in Washington.

"Along the shores of Galilee, Jesus called men to come and follow him," Dr. Lee said." He was inviting them to invest their lives through Himself in order to bring fullness of life to those who follow Him and to their fellow men.

"Robert Morrison invested his life and went to China in 1807 as the first missionary. At the end of the first seven years he won the first Chinese to the Christian faith, Toy Kao. With his help the Bible was translated into native writing. Through his efforts a mission and school were established.

"The reason China was able to withstand the war of the last three years in such a marvelous way is not because of the armed forces but the Christian leadership in the government. Six of the ministers in her cabinet are Christian. Every sixth name in the "Who's Who" of China is that of a Christian. Most of them received their early training in missionary schools. Investment of Morrison's life brought great dividends indeed," Dr. Lee said.

Jolson, Sounding Blue Note, Closes Show and Is Sued

By the United Press

New York, Feb. 2.—Al Jolson, who couldn't win back Ruby Keeler's love by starring her in his show "Hold On to Your Hats," was sued for $100,000 today because he closed the musical comedy at the height of a successful Broadway run.

Notice of the suit, which was brought by George Hale, dance director and co-owner of the play, was served on the mammy singer as he walked off stage after telling a closing night audience that he was a sick man who needed to go South for a rest.

Jolson was in seclusion at his hotel today and could not be reached for comment. A secretary said Jolson still was recuperating from an attack of pneumonia, which forced the show to close for a week recently. He expected to leave for Florida or Arizona soon, the secretary said.

Meanwhile, members of Jolson's show cast expressed little sorrow over the latest difficulties to involve their boss, known as one of the wealthiest showmen. Many of them were signers of a petition presented to Jolson in a futile effort to persuade him to keep the show open.

Jinx Falkenberg, glamorous dancer once described as Jolson's latest "heart interest" but more lately on none too good terms with him, said:

"Everybody's terribly upset about the closing because most of the kids can't find new jobs in the middle of the season. Al didn't say anything to me about it because we haven't been speaking for weeks. But I'm lucky, because I'm going to Hollywood tomorrow."

Hale said:

"Jolson's not sick. He's got plenty of money and he just got tired of the show."

Jolson ad Hale signed an agreement on January 6. Hale said, in which Jolson assumed control of the show and agreed to play through the season and to present the show as long as it was profitable.

"Hold On To Your Hats" opened in Chicago last winter with Ruby Keeler in a starring role. It was reported Jolson was using the play to effect a reconciliation with his former wife.

The peace move blew up, however, when Miss Keeler quit the show during its run in Chicago. The play opened in New York this season after stops in Detroit and Philadelphia.

WINNIE WINKLE — A Good Time Was Had by All — BY BRANNER

WELL, I AM HOPING OUR BIG COCKTAIL PARTY IS BEING A SUCCESS!
YES, I HOPE IT GETS US A PICTURE JOB!
THE PHONE! MAYBE THAT'S A STUDIO CALLING NOW!
R-RING RING
OH, MIS' WINKLE, AH HAD SUCH A NICE TIME AT YO' PAHTY AN' MET SO MANY NICE PEOPLE, AH WONDERED COULDN'T ONE OF 'EM GIVE ME A LETTER OF INTRODUCTION THAT WOULD GET ME A PICTURE JOB!
A LETTER FROM GUS GOMPS FROM THE CASTING DEPARTMENT OF ALL STAR!
WELL, COME ON, OPEN IT, LET'S SEE WHAT IT SAYS!
I HOPE IT'S MORE ENCOURAGING THAN THAT PHONE CALL WAS!
MRS. GOMPS WOULD LIKE THE RECIPE FOR THE DELICIOUS SALAD DRESSING YOU SERVED AT YOUR PARTY!

MR. AND MRS. — Just Taking Pot Luck — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER

NOW, PROMISE ME YOU WON'T GO TO ANY TROUBLE
POSITIVELY NOT. WE'LL GIVE YOU JUST WHAT WE'RE GOING TO HAVE OURSELVES
THAT WAS AUNT ELLA. SHE'S COMING TO DINNER
OH, SO THAT'S WHO IT WAS. I'M GLAD YOU TOLD HER SHE'D HAVE TO TAKE POT LUCK
LISTEN, JOE! I WANT YOU TO RUN DOWN TO THE BUTCHER'S — AND THE BAKER'S — AND THEN TO THE GROCER'S — HEY, DIDN'T YOU JUST TELL HER SHE'D HAVE TO TAKE POT LUCK?
DON'T STOP TO ARGUE. GET THE THINGS I WANT
GEE WHIZ! AREN'T WOMEN EVER ON THE LEVEL WHEN THEY TALK TO EACH OTHER?

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

JANE ARDEN — No Joe Leader — BY MONTE BARRETT AND RUSSELL ROSS

FOR A MINUTE I WAS SCARED STIFF—NOBODY HERE KNEW JOHN DRYER
BUT THERE IS A SWALE LEASE—AND THERE'S THE WELL!
THANK GOODNESS, THERE IS A WELL—I'LL MAKE MY INQUIRIES HERE—
NOPE—DON'T KNOW JOE LEADER—WHAT IS HE, A RIGGER?
I THINK HE'S THE MAN IN CHARGE OF DRILLING ON THE SWALE LEASE—
WHY, DENMAN IS THE DRILLER HERE—THAT'S HIM, YONDER!

Grin and Bear It — By Lichty

Anyone trying to keep a catalogue of the activities of Doris Dudley, radio and stage actress, aviatrix, horsewoman and mother of two children who currently is heard as Peggy in "Meet Mr. Meek" which you hear every Wednesday over WJSV and the Columbia network, can add another filing card.

It's that of "theatrical director." It came about like this: Otto Preminger, director of the Broadway play, "Cue for Passion," asked her to read the part of the feminine lead. But Doris looked the part over, shook her head and said the role wasn't for her, not her type.

"But," Doris continued, "now that I'm here, how about using me as your assistant director. You're going to need one."

So, without more ado, Preminger appointed her as his assistant director. It's probably the first time in theatrical history that a girl has turned down a lead in a play to become an assistant director.

But being an assistant director wasn't just a passing fancy for Doris. She hopes some day to become a full-fledged one. She has a theory that a person should explore all the divisions of his profession in order to have a full understanding of its problems.

"Meet Mr. Meek" concerns the all-too-humorous adventures of the henpecked Caspar Milquetoast of that name. The name role is played by Frank Readick, who, of all things, used to play "The Shadow."

Joe L. Baker Dies; Former Aide to Hull

Joe L. Baker, 57, former newspaperman who was aide to Secretary of State Hull when he was chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee, died yesterday at his home, 7200 Meadow Lane, Chevy Chase, Md.

Mr. Baker was born in Chattanooga, Tenn., and began his newspaper career on the Chattanooga Times. He later joined the staff of the Knoxville Journal, and became managing editor. He also served as managing editor of the Charlotte (N. C.) Observer.

After a short period on the staff of the Associated Press in Washington, he joined the Democratic Congressional Committee as secretary. Four years later he became executive assistant to the chairman of the Federal Trade Commission. He resigned this position a year ago to form his own business service.

Mr. Baker was a member of the National Press Club. During the World War he served as a lieutenant of infantry on the Mexican border.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Betty Baker, of Chevy Chase; his mother, Mrs. Alice Lane, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret L. Washington, both of Knoxville, and a half-brother, Morton Lane, of Harriman, Tenn.

S. C. Levinson Dies at 75; Foe of War

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Salmon C. Levinson, 75, peace advocate who helped draft the Kellogg-Briand pact to outlaw war, died today.

The famous lawyer, who also was author of the Levinson plan for readjustment of World War debts and reparations, succumbed to complications resulting from a high blood pressure.

Levinson originally supported the League of Nations, but later opposed America's participation when the League Covenant failed to outlaw war. Later he advocated United States entry into the World Court.

Recently he urged outright gifts to Great Britain, contending that to lend on a commercial basis would be "repeating the mistakes of the last war."

Mr. Levinson had been a practicing attorney in Chicago all his life. In 1931 he was awarded the Rosenberger medal by the University of Chicago for outstanding service to humanity. France decorated him with the Croix de Chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur.

In 1937, Levinson presented to the library of the University of Chicago thousands of documents describing the growth of the outlawry of war idea. He also established the W. E. Borah Outlawry of War Foundation of $50,000 at the University of Idaho.

Survivors include Mrs. Ruth Langworthy Levinson, of Pittsburgh, his second wife, whom he married in 1914. The first Mrs. Levinson died in 1904. There are also four children, Horace Clifford Levinson, a department store executive of New York; Prof. Ronald Bartlett Levinson, of the University of Maine; Helen Furnas, author; and John Oliver Levinson, a Bridgeport, Conn., attorney.

McAdoo to Be Buried Today In Arlington

William Gibbs McAdoo, former Senator and World War Cabinet officer, will be buried today in Arlington National Cemetery.

Services for the statesman, who died Saturday of a heart attack in his Shoreham Hotel room, will be held at 10 a. m. at the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G Street Northwest. The Rev. Zebarney Phillips, chaplain of the Senate, will officiate.

Burial in the military cemetery will be in recognition of Mr. McAdoo's services as Secretary of the Treasury in the wartime Cabinet of President Wilson. Such burial was provided for in a special act of Congress passed shortly after the World War.

High Government officials who will attend the last rites include Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of Commerce Jones, Homer S. Cummings, former Attorney General; Daniel C. Roper, former Secretary of Commerce; Majority Leader Barkley, Minority Leader McNary, of the Senate, and Thomas M. Woodward, of the Maritime Commission.

Bernard N. Baruch, wartime shipping head, and Henry F. Grady, president of the President Lines, will be among the honorary pallbearers. All ships of the President Lines at sea will stop for ten minutes during the funeral services. McAdoo was chairman of the line's directors.

Other honorary pallbearers will be Breckinridge Long, Assistant Secretary of State; Leslie C. Garnett, former United States Attorney for the District; Robert Wooley, director of the mint during the World War; Russell E. Leffingwell, of New York, and nine Senators.

Ruehle Funeral Rites Set for 1P.M.Tomorrow

Funeral services for Godfrey L. A. Ruehle, 56, bacteriologist for the agricultural marketing division of the Department of Agriculture, will be held at 1 p. m. Tuesday at the Hines Funeral Home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest, instead of at 2 p. m. as previously announced. Burial will be at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

E. N. Ellis, Owner Of Monument Concession, Dies

Funeral services will be held today for Edward N. Ellis, 56, of 6408 Luzon Avenue Northwest, Mason and worker on behalf of the blind, who died Friday at Miami Beach, Fla. The funeral will be at 3 p. m. from Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest, with burial in Glenwood Cemetery.

Born in Williamsport, Pa., Mr. Ellis came to Washington in 1902. For the last few years he operated the souvenir stand at the top-landing of the Washington Monument.

Himself possessed of poor eyesight, he was active in aiding the blind, and he had been treasurer and a member of the executive board of the Columbia Polytechnic Institution for the Blind since 1911. For many years he helped obtain appropriations from Congress for the institution. Mr. Ellis was a member of Potomac Lodge, F. A. A. M.; Potomac Chapter, Potomac Commandery, and Almas Temple, A. O. M. S.

Mr. Ellis died in Florida, where he had gone with his wife, Lillian, two weeks ago. Also surviving are a daughter, Evelyn M. Harrell; a son, Edward O. Ellis; three sisters, Mrs. H. W. Admiral Laning, Tactician, Dies

Philadelphia, Feb. 2 (AP).—Rear Admiral Harris Laning, United States Navy, retired, recognized as one of the Navy's foremost tacticians, died in United States Naval Hospital today. He was 67.

A native of Petersburg, Ill., Admiral Laning was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1895. He retired November 1, 1937, when commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Since then he had been governor of the Home for Retired Navy Men here.

Admiral Laning served as acting chief, Bureau of Navigation, during the World War, chief of staff of the destroyer force from 1919 to 1921, president of the Naval War College from 1930 to 1933, and commander of the battle force, with the rank of admiral, in 1935.

He captained the United States rifle team that won first place in the 1912 Olympic games at Stockholm and received the Distinguished Service Cross for his World War services.

He leaves his wife and a daughter, Mrs. Hester M. Pepper; a sister, the wife of Gen. John McA. Palmer, U. S. A., retired, of Washington, and a brother, Capt. Levin D. Laning, of Kansas City, Mo. Funeral services will be held at the Naval Academy, Annapolis, Tuesday at 3 p. m.

Hortense Keables Dies Here at 76

Miss Hortense Keables, 76, registrar of the Universalist National Memorial Church, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital following an illness of 10 days.

A native of Mystic, Conn., daughter of Dr. Thomas A. Keables, a Civil War veteran, Miss Keables came to Washington in 1892 as a clerk in the law firm of Newton and Gillette. Two years later she joined the bookkeeping department of the Washington Gas Light Co. and worked there 38 years before retiring in 1933. She made her residence at 1316 Euclid Street Northwest.

Since her retirement, Miss Keables had devoted her time to the Universalist National Memorial Church, Sixteenth and S Streets Northwest, as treasurer and later as registrar. In November, 1939, she took a year's tour of the United States with $2,500 bequeathed her for that purpose by a former official of the utility company. A brother, Raymond, of Philadelphia, survives.

Services will be held at the church tomorrow at 2:30 p. m., to be conducted by the Rev. John Van Schaick, pastor emeritus and editor of the Christian Leader, Boston. Interment will be private.

ACE AUTOGRAPH ALBUM. Barnee, of the Shoreham, enriched his prize autograph album tremendously last week, capturing inscriptions from every celeb visiting the Birthday Ball. Barnee's album must be one of the finest in the country. It carries the signature of every notable who's visited the Shoreham for years—and not just signatures, for practically every contributor added a friendly and personal message to big Barnee. All of the young Roosevelts are represented, also movie stars, statesmen and industrialists without number. Defense Commissioner Knudsen's signature is one of the latest. There was a chuckle in Earl Carroll's written suggestion that an "I" had been left out of Barnee's name. As time goes on Barnee's album promises to be a historic record of our times.

Tommy Marvin and his orchestra, one of New York's niftiest, will begin a Washington engagement in about two weeks. Don't dast to tell you where just yet.

"THE NEW YORKER REVUE" opens at Lotus today. Stars include Vern Wilcox, dancing comedienne, straight from Loew's State Theater in New York; tiny Yvonne Moray (just 45 inches tall) who's a great big girl when it comes to singing and stepping; the Billingtons, dance stylists from Chicago. Cellophane hoops will be featured in a shimmering production parade and the eight-girl chorus will also do a strictly "jitter" number. Bill Strickland has some new emcee angles and Buddy Shaner will break out fresh songs.

TOUPEES OR NO TOUPEES? Jack (Jive) Schafer, of Casino Royal, tried on some toupees, says that one with blonde curls made him look like a high school boy. He can't make up his mind to buy or not to buy. But if Jack does blossom out with a toupe, the ensuing scene at Casino Royal will be apocalyptic . . . The "Tip Top Revue" from Chicago will be presented at C. R. on Wednesday eve.

"GOLD PLATE" ASCAP TUNES. Those radio listeners who stayed up to the hour when the Carlton's Gold Plate Breakfast was served, enjoyed a rare two-hour treat of ASCAP tunes played by Carmen Cavallaro's orchestra. It was the most notable ASCAP event since that $25,000 show put on a couple of weeks ago by the independent radio stations. A considerable quota of the outstanding piano solos previously recorded by Carmen were included in the delectable listening.

Your voice holds the secret of your future, says Countess de Bournat, pyschoanalyst, of El Patio. Just say two or three words, anything that comes into your head and the countess will give you a clear idea of what's going to happen in your life.

TOPFLIGHT TUNEAGE. "Lady of the Dark," beautiful Gertrude Lawrence song, being played with thrill by Pete Macias' band in the Lounge Riviera . . . the way Adele Van, of Mayfair, sings "Five O'Clock Whistle" with patty-cake effects. Adele's looking like a lipstick with curves in her new bright red dress . . . The magic of "The Woods of Vienna Are Calling" now being sung in Troika by Charlott, a real Viennese . . . "Rose of Tralee" was written especially for John McCormack, but it's also being superbly tenored by Russ Cullen in the Pall Mall Room . . . "Yes," My Darling Daughter" sounds more prettily roguish than ever when it's sung and accordioned by Beverly Stull of Burt's Trans-Lux . . . "You Got Me This Way" will also get you that way when you hear it warbled by the Mayflower Lounge's Bonnie Boyd, who's also in demand as a society entertainer.

BANDSTAND PAJAMAS. Judy Clark, caroler with Ray Heatherton's band in the Metronome Room, is wearing pajama costumes on the bandstand. She has 'em in several colors, in velvet and other fabrics, looks no end cute and sassy in every outfit.

NEPTUNE'S DISCOVERY. Leslie Hare, Neptune's new songbird, is such a demure looking little lass that ringsiders took one look at her and were sure she'd sing "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair." And how she fooled 'em! For Leslie can toss a hot tune higher'n a kite, holds her own beautifully even with such nationally known experts in sizzling rhythm as Milt Herth's Trio. Don't miss her.

There's new "mystery" entertainment at the Silver Fox. Owner Fred Johansen says, "Well, it's Pan-American and pretty. No, she don't wear a mask."

SMALL FRY DEPARTMENT. Maestro Burrus Williams, of La Salle Versailles, has bought both a toy piano and record machine for his 20-month daughter, Linda. Other moppets in the neighborhood call her "Lucky Linda" . . . At last! Here's an announcement that young Robert Windsor arrived in this world and Washington on January 26. He's the son of the Anchor Room's Matt Windsor and Mrs. Windsor. Matt was superstitious or something and wouldn't let us tell the world that Robert was even expected.

DOUBLE RADIO DEBUT. Evelyn Knight and Vicente del Garza, of the King Cole Room, both made successful radio debuts last week, expect to be on the air again very soon. Evelyn appeared via N. B. C. and Vicente sang in connection with a Pan-American newscast.

SHORT TAKES. Sally Lester, singer in Ciro's Famous Village, looks enough like Jeanette MacDonald to be her sister . . . The Rainbow Room is a favorite gathering spot for labor officials . . . Psychoanalyst Frazier, of the Cafe Caprice, has fulfilled engagements on those famed Cunard liners, the Franconia, Carinthia (sunk by the Germans), Mauretania, Britannia and Scythia. . . . The erstwhile Swing Club over Dick's Grill is now the scene of numerous organization parties . . . There'll be square, round and 1941 dancing at Kavakos' Grill tomorrow with country dance music by the Cowboy Ramblers, modern tunes by Brownie's band.
